BALFOUR'S NEW MOVE DIVIDING HIS PARTY

Premier Asquith Describes His Chief Opponent's Changes of Policy as Almost Indecent.

PROTECTION NOT ABANDONED

Balfour Says It Is Still a Party Plank —Wretched Weather Incapacitates Leading Politicians.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—There is the possibility of an unlooked-for result in the attempt of the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Opposition leader, to remove tariff reform from the immediate filed of politics. The question to-night looms larger than ever in the campaign—so much so that Mr. Balfour himself, in a speech at Reading, was fain to explain that his party had not altered its views on this subject and that tariff reform was still a chief plank in the party's constructive policy. But, he explained, the Unionists needed to obtain the formal and explicit consent of the people thereto. The policy of the referendum, he said, was consistent with the true idea of popular Government.

The fact is, Mr. Balfour's pronouncement on Tuesday that he was willing to submit tariff reform to a referendum has rather sundered than knit his party, and has supplied the Liberals with another effective argument against tariff reform, namely, that Mr. Balfour has been compelled to sidetrack it.

The interest in the speeches to-night centred in Premier Asquith's reply to the Opposition leader. This was delivered at a great meeting in Wolverhampton. The Premier said: "We are living in times of rapid movement, when it is a relief to wake any morning and not find some fresh part of the Constitution reconstructed."

He described Mr. Balfour's "volte face" on the questions of the reform of the House of Lords and tariff reform as unique—almost indecent. He said he could not imagine a greater caricature of the referendum than in putting a few abstract questions to the people without concrete embodiment of the proposals. If any one but a sane and responsible statesman had contemplated such a scheme he would be called a madman.

After study of the working of the referendum in foreign countries, the Premier continued, he had arrived at the conclusion that it had proved a most unsatisfactory and disappointing method of ascertaining public opinion.

Winston Spencer Churchill, the Home Secretary, displays untiring energy. He addressed several meetings at Dundee to-night, and will deliver two speeches in Cheshire to-morrow. From there he will go by special train to Grimsby, where he will speak at midnight, replying to a speech which Mr. Balfour will make earlier in the evening. In order to ascertain the nature of Mr. Balfour's address special relays of motor cars will convey a verbatim report of this to the Home Secretary at Sheffield, enabling him to study the address on the train. After his speech at Grimsby Mr. Churchill will return to Manchester, where he will speak on Saturday afternoon. He will go from there to Chester for another Liberal demonstration on Saturday night—a heavy twenty-four hours' programme.

The Home Secretary will have a special guard of detectives to provide against suffragist attentions.

Frederick E. Smith, K. C., Unionist member for the Walton Division of Liverpool, is running a good second to the Home Secretary in energetic campaigning, while Chancellor Lloyd-George, John Burns, and other effective speakers from both sides are keeping busy.

Lord Lansdowne is showing great energy in support of his proposals for the reform of the House of Lords. To-day he addressed a big meeting at Portsmouth in the interest of Lord Charles Beresford, whose seat for Portsmouth is seriously threatened by the Liberals. Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, has arranged to reply to Lord Lansdowne.

The weather for the campaign could scarcely be worse. Outdoor meetings planned at many places have necessarily been abandoned. The weather has incapacitated many candidates and speakers, among the number being Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty. The women, as usual in England, are taking a prominent part in the canvassing.

HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Car's Occupants Injured, Though Girl Escapes as Buggy Is Demolished.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, Dec. 1.—An automobile owned by George C. Menzies, ex-Supervisor of the town of Greenburg, and a wealthy resident of Irvington, crashed into a buggy, in which were Miss Helen Butler of this place and her coachman, on the Dobbs Ferry Road, near the Century Club, about three miles from here, late to-night, killing the horse and injuring the occupants of the automobile. Miss Butler and her coachman, though they were thrown twenty feet, landed on the grass at the side of the road and were uninjured.

Mr. Menzies was accompanied by his chauffeur, and had Thomas Ward and Mr. Ward's son, Thomas Ward, Jr., of Tarrytown Road, White Plains, as his guests. The road was muddy from light snow this afternoon, and in attempting to pass the buggy, which was going in the same direction, Mr. Menzies's chauffeur turned sharply, and the heavy machine skidded in the mud. The steering gear parted, tearing off both front wheels of the automobile, and the machine struck the horse and buggy with force that broke the back of the horse and demolished the buggy. All in the automobile were thrown out.

Mr. Menzies landed in the road about 20 feet in front of his machine. He has two broken ribs and internal injuries. Mr. Ward was badly bruised, and his son got a scalp wound.

Dr. Walter E. Lowthian of White Plains came in an automobile and hurried the injured men to the residence of Mr. Ward here. Mr. Menzies, though in great pain, refused to be moved until he knew that Miss Butler was injured. Then he insisted that Dr. Lowthian take her home before he touched him. Miss Butler attempted to relieve his suffering until friends arrived in an automobile and took her to her home. It is said that Mr. Menzies will probably recover.

HOME TO FIND BABIES DEAD.

Grandfather and Children Asphyxiated While Mrs. Cruger Bought Xmas Gifts

Mrs. Frederick G. Cruger, wife of a policeman attached to the Madison Street Station, left her home on the third floor of 108 Norwood Avenue, East New York, yesterday afternoon, to join her husband and do some Christmas shopping. She left her two little children, Dorothy, 4 years old, and Edna, 2 years, in charge of their grandfather, Alonzo Cruger.

Henry Koehler, who occupies the flat under that of the Crugers, smelled gas about 9 o'clock and started to investigate. He aroused others in the house and they traced the escaping gas to the Cruger apartment. Knocking at the door brought no response and they broke it in.

The place was filled with gas. On the kitchen floor lay the grandfather. Near him lay little Dorothy. She evidently had attempted to get to the door and had fallen. In the dining room on a lounge lay Edna. All were dead.

The gas was found to be escaping from an open cock on a jet behind the boiler in the kitchen, where an attachment could have been made with a gas stove. The police believe that Cruger, who was 69 years old, hung up a heavy pair of iron tongs, which he had been using about the stove, in such a way that it opened up the gas flow.

Half an hour after the bodies had been found Mrs. Cruger returned home alone, her husband having remained in Manhattan. The mother carried in her arms the toys she had purchased for the children for Christmas presents.

William Cruger, her brother-in-law, met her at the house door and on a pretext got her to accompany him to his home at 146 Hale Street. There she was told of the death of her family. She broke down and for a time it was thought grief would make her insane.

OPENS PHILOSOPHERS' HALL.

Staten Island Has a Log Cabin In Which They May Meditate Free.

"I propose to erect from the trees growing in the forest of Emerson Hills, a log cabin, 12 by 22 feet on the inside, with three windows, one door, and an open fireplace with earthen floor. The cabin is not to be occupied as a residence, but as a temporary place of retreat and contemplation for lovers of nature, statesmen with political futures before them and behind them, those wishing to reflect on the gratitude of future generations and the ingratitude of the present and past generations, for thinkers generally, and philosophers born as such or grown to be such by the trials of professional, commercial, political, and social strife and defeats."

These are the specifications filed with John Seaton, Superintendent of Buildings of the Borough of Richmond, by Cornelius G. Kolff, Secretary of the Richmond Holding Company and of the Staten Island Chamber of Commerce, for a log cabin that has just been built for him by Robert Williams, a Virginia negro, employed on his place. The cabin now stands in a clearing in the woods on the slope of the hill, about 500 feet south of Mr. Kolff's own fine home. It has the regulation old-fashioned pitch roof and latchstrings of the old Virginia log cabin.

Mr. Kolff says he has already sent out invitations to all the prominent men of the country to come to the cabin and do their meditating. To each of them, he says, he has promised the use of a corncob pipe to be hung on the wall under his name, after the meditation is done, in case he wants it for a second spell.

The cabin is to be called "Philosophers' Hall."

Mr. Kolff, in addition to his hobby of helping great men, deals in and booms Staten Island real estate.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1.—The Harvard Alumnus Directory was issued today. The catalogue which contains the names, present addresses and other interesting matter about the vast army that calls Harvard Alma Mater was compiled by Jerome D. NEW HAVEN, Dec. 1.—The directory of the living non-graduates of Yale University for 1910, just published, contains 6,872 names. Over one-half of those listed have unspecified vocations, but the mercantile business shows 564. Next ranks the ministry with 366; manufacturing, with 360; educational work, with 343; law, 345, and finance, 321. The smallest group is that of science, which number is 30.

REWARD FOR PEARY.

Taft Urged to Suggest One, but Has Not Decided to Act.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Taft daily is being urged to recommend to Congress some suitable recognition of Capt. Robert E. Peary of the Navy for his polar discovery.

Various forms of reward have been suggested, but as yet the President has not indicated what his course in the matter will be.

CABINET APPROVES LONG TAFT MESSAGE

Final Draft of Document Containing More Than 30,000 Words Goes to the Printer.

MONEY BILLS ARE RUSHED

Committees Prepare Appropriations Early Because House Rules Permit More Consideration of Them.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Taft to-day completed his annual message and sent it to the Government printing office in its final form. It was laid before the Cabinet at a special session which began at 10 o'clock this morning and lasted until nearly 3 in the afternoon. The President went over every feature of the document with the Cabinet advisors and it is said that some changes were made at their suggestion, principally in matters affecting their own departments.

The message is said to be an unusually long one, the estimates running from 30,000 to 40,000 words.

President Taft will send a special message to Congress next week embodying the report of the Board of Engineers appointed to examine irrigation and reclamation projects in the West. At the last session of Congress $20,000,000 was appropriated to complete the various worthy projects and Mr. Taft appointed a board to decide just what projects should be continued and what, if any, should be abandoned.

Opposition to the fortification of the Panama Canal, as the President will recommend in his message, developed to-day from an unexpected quarter. Representative Roberts of Massachusetts, a member of the Naval Committee, believes that the navy itself can defend the canal much better than forts. His plan is to keep a fleet of submarines—fifty at each end of the canal—and let them be responsible for the safety of the passes. This Government has never gone very widely into the purchase of submarines, and it is not likely that any strong sentiment will form in favor of the plan. Mr. Roberts is a graduate of Annapolis.

The opening of the short session of Congress next Monday will find appropriation bills in shape for earlier action than in any recent year. These must all originate in the House of Representatives, and the committees of that body are now at work upon them, with prospects of having several of them ready for the first week of the session.

The River and Harbor Committee of the House began work yesterday on its $30,000,000 appropriation bill and Representative Alexander of New York, Chairman of the committee, expects to have the measure ready within a week.

The Indian Affairs committee began consideration of the Indian Appropriation bill to-day. It will carry about $9,000,000 for the support of Indians and their institutions. Representative Burke, Chairman of the committee, expects to have it ready for consideration Monday.

Many of the separate appropriation bills originate with the appropriations committee, of which Representative Tawney is Chairman. Sub-committees of that body are now at work upon the bill which carries funds for the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the Government, and the measure providing for funds for the District of Columbia. Both of these will be ready for the House before the Christmas recess.

The unusual activity upon the appropriation bills is due to changes in the rules of the House which make it impossible for appropriation bills to have as speedy consideration as in the past.

OUT WINDOW FROM ARREST.

With Detectives Holding His Heels Fugitive Hung Over 42d Street.

A cry and a crash of shattered glass in a front window on the fourth floor of 350 West Forty-second Street early last night made every one in the street below glance up in time to see a man plunge head first through the window. Those in the street cried out, too, expecting to see the man crash to the pavement, but suddenly four hands appeared through the shattered window pane, grasping the man's feet, and two frightened faces showed above them.

"Come and help us. We're out! We can't hold him long!" shouted one of the men in the window, and half a dozen men, including a policeman of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, dashed up the stairs to the fourth floor.

In the front room they found Detectives Kesselmark and Moonan and a third man still tugging at a pair of boots at the window sill. The detectives' hands were streaming with blood where the jagged glass had cut them. With the aid of the newcomers the detectives dragged their man back into the room.

"Rather death than arrest!" he kept screaming, but the angry detectives quieted him. He was Gino Brunello, a waiter, who lived in this room of the boarding house. The detectives had entered suddenly to arrest him on complaint of Frank Monaco, another waiter, living in the same place, at whom he was charged with having pointed a revolver in an altercation on Wednesday night.

THEIR LEGS AT A FACTORY.

Therefore Two Men Couldn't Get to Court to Answer Complaints.

For want of a leg each two men were unable to get to the Gates Avenue Police Court in Brooklyn yesterday to answer to complaints against them. Magistrate Geismar was startled when the first of the two cases was called and a brother of the accused man stepped forward with the statement:

"Your Honor, he can't get here because one of his legs has been sent to the factory to be repaired."

"Don't attempt to trifle with this court, young man," warned the Magistrate, frowning.

"I ain't trifling, Judge," returned the man; "the leg is of wood and it got out of working order yesterday."

Then the second case was called. A man who said he was a friend of the accused stepped forth and gave a like excuse for the latter's failure to appear.

"Well," said the court to the brother and the friend, "you tell those men they'll have to be here next Thursday if they have to hop to court on one leg each."

ILL WIFE A SUICIDE TO SAVE HUSBAND

LEFT TWO NOTES BEHIND

One Was to Her Husband, a War Department Clerk, Other to Doctor Regretting Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The clear conviction that by living she would endanger the lives of those dear to her, led Mrs. Lena W. Shunk, wife of Alonzo W. Shunk, an expert clerk in the War Department, to end her life by inhaling gas yesterday afternoon at her home in this city.

Her affliction was tuberculosis, and for the last two years she had made a brave struggle against it, Mr. Shunk devoting himself loyally to the effort. Mrs. Shunk had spent nearly the entire year living out of doors in the mountains of Virginia, sleeping in the open air and endeavoring by long walks and various exercises to build up her health and ward off the slow encroachment of the disease. She was a woman of charm and culture and between herself and her husband there was an affection that seemed ideal to their friends and all who observed them.

She was found sitting in her chair, and by her side was a student's lamp which she had turned out to wait for death to come. On the table lay a note to her husband and another to her physician, which was as follows:

"Because you have been so good and kind to me during my illness I want you to know why I am 'turning out the light.' If there was any hope of recovery I would not. Life holds something so precious that it is a great pleasure to live. But I must not cheat myself or others about me to whom I would become a menace.

"Why I did not die last Summer I cannot understand. Fate was unkind. I hope I have not delayed too long. But it is hard, so hard, to do it."

The note to her husband has not been made public.

Mr. Shunk is one of the most trusted employes of the office of Major Gen. Fred C. Ainsworth, the Adjutant General of the army, and is regarded as probably the best-informed and most accurate expert on fingerprints in this country.

TWO MEN LOCKED IN A VAULT.

Narrowly Escaped Suffocation While Other Clerks Worked to Release Them

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 1.—Accidentally locked in one of the large steel vaults in the new million dollar municipal building, Clarence Kilpatrick and Chauncey Rogers, attachés of the City Engineer's department, had a narrow escape from being suffocated to-day and were only rescued after hard work by those who went to their assistance.

The young men entered the vault to obtain some papers, and some one closed the door. Unable to get out the clerks pounded on the massive barrier and shouted for help. A half hour passed, and their cries were heard by B. F. Stratton, who was passing the door of the office. The imprisoned men tried to tell him the secret combination, but he could not master it, and several others tried in vain. At last William L. Vandewater, a clerk in the office of the Board of Assessors, was successful, and Kilpatrick and Rogers were released.

A WEDDING SURPRISE PARTY.

Young Couple Are Married Before Guests Gathered for Dinner.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Dec. 1.—Before the astonished guests at a dinner party assembled to-day to plan for their marriage next June Miss Marion Ford Oliver and Sylvester Slater Garwood, Jr., an officer of the Neidich Process Company, announced their determination to wed at once, and before the witnesses had recovered from their surprise the knot had been tied by the Rev. Dr. T. M. Eastwood of the First Baptist Church. The couple left at once for a honeymoon in New England.

"It seemed too long till June and we to Miss Helen Deering of Philadelphia, decided not to wait," the bride explained who was to have been her maid of honor, and the five young women who were invited to be bridesmaids. The guests had been summoned to a dinner at the home of Samuel A. Neidich, President of a manufacturing company and a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, to arrange details for the wedding. The bride and bridegroom decided to make no changes in the arrangements for the dinner, but no one was told of their plan to wed except the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund D. Oliver. Mr. and Mrs. Neidich, and the clergyman.

DEATH IN TRACK OF STORM.

Blizzard Sweeps Over Pittsburg, Killing One and Injuring a Dozen.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 1.—Death, serious injury, and much suffering attended a blizzard which struck Pittsburg early this morning and continued all day.

Blinded by the snow, William M. Dankley, while searching for work this forenoon, stepped on a gutter which had been frozen over and fell so hard that his neck was broken, causing instant death. About a dozen persons were seriously injured during the day by falling on ice or over obstructions which they could not see. Different relief associations report great suffering among the poorer classes. Trains from both the East and West were delayed, not reaching Pittsburg until long after their scheduled time.

INTERLAKEN, N. Y., Dec. 1.—A blizzard is raging in this part of Seneca County to-day. Six inches of snow have fallen and trains are late. The mercury is down to 26 above zero.

12 PERSONS INJURED IN FERRYBOAT CRASH

A STRONG TIDE THE CAUSE

It Swept the Pennsylvania's St. Louis Into the Path of Her Sister Ship, the Cincinnati.

Twelve persons were injured and 200 passengers were thrown almost into a panic when the incoming and outgoing Pennsylvania ferryboats between Desbrosses Street and Jersey City collided late yesterday afternoon off the Jersey City slip.

The St. Louis had left New York on her 5:55 trip with some 200 passengers aboard, and was within 100 feet of her destination when the Cincinnati started to leave her slip. There was a strong flood tide, and the St. Louis was carried directly into the path of the Cincinnati.

The bow of the Cincinnati crashed into the forward part of the women's cabin of the St. Louis. Four windows and all of the crib work of the St. Louis, between the lower and upper decks, was torn away by the force of the collision.

The shock threw many of the passengers of the St. Louis from their feet. Women screamed and several tried to jump overboard.

When Capt. Milton Decker and his men restored order, the St. Louis resumed her journey and discharged her passengers at her pier at Jersey City. The injured were removed from the boat and taken to the office of the Superintendent of Ferries, where their injuries were attended to by Dr. Hart, the railroad company's physician. The injured were:

ELTING, ANNA, 40 years old, 195 York Street, Jersey City; cut and bruised about the right side of the body; sent to St. Francis Hospital.

SPARBERG, SARAH, 40 years old, 140 North Sixth Street Brooklyn; fractured nose and cuts about the face and hands.

SASS, JOHANNA, 25 years old, 905 Kearney Avenue, Jersey City; left leg cut and bruised.

The three latter were sent home in carriages by the railroad company after their injuries had been attended to.

Among the slightly injured who refused to go to a hospital, and were assisted home by friends were May Eagle, 18 years old, 313 Fourth Street, Jersey City; Mary Burke, 46 years old, 707 Hudson Boulevard, Bayonne, N. J.; May Ward, 35 years old, 101 Railroad Avenue, Jersey City, and Cecile Muller, who refused her address. There were four others who refused their names.

The Cincinnati carried few passengers at the time of the collision, and when Thomas Barker, her Captain, saw that he could be of no assistance to the St. Louis he took his boat to her slip in New York. The St. Louis, after the accident, was taken out of commission and sent to the Pennsylvania Railroad drydock at the foot of Fourteenth Street, Hoboken, for repairs.

LAWYER STRANGELY MISSING.

Advertisement Urges Him to Communicate with His Home.

Edgar K. Brown, please communicate with your home at once about your mother's estate. Also telephone 5935 John.

This advertisement appeared in a White Plains daily newspaper yesterday. It disclosed the fact that Mr. Brown, a Westchester lawyer, has not been at his office in White Plains or at his home in Mount Vernon in seven weeks. Although Mrs. Brown admitted last night that her husband had been away for some time, she said there was no mystery about it.

"I have had several letters from him," said she, "and I know he will soon return and explain everything to his friends."

"The advertisement," she said, "refers only to a personal affair and there is nothing sensational about it."

She declined to say when she had heard from her husband last and what his address was at that time. His friends seem to think it strange that he has not been at his office at the county seat in such a long time. Few men are better known in Westchester County than Mr. Brown.

SCARE ABOARD THE MOMUS.

Excited Man with a Rifle Sends Other Passengers to Cover in a Hurry.

There was one exciting incident on the voyage of the Momus from New Orleans, which ended here yesterday. Among the passengers was George Howard, an engineer returning from Nicaragua to England. He evidently suffered from his tropical experiences, for at 10 o'clock on Saturday night he came out of his room scantily clad and armed with a rifle. Some of the passengers saw him coming and ran out on deck, crying a warning as they ran.

To stewards who ran up Howard confided that he was being followed. "Things" were after him, he said. He submitted to being disarmed and was led back to his room.

CUMMINS TO FIGHT YOUNG.

Again Declares That a Progressive Should Be Elected Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 1.—Senator A. B. Cummins, before his departure for Washington to-day, again declared it to be the duty of a progressive Legislature to elect a progressive United States Senator to the seat made vacant by the death of Senator Dolliver.

This declaration is taken to mean that if Senator Lafayette Young, recently appointed by Gov. Carroll, is to be elected for the balance of Dolliver's term he must fight the Cummins forces. Mr. Young intimates in his Des Moines Capital that he is ready to fight, declaring he stands for party unity and not for faction. His followers say that a further factional fight would jeopardize the Republican chances in Iowa in 1912.

ADOPTS RECALL OF JUDGES.

Arizona Constitutional Convention Overwhelmingly for the Provision.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 1.—By an overwhelming vote the Arizona Constitutional Convention to-day included the judiciary in the provision for the recall. All Judges in the State are to be amenable to removal by the people.

Opponents of the measure declared the provision would preclude the acceptance of the Constitution by President Taft.

MAYOR ASSAILS CARNEGIE.

Misguided Multi-Millionaire, He Says, Whose Libraries Burden the Poor.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 1.—Mayor W. D. Davis at a banquet at the Texas Stationary Engineers' Association at Fort Worth openly attacked Andrew Carnegie's library system, declaring Carnegie a "poor, misguided multi-millionaire."

Mayor David said only the well-to-do visited libraries, and that the poor were compelled to bear the taxation due to their erection.

KATZENSTEIN IS INDICTED.

Rumor That Another Also Must Answer for Meat Thefts on Ward's Island

Simon Katzenstein, the Bronx bone and fat contractor, who is under charges of receiving meats stolen from the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane at Ward's Island, and for bribery, was indicted yesterday by the Grand Jury for grand larceny and receiving stolen property.

Although it could not be verified, rumors were current in the Criminal Courts Building that another man, who has not been arrested, was indicted for assisting in the fraud.

WAR CORRESPONDENT DEAD.

Dumais, Found Exhausted In Washington, Kept His Identity Secret.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Picked up on the street five weeks ago in an exhausted condition, Emil Dumais, 73 years old, once war correspondent in India and South Africa for The London Times, died to-day at a local hospital. He kept his identity a secret until the last moments of his life.

Dumais had stopped here on his way to Florida, where he hoped to recuperate from general ill health. He had been interested in agricultural problems, being the founder of the Manitoba Agricultural College, and the purpose of his visit here was to study the methods of the Department of Agriculture.

SAILS UP PANAMA CANAL.

Commodore Brown In the Visitor II. Said to Have Made First Trip.

Congressman Andrew J. Barchfield of Pennsylvania, arrived yesterday on the United Fruit Company's steamship Zacapa. Mr. Barchfield has been inspecting the Panama Canal as a vacation trip after a strenuous election.

"The canal will be finished a year before schedule time," he said, "and it may even be ready six months before that, though it will not be open to the world until January, 1915."

According to those who arrived on the Zacapa, Commodore Harry Brown of Pittsburg, won the honor of being first to sail into the canal, when on Nov 23d he sailed his yacht, The Visitor II., with Col. Goethals, ex-Mayor William Diehl of Pittsburg, Capt. Scott, H. W. Williams and others, aboard, up the canal as far as the Gatun locks and returned. The Visitor II. draws 17 feet of water.

ORDERS THREE PAPERS SOLD.

Or Else Indianapolis Star Company Must Pay $1,175,000 in Ten Days.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 1.—A decree ordering the sale of the property of the Star Publishing Company within sixty days in the event the floating indebtedness is not paid in ten days was issued by Judge Anderson in the Federal court on Thursday. The lowest bid which may be received at the sale, to be conducted by Edward Daniels, Master in Chancery, is $1,175,000 for the three papers of the company, The Terre Haute Star, Muncie Star, and Indianapolis Star, equipment and franchises. The sale is to be held in Indianapolis. In the decree is given a list of the debts and liabilities of the company, and their priority for payment from the purchase price.

Immediately following the filing of the court's order John Hart Payne, attorney for John C. Shaffer, filed an appeal to the Court of Appeals for the Seventh District, alleging that in the course of the litigation the court erred twenty-four times.

Milwaukee's Socialist Administration Starts Them Sunday—Ball to be Given

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 1.—The Municipal ball is to be repeated next Saturday at a cheaper price, and the Socialist administration will now start another similar movement, by giving a Municipal Sunday afternoon concert on next Sunday, at which a big orchestra will render a programme composed of both classical and popular music at the City Auditorium.

The concert also will furnish an opportunity to ambitious amateurs to get a public hearing.

The Milwaukee Sunday afternoon concert is rather novel in itself, for men, women, and children gather and drink beer while listening to orchestral selections. The Mayor proposes to conduct Sunday concerts instead of the private affairs which have been held in years gone by, and next Sunday's concert will be unusual in that while Christopher Bach is conducting an orchestra in the City Building, his son will be conducting an orchestra in the old Turn Halle, where Christopher himself for fifty years conducted the concerts.

HOLD NINE AS PUPILS OF LUPO THE WOLF

Secret Service Raids a Chrystie Street Cellar and Confiscates $1,000 as Counterfeit.

FEARS OTHER DENS EXIST

Detectives Think Young Disciples of the Old Counterfeiter Are Again Circulating Specimens of His Work.

Stuffed in the fireplace in a basement wine cellar in the rear of 86 Chrystie Street, Chief Richard H. Taylor of the Eastern Division of the United States Secret Service, with a corps of his agents and Lieut. Vachris, and Detectives Cavone and Micelli of the Italian Squad of the Detective Bureau found a package containing, they say, $1,000 in counterfeit $2 bills yesterday evening. Within a few minutes afterward the Secret Service men and detectives descended simultaneously on the homes of thirteen men, nine of whom they say are disciples of the notorious Lupo the Wolf-Morello gang, which was believed to have been broken up when Chief Flynn raided their counterfeiting camp in the country several months ago and arrested the principal counterfeiters. Most of the gangsters are now serving heavy sentences in the Federal prison at Atlanta.

At the time of the raid on the headquarters of the Lupo-Morello gang much counterfeit money and many counterfeiting plates were seized, and the Secret Service authorities believed they had broken up the gang and destroyed its supply of counterfeit bills. Presently, however, they discovered that more bills, of $2 and $5 denominations, apparently made from the same plates as the previous counterfeits, were being put into circulation. Then they decided that some younger branch of the gang must have escaped them, and that a secret "plant" of the old gang's counterfeit bills had been left in their hands.

Just how they managed to trace the counterfeit output to the Chrystie Street house and how they came to implicate all the men concerned, the Secret Service men refused last night to divulge. Just before dark, however, they called at Police Headquarters and induced Deputy Commissioner Flynn to assign Lieut. Vachris and the two Italian detectives to assist them in making the round-up.

They divided into several squads, and Chief Taylor, with Lieut. Vachris and several more, went to the Chrystie Street house. In the front of the building is a saloon which the police say is operated by Vincenzo D'Antonio of 123 Chrystie Street and Salvatore Sabatino, who lives in the place. They arrested both men and pushed back into a rear building on the premises. The basement of this is used as a wine cellar, also owned, the police say, by Sabatino and D'Antonio. Each of them, according to the police, had a key fitting the door of the cellar, and the police compelled them to open it.

In the cellar they found Michael Albanese, a porter, and arrested him. Chief Taylor then made straightway for a fireplace in a dark corner of the room and drew from this a package which, he says, contained $1,000 of the very $2 counterfeit bills his men had been tracing.

Meanwhile the other detachments of the police and Secret Service men had rounded up their quarry, and they now trooped into the wine cellar with their prisoners.

These were Vincenzo Perino, a druggist, of 9 Prince Street; Francesco De Sonna and his brother Modesto, both barbers, of 77 Chrystie Street; George Catania, who, the police say, is also known as "Morelli," a laborer, of 132 Chrystie Street; Rosario Tusso, a laborer, of 172 Chrystie Street, and Dominico Sapienza, a laborer, of 22 Stanton Street. These nine and four others were taken to Headquarters, and their names entered on the blotter as wanted by the Federal authorities.

In the midst of the taking of names, however, Chief Taylor picked out the four other men and ordered them released after their names had been entered on the blotter. He commanded them, however, to report without fail at the Customs House, Room 449, at 9 o'clock this morning. These four said they were Joseph Graziano, a shoemaker, of 76 East Third Street; Sebastino Quagente of 175 Chrystie Street; Giovanni De Gaitamo, a shoemaker, of 9 Prince Street, and Dr. Joseph Munna of 212 East Thirteenth Street.

According to Chief Taylor, all the nine prisoners have passed counterfeit bills, and he has plenty of evidence against all of them. Only one of the nine, however, had counterfeit money in his pockets when arrested, said the Chief.

Chief Taylor said last night that Modesto De Sonna was the ringleader of the remnant of the old gang, and that D'Antonio was his chief agent. Porino, he said, acted as go-between to spread the money among outsiders. The Secret Service men believe the money in most cases was sold in bunches at a rate considerably lower than its face value, the buyers thus becoming parties to the crime. All the bills, said Chief Taylor, were very skillful imitations, and might have passed suspicion among any but experts. The old Lupo-Morello gang were artists at their work. All told, said the Chief, about $7,000 has been distributed.

Whether there are any other branches of the old gang extant the police and Secret Service men could not say last night. Owing to the fact that much of the counterfeit money recently "shoved" into circulation was of five-dollar denomination, whereas that seized last night was of only two-dollar, they think there may be other hiding places, possibly in charge of more young disciples of the old masters of the "queer." The prisoners last night, they think, were minor members of the old Lupo-the-Wolf brood, some of whom probably had been in the confidence of their elders and knew where the ready-made money lay concealed. No plates or other evidences of recent manufacture of the counterfeit bills were found last night.

Although none of the prisoners last night is known to the police in connection with the notorious "barrel murder" of several years ago, as was Lupo and several of his chums taken in the last raid, the detectives say the nine arrested are all dangerous men.

The Lupo-Morello gang was probably the most skillful as well as the most dangerous gang of counterfeiters in this country, according to the police. Most of its members had had an intimate acquaintance with the police and prisons in their own country, and came here burdened with a long pedigree of crimes. So skillfully did they ply their trade that although the police, under the late Lieut. Petrosino, had them under constant surveillance, it was impossible to convict any of them until the raid made by the Secret Service men last year. Petrosino himself spent night after night on the roofs of the homes of many of the members of the gang or eavesdropping in their halls, but never could obtain the evidence he sought.

The leaders of the gang had half of Little Italy in fear of them, and time and again the police were balked by having some otherwise innocent man betray them to the gang just before they acted, that he thereby might curry favor with the gang and be spared future persecution. Black Hand blackmail was one of the side issues of many members of the gang.

Ignazio Lupo (the Wolf) finally lost his bravado and burst into tears under a sentence of thirty years in the United States Court last February, and his partner, Morello, wept as sincerely and penitently under a term of twenty-five years. Six other members of the gang were convicted at the same time and sent for shorter terms to Atlanta Prison. The sentences of the eight aggregated 150 years.

CITY CAN BORROW $233,114,000 MORE

In the Next Five Years This Sum Will Be Available for Subways and Other Uses.

TAX BOARD GIVES FIGURES

President Purdy Estimates Advance in Real Estate Values Against Given Debt Limit at $1,725,000,000.

It developed yesterday from a report made to the Board of Estimate by the Tax Department, supplemented by action taken by the board itself releasing the bonds issued by the city in connection with the extension of the Interborough Subway to Brooklyn, that the city will have $233,114,000 borrowing capacity to use in the next five years for subways and other municipal purposes. The total five years' borrowing capacity is made up of $57,000,000 which the city has at present set apart for subway development because created by the release of the city bonds issued to build the present Subway; $172,500,000 new borrowing capacity to be created through the increase of taxable values from 1911 to 1915 and $3,614,000 to be presently released in connection with the interborough extension to Brooklyn.

The estimate which President Lawson Purdy of the Tax Board sent over to the Board of Estimate was pursuant to a resolution passed by the latter body last week calling on the various city departments to submit estimates so far as possible of their requirements for issues of corporate stock during 1911 and on during the next five years up to 1915. The Tax Department, meantime, was asked to prepare an estimate of the city's borrowing capacity which might be reasonably counted upon in the same period.

It is not intended that all this borrowing capacity shall be consumed in the construction of subways, although the $57,000,000 which the city now has and the $3 614,000 additional to be obtained by releasing from the debt limit computation the bonds issued for the construction of the Interborough's Brooklyn extension, can, under the holding of the municipal authorities, be used for no other purpose. But the possession of such a debt limit margin will ease the city with respect to subway building, and the receipt of the estimates from the various city departments will enable the Board of Estimate to form some kind of an idea how much of the total increase will be needed for purposes other than the building of subways.

The Way It Is Figured.

Mr. Purdy figures that the enhancement in the values of taxable real estate in the next five years will be about $1,725,000,000. Inasmuch as the constitutional provision limits the city's debt, computed for debt limit purposes, to 10 per cent. of the total taxable value of real estate, it follows that 10 per cent. of the increased taxable values in any given period will represent the city's borrowing capacity within such a time. In his communication to the Board of Estimate yesterday President Purdy had this to say on the subject:

> While the increase for 1911 is based upon work partly performed, and may, therefore, be considered as a minimum, the estimates for the following years depend very largely upon the reasonable extension of rapid transit facilities and fairly good industrial conditions. The actual increase may considerably exceed the estimate should great industrial prosperity prevail during the next five years, accompanied by far-reaching extensions of rapid transit facilities.

The work of the Deputy Tax Commissioners in making up the assessment for 1911 has not progressed far enough to enable the board to make any exact statement of the increases in the assessed valuation of real estate in 1911, but it has sufficiently progressed to enable the board to predict with reasonable certainty that the increase will considerably exceed the amount of $600,000,000.

Mr. Purdy's calculation shows this estimated annual increment in taxable real estate values during the next five years:

1911.....	$600,000,000	1914.....	$300,000,000
1912.....	225,000,000	1915.....	300,000,000
1913.....	300,000,000

The extra increase for 1911 results from the Mayor's determination to have the assessments hereafter equalized in all parts of the city, and not continue on the unequal basis on which they are determined at present. Mr. Purdy believes that the 1911 increase may amount to as much as $700,000,000, and that the figures which he gave to the Board of Estimate are well within what will be the city's actual borrowing power.

More Interborough Plans.

Yesterday's daily crop of Subway reports brought out the assertion that the Interborough's plans will include, in addition to the Manhattan and Bronx extensions, an extension in Brooklyn from the present terminus out Flatbush Avenue to prospect Park, in addition to the new tunnel to Brooklyn contained in their offer of last June, and extensions in Queens from the end of the Steinway tunnel. This development relating to Queens is covered in part by the agreement already reached between the Interborough and the Public Service Commission covering the operation of the Steinway tunnel.

That agreement provides for a five-cent fare through the Steinway tunnel and the Interborough Subway to all parts of the Interborough system, but does not extend beyond the Long Island City end of the Steinway tube. The elevated extensions in the Bronx are also now under agreement between the Interborough and the Public Service Commission, these extensions, along with the third trackings of the Second, Third, and Ninth Avenue elevated lines, being scheduled to cost about $30,000,000, which the company is undertaking to provide on its own credit.

There are at present in Queens various organizations of a civic nature which have been loudly demanding transit facilities, and if the Interborough offer includes Queens extensions it will undoubtedly make a strong bid for this support. It is not understood at the present time that the Interborough, in connection with this offer, will bid on the operation of the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn, as to which William G. McAdoo is now preparing a bid, but the terms of the bid which Mr. McAdoo submits to the city are expected to have much to do with the attitude of the Interborough in this direction.

Mr. McAdoo held another conference with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission yesterday, and a delegation from the Triborough League called at the offices of the commission. As Chairman Willcox was then busy with Mr. McAdoo, Commissioners Eustis and Bassett received the Triboroughites. Commissioner Eustis told the delegation that he did not believe the commission needed prodding, as it was working with every possible speed on the triborough contracts to get them into shape for submission to the Board of Estimate.

Assurances from Commissioner.

The Commissioner was asked when the contracts would go over, and he said:

"I cannot give any definite date, but I shall be very much disappointed if they are not awarded by the 1st of January—speaking of such contracts as we may send over with reference to the city's present borrowing capacity."

Commissioner Eustis added that the Canal Street crosstown link of the triborough unquestionably would not be among the contracts at this time, on account of the very heavy cost of construction through a district where practically all the work has to be done below the water level.

Frank Joyce, a representative of the Central Federated Union, then made this suggestion:

"There is an impression abroad that the members of the commission may be displaced after January and new Commissioners appointed, who will have to familiarize themselves with the situation. That would mean delay. It is important, therefore, that contracts be awarded before Jan. 1."

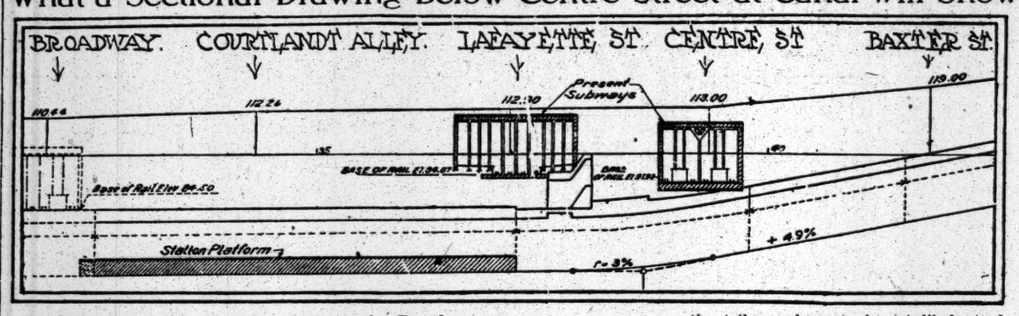
"Well, we will transact all the business we can," replied Commissioner Eustis. "I, for one, if I should be displaced, want to leave a clean desk, and I believe that is the sentiment of the other members of the commission."

B. H. Hart of South Brooklyn wanted to know if the commission was waiting for an offer from the Interborough before awarding the contracts, and Commissioner Eustis replied that, so far as he knew, no member of the commission was in this position. He suggested to Commissioner Bassett that he express his views. Commissioner Bassett said:

"It is well known that if I had my way I would recast the entire route, but my views do not prevail. After the matter has been decided I stand with the commission and am ready to take the next step."

THREE LAYERS OF SUBWAY

What a Sectional Drawing Below Centre Street at Canal Will Show



This drawing shows a longitudinal section of the Canal Street crosstown subway as laid out by the Public Service Commission between Centre Street and Broadway. Under Centre Street the cross section of the Bridge Loop tube appears; next comes the present Interborough Subway under Lafayette Street, and finally the Broadway-Lexington Avenue subway under Broadway.

The plan provides for a station platform about 480 feet long between Lafayette Street and Broadway, with an entrance into each subway at either end. This station platform, according to the plans, is about nineteeen feet below the level of the Broadway subway.

The Canal Street crosstown section of the triborough route is not likely to be built in the near future. It is not included in the bid of William G. McAdoo for the operation of the triborough subway with certain modifications, and on account of the great cost the Public Service Commission is not planning to award the contract for its construction in the near future.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ACTS.

Will Appoint a Committee to Help Public Enlightenment on Subways.

The Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting yesterday acted on the suggestion of Mayor Gaynor that it take up the Subway problem and help in the public enlightenment. According to the expressed ideas of the Mayor the committee which the President of the Chamber was authorized yesterday to appoint will be chosen to co-operate with the Merchants' Association. As A. Barton Hepburn, the new President of the Chamber, pointed out after the resolution empowering him to act was unanimously carried, the committee to be appointed will report to the Mayor.

Dock Commissioner Calvin Tomkins urged upon the Chamber the necessity for making sure that in whatever solution of the subway problem was accepted the city's control of its subway transit be maintained. He offered a resolution, which was carried, directing the special committee to report promptly whether "extensions to the present subway, or provisions for a new subway system susceptible of independent operation" will best further the city's "continuous control of its passenger transportation policy," which he said was an essential of the city's development.

"Extensions to the present subway will provide some transit quicker and cheaper than can be obtained in any other way.

"Extensions to the present subway will permit of interchangeability of traffic, transfers, and unity of plan and service, more effectively than in any other way. With such extensions, however, serve to maintain and extend the control which the city now exercises over its subway transit?

"Control is the vital thing.

"There will and should be monopoly. Shall it be public or private? For dividends and promotion profits, or for public convenience and to serve the city's growing needs?

"The importance of public control far transcends all questions of routes or finance.

"The principal argument advanced against modernizing the waterfront of Manhattan (the problem of the Dock Department) is that such improvement will tend to still further congestion in streets and terminals.

"This will be the inevitable result unless the city shall control its passenger traffic to the end that it may supplant a Manhattan proletariat by a decent outliving population which shall daily flow in and out of this central borough quickly and cheaply."

GOVERNORS PLAN MOREWORK

Conference Adjourns with Regrets That So Little Has Been Done.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 1.—After starting a movement to put the next conference of Governors on a businesslike basis and to establish permanent headquarters where programmes will be arranged so as to insure better results, the third annual conference of Governors adjourned here late this afternoon.

Some opposition to adjournment was expressed, as so much of the time had been taken up with social functions. Next year the programme will include more real work and fewer dinners and receptions.

The plan of organization advanced by Gov. Sloan of Arizona and adopted in executive session is that the present Committee on Arrangements, of which Gov. Fort of New Jersey is Chairman, draft a statement of the objects of the conference for presentation to each Legislature and that an appropriation be asked of each for maintenance. Future sessions will last a week.

This plan was adopted to get away from the haphazard manner in which the conferences have been conducted and with a view of making them more beneficial.

Miss Laura Clay, President of the Kentucky Equal Rights Association, made an appeal to the Governors to recommend equal suffrage to their Legislatures.

FATALLY BITTEN BY RAT.

Child Dying from Blood-Poisoning After Attack by Big Rodent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—With fourteen rat bites on her body Liebe Lewis, the 2-year-old daughter of M. Lewis of this city, is dying of blood poisoning.

Mrs. Lewis was awakened one night by the child's cries. Lighting the gas, she saw a big rat disappear. A physician was summoned and the wounds were cauterized, but the child did not escape infection.

Plumbers Fined for Conspiracy.

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 1.—In the United States Court here to-day ten local plumbers and the Ahrens & Ott Manufacturing Company of Louisville, Ky., pleaded guilty to a technical violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. Each was fined approximately $15 and costs. The accused were indicted more than two years ago for conspiracy in restraint of trade for agreeing with the National Plumbers' Association of the United States not to sell to a plumber in Mobile who was not a member of the Master Plumbers' Association.

JEW AND CHRISTIAN CAN'T UNITE, HE SAYS

Jacob H. Schiff Declares Joint Meetings Give False Ideas of Relations of Different Religions.

KINGDOM OF GOD NOT YET

While One Part of Christendom Treats Jews with Injustice It Is Useless to Attempt to Merge the Creeds.

Jacob H. Schiff, referring last night to a recent occasion in this city when Jews and Christians met in common worship, deprecated it on the ground that it was likely to give false ideas of the true relations of different religions, and expressed the opinion that while one part of Christendom treats Jews with injustice and cruelty, it is useless to declare that the kingdom of God has come.

He was speaking at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Lexington Avenue and Ninety-second Street, at a meeting called by the Educational Committee of the Jewish Community of New York City, or the Kehilah. He was introducing the Rev. Dr. Magnes, and took occasion to express his own hearty support of the idea of a representative Jewish body to deal with Jewish questions and defend Jewish interests.

It was, he said, a great task to organize an American Israel, from Jews coming from almost every part of the world, with their own languages, their own customs, and their own ideas of Judaism.

"We need," he went on, "to encourage the philanthropic and charitable efforts of our people. We need to have respect for religious movements within Judaism in whatever form they take expression.

"I say advisedly within Judaism, for I draw the line—and have every right and duty to do so—at efforts to introduce other than Jewish worship into our camp. This we deprecate, even when done for laudable purposes, not alone because we need to carefully guard our own fences, but also because we have too much respect for the religion of others to permit them to be brought under the mistaken impression the time has arrived for a common religious platform upon which Jew and Gentile can unite.

"The distant future may bring even this, and, indeed, I pray for it, but as long as Christianity means to a large number of our coreligionists oppression and prejudice, if not persecution, the Kingdom of God has not arrived on earth, nor has the brotherhood of man become an actuality."

Dr. Magnes discussed and answered the opposition that had revealed itself among Jews to the establishment of the Kehilah. Some of the old conservative Jews, he said, had maintained that they had already benevolent institutions of every kind and they asked: "Is it not well with Zion? Why disturb its peace?" He replied that it is not well, and that even if individual institutions are doing well, it is not well with individual Jews.

"Our means," he said, "are not strong enough to meet the needs of the Jewish community. We can only make them strong enough by organization. Jews in smaller cities realize that they are a real Kehilah, but we have grown away from that ideal, and must bring it back again. We do not want to ignore our differences, but to look beyond them and to show that Jews of all opinions and all nationalities are in the same boat and have common interests."

Then Dr. Magnes said there was opposition from new arrivals in this country, but he declared that if New York had had its Kehilah 25 years ago it might have got rid of some of the elements that are undermining the Jewish people today.

"Then," went on the speaker, "there are those who consider that a Kehilah is dangerous and unwise. There are those who have not yet escaped from the Ghetto, who fear that non-Jewish citizens will protest against us for organizing as Jews to meet certain Jewish problems.

"After all, we are Jews, and we have Jewish interests and problems and must face them. You are all good Jews, and I tell you that you can be good Jews and good citizens at the same time, and that Judaism is not incompatible with patriotism. We in Jewry may teach the State something by understanding Jewish problems, and we shall be able better to cooperate with others for the betterment of the State by studying the questions that confront our own people."

It was announced yesterday that Dr. Wise would preach on Sunday morning, Dec. 4, before the Free Synagogue, on the topic: "Can Jew and Christian Unite in Worship?" The address will be a reply to the criticisms directed against the union services of the Free Synagogue, the Church of the Divine Paternity, and the Church of the Messiah.

TESTIFIES FOR YEANDLE.

Prisoner Tells of Conversation of Juror Accused of Taking a Bribe.

The trial of George W. Yeandle, the juror who is charged with having accepted a bribe in the trial of Edward T. Rosenheimer, whose automobile killed Miss Grace Hough on Aug. 18, was resumed before Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday.

Charles M. Meeker, Yeandle's cellmate in the Tombs, who is awaiting extradition for larceny, was called by the defense to contradict the testimony given by George Krakauer, another prisoner in the Tombs, who testified that Yeandle asked him to take the stand in his behalf and say that Timindorfer, Yeandle's former friend, had told him the case was a frame-up.

Meeker said that he was present at the time the alleged conversation took place, and that no mention was made about Krakauer giving any testimony whatever, and that Krakauer had said that he felt the deepest sympathy for Yeandle.

Autonoupolos Loses Fruit Stand.

John D. Antonoupolos, owner of the flower, fruit, and soda stand beneath the Manhattan end of the Brooklyn Bridge, lost his suit against Park Commissioner Stover yesterday. Supreme Court Justice Whitney decided that he was not entitled to the injunction restraining the Commissioner from ousting him from his vantage point in the centre of traffic.

EXTENSION FOR LINEN FIRM.

Committee Arranges Installment Settlement for John Pullman & Co.

The corporation of John Pullman & Co., capitalized at $400,000, linen merchants at 515 Broadway, has entered into an arrangement with its creditors, it was announced yesterday, for an extension of time and for the liquidation of its debts through a committee made up of John S. Van Cleaf of the National Park Bank, Edwin S. Schenck of the Citizens' Central Bank, and a third member in Boston.

The corporations, one of the members of this committee said yesterday, is abundantly solvent, but it is stocked up with merchandise and was not in a position to make immediate payment on its maturing obligations. The liabilities of the company are placed at about $435,000, while its assets, including stocks of linen goods, amount to between $600,000 and $650,000.

It is proposed to pay off the company's debts in installments, 25 per cent. on April 1 next, 25 per cent. on Aug. 1, and the balance within one year.

The concern is one of the oldest in the linen trade in this city. It was founded by John Pullman in 1853, and was incorporated in 1892. William T. Pullman is President and Edward Love, Secretary and Treasurer.

LAMPTON DODGED THE FEAST

Says It's Enough to be a Guest of Honor Without Eating the Dinner.

The members of the "Ragged Edge" Club, who were described by the toastmaster, James Bliss Townsend, as people who desired to get away from the ordinary sordid course of life, gave a dinner last night at the Café Boulevard to Col. W. J. Lampton, the poet. One hundred and fifty men and women were present, the only absentee being the guest of honor. Zoe Anderson Norris, President of the organization, said it was the usual custom for the guests of honor to stay away from the Ragged Edge Club dinners. That was why they were so popular, she said.

When Col. Lampton did appear at 10:30 o'clock convoying a number of poetesses he had been entertaining in another room he refused to make a speech on the ground that it was enough to be the guest of honor at a Ragged Edge Club dinner without attending it. The women outnumbered the men by three to one, but every one seemed happy. A poet named Underwood read one of his own compositions, which he described as "after Kipling," but he did not give the mileage, and a young woman who was introduced as "the female Chauncey Depew" was asked to tell stories. The age of the anecdotes corresponded with that of the Senator.

SHE THREW ACID IN HIS FACE.

Salesman Severely Burned, but Won't Tell His Assailant's Name.

A woman stepped up to George Salzman, a salesman of 161 West 115th Street, in front of his home last night, and without a word threw a bottle of carbolic acid into his face. The acid ran down over both cheeks, and some of it got into Salzman's right eye. He ran screaming with pain into his house, and the woman fled to a near-by taxicab, jumped in, and was hurried away, disappearing east in 115th Street.

Salzman refused to say whether he knew the woman who had thrown the acid. He said he had had his injuries treated by a private physician and that while both cheeks were badly burned, his sight had not been impaired.

On the police blotter the acid-throwing was attributed to a Mrs. Meyer, living at 16 East 118th Street. At that address, however, no one could be found who knew the woman.

POLICE WERE ON THE SPOT.

Two Men in Cells for Demanding Patrolmen's Luncheon Money from Boy.

Fifteen-year-old Joseph Flutzi, the official bootblack of the East 104th Street Police Station, proved yesterday afternoon that the police are on hand when wanted.

The boy had been sent out as usual after the morning men returned from patrol, with 10 cents from each of them, making about $2 in all, to get sandwiches, milk, and other things for them for the regular afternoon luncheon in the rear room of the station. Loaded down with pitchers, pails, and responsibility, he reached Third Avenue and 104th Street. Suddenly, he says, two men rushed up to him and ordered him to hand over "that money." The boy dropped his pitchers with a crash and his pails with a clatter, and shouted at the top of his voice:

"I've got the cops' money! I've got the cops' money!"

Immediately Policeman Hartmeyer and the reserves of the East 104th Street Station stampeded from the station and in a twinkling the boy's two assailants were attesting the falsity of the popular misconception of the on-the-spotness of the police. They said they were John I. Sullivan, a plasterer, of 169 East 100th Street, and Mike Moriarty of 1,901 Second Avenue. Both were locked up on charges of assault.

MARRIED NOW AFTER LIFE IN THE CAVE

17-Year-Old Runaways from Newark Were Sentenced to Wed by Yonkers Judge.

AND ANGRY PARENTS RELENT

Diary of the Catskill Retreat Shows the Couple Had Flapjacks One Day —Down to Their Last 5 Cents.

The seventeen-year-old runaway couple, Lavere Tallman and Beatrice Sanders, whose friends already have given them the name of "The Babes in the Woods," because of the six weeks they spent in a cave in the Catskill Mountains, are now Mr. and Mrs. Lavere Tallman, much to their satisfaction. They were married last night in the home of Mrs. Emmeline Tallman, young Tallman's mother, at 128 Somerset Street, Newark, N. J., in the presence of Mrs. Tallman and Mr. and Mrs. William Sanders, parents of the bride, whose home is at 196 Clinton Avenue, Newark. The Rev. Lyman Whitney Allen, rector of the South Park Presbyterian Church, performed the ceremony.

The youngsters were actually sentenced to be married and no pronouncement could have given either greater joy, for it was only the fear that their parents might separate them that drove the youthful couple to a six weeks' life in the woods. It was Judge Matthew Ellis of Yonkers, N. Y., who gave the marriage sentence, and to see that it was fulfilled he even sent a policeman all the way from Yonkers to Newark for fear Mr. and Mrs. Sanders might change their minds.

It was in Police Headquarters, Yonkers, that Miss Sanders saw her parents yesterday for the first time since she and Lavere disappeared from Newark. Thither the boy and girl had been brought by the policeman who found them disconsolately munching some buns which they had purchased with their last five cents. Both tried to persuade the policeman that they were able to care for themselves and each gave a fictitious name at first. Presently, though, they broke down, and then the girl's parents were sent for.

The boy and girl were talking earnestly together when Mr. and Mrs. Sanders entered the police station. Young Tallman had just learned that his absence from home had made his mother ill, and he was dejected in consequence. Little Miss Sanders was trying to cheer him up.

Then into the station house walked her father and mother. For an instant the quartet gazed silently at each other. Then the mother held out her arms and with a little cry the girl ran into them. Mr. Sanders, still too angry readily to forgive his daughter, stood staring moodily into space. Young Tallman's eyes sought the floor, and he didn't raise them until his girl bride to be slipped from her mother's arms, ran to her father, kissing him and pleading with him, and finally seized Tallman's hand to drag him before her now forgiving parents.

But, before the youthful couple could go back to Newark in the care of Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, the charge of vagrancy that had been made against the youngsters first had to be settled. They were led into Special Sessions, where sat Judge Ellis. He had heard their story already and was waiting only for the opportunity to pronounce the sentence which he knew would gladden the hearts of the young people.

"I sentence you to be married at once," he declared in his most judicial voice.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanders previously had given their consent to the verdict, and the now-happy youngsters, with the elder couple and Sergt. Quinn, set out for Newark at once. It was 1:45 o'clock when the quintet boarded the train at Jersey City and presently the train pulled into the Market Street station. There Mrs. Sanders, with a kiss for her daughter, left it and hurried off to the shopping district for some bridal raiment. Mr. Sanders and the returned runaways continued to the South Street station, near-by the Sanders home. Lavere hurried then to his mother's house, returning with her presently to the Marriage License Bureau, in the City Hall, where Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, with their daughter, soon appeared. The young folks gave their correct ages this time, and Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and Mrs. Tallman gave their necessary consents to the marriage and the license was issued.

The wedding took place at 6 o'clock and once it was over, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders returned to their own home, Mr. Sanders announcing for the young couple that for a time at least they would make their home with Mrs. Tallman.

Tallman last night was ready enough to tell of their six weeks' adventure, but young Mrs. Tallman stood at his side and he only answered such questions as his girl bride directed. He had kept a diary after leaving Newark and in it both he and the girl had made frequent entries. Some of these told of the start of their elopement and of their arrival in the Catskill cave.

"Beatrice is a dandy cook and makes fine flapjacks," was recorded in one entry. There apparently were days, however, according to the diary when the cave dwellers had no flapjacks at all. There were records of trips to New York, looking for work, after the couple had been driven from Yonkers from their mountain retreat by the cold, and there was another entry telling how Tallman lost the only job he had been able to get in Yonkers. It was driving a delivery wagon, and he lost it apparently after the horse had run away with him twice.

"Got the grand bounce to-day," was the diary comment on the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Tallman said last night they didn't think they'd go on any honeymoon trip. They had had enough of traveling in the last six weeks.

Whitman at Albany to See Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 1.—District Attorney Whitman of New York and Gov. White were in conference in the Capitol for half an hour at noon to-day. Neither would divulge the nature of their talk. Mr. Whitman said it was "official business." Immediately after the conference Mr. Whitman left the city, presumably for New York.

TOOK GAS ON WEDDING EVE.

Bride-elect and Guests Wait in Vain for the Bridegroom.

George Loeffler, who was employed in a butcher shop at Lorimer and Conselyea Streets, Williamsburg, ended his life with illuminating gas early yesterday morning in rooms on the second floor of a private house at 28 Devoe Street, which he was to have occupied with his bride-to-be, Edith Saunders. She is an orphan and has been living with her guardian aunt, Mrs. Carrie McAllister, at 571 Lorimer Street.

Miss Saunders is employed as a stenographer and typewriter in a mercantile house in Manhattan and has known Loeffler for nearly two years. It was said that he had misrepresented his financial condition to the girl, but she didn't learn of this until Wednesday morning and when he called to see her she took him to task. It was not intended however that the misstatement should interfere with the wedding which was scheduled to take place in the evening in the First United Presbyterian Church at Rodney and South First Street. The Rev. Dr. T. A. McClelland was to have officiated.

When Loeffler parted from his fiancée he promised to return on Wednesday afternoon, but didn't appear. He had rented rooms a month ago in the second floor of the Devoe Street house and spent several hundred dollars in furnishing them.

Miss Saunders was all ready for the wedding, and her bridesmaid and guests were on hand at her home at 8 o'clock at night, but Loeffler didn't appear. The wedding was finally called off and after the guests were dismissed the bride-elect fell ill and yesterday went to Dover, N. J.

Miss Saunders's aunt went to the Devoe Street house yesterday to get some of the wedding gifts and return them to the senders. It was then that the suicide of Loeffler was discovered. He was wearing the clothes in which he was to have been married. In a button hole was a white carnation and on a finger of his left hand was the gold wedding ring that was to have been his bride's.

$52,000 FOR PRISON FUND.

Association Raises $27,000 to Match Smith Ely's Gift of $25,000.

An endowment fund of $52,000 has been raised by the Prison Association of New York to lend aid to discharged prisoners who show signs of reformation. Nearly half of the endowment fund was donated by Smith Ely.

A year ago Mr. Ely promised the Prison Association $25,000, provided a similar sum was raised by the organization by Dec. 1, 1910. The other subscriptions totaled $27,000.

Mr. Ely has announced that he will meet, dollar for dollar, any further contributions to the endowment fund, up to $25,000, and the Prison Association hopes to raise as much again.

One of the largest checks received, outside of Mr. Ely's gift, was for $2,500. Some of the contributions were as small as $1.

TWO JAILED AS FORGERS.

McDonald Says He's Related to the Contractor of the Same Name.

Walter McDonald, who says he is related to John B. McDonald, the contractor, and John S. Kerney, who was once head of the International Publishing Company, were sentenced for forgery by Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday. McDonald was sentenced to Elmira Reformatory while Kerney was sentenced to eleven months and twenty-nine days in the Penitentiary.

There were five indictments in each case charging the two men with passing worthless checks for small amounts. Several officers from the District of Columbia and Florida were in court when the men were sentenced, with warrants charging the two men with the same kind of operations.

DR. MOYER SURRENDERS.

Indicted with Dumphy for Selling $15,000 Stock They Didn't Own.

Dr. Frank M. Moyer, who was indicted jointly with Arthur A. Dumphy a short time ago for selling shares of Canadian mining stock, valued at $15,000, which did not belong to them, surrendered himself at the District Attorney's office yesterday.

It is charged that Dumphy and Moyer were in the employ of the National Protective Association of Williamsport, Penn., and sold the stock to the Anglo-South American Bank of 69 Wall Street.

Both men were arrested in Philadelphia and Moyer determined to fight extradition, but after considering the matter thought better of his decision and coming to this city yesterday surrendered himself. He gave bail for $2,000.

JUST A MYTHICAL LION

That Ate the Lascar and Terrorized a Ship's Crew—Only a Tame Cat Aboard

"There, like a monster cat peering into a pool, it stared aft at the following sea, then, straightened out, it dived overboard and was seen no more."

Capt. Henry Friedrich of the big German freighter Birkenfels, now at Bush's Stores, South Brooklyn, read just that far in a thrilling account, collected by special dispatch boat, of a battle with a man-eating lion on board his craft while on the high seas which appeared in a newspaper yesterday. Then he exploded. His remarks were so strong that the mates came running to see what was the matter. Among the things that excited the Captain was a graphic description of how the escaped lion ate one of his sailors, while the crew of Lascars "shuddered and crept away, as though they could still see their shipmate crushed and dying."

When the Captain sufficiently recovered he denied that he had ever had a lion on board. The only animal on the Birkenfels, the Captain's canary being hardly an animal, is a tomcat so tame the men have to shoo him away when they walk or he trips them up by rubbing against their legs.

The skipper said that the lion yarn was a good enough story if there only had been any basis for it. But the Hansa Line does not allow its officers to carry wild animals, and he was afraid that some one might take the story seriously.

BOY DIES FROM A BEATING.

One of a Group Attacked by Unknown Men Who Were Passing By.

While seventeen-year-old Robert Schroeder, Jr., the son of a well-to-do wholesale delicatessen dealer and large property owner of 475 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, was playing with three other boys in front of his home on Thanksgiving night, a fourth boy threw a shoe at a group of three men who were passing. The men thought Robert and his companions had thrown the shoe, and rushed at them and gave them a beating, with kicks added as a warning. Then they went away.

The Schroeder boy returned home, his face and body somewhat bruised, but not deeming himself badly hurt. He was unable to rise the next morning, and the family physician ordered him removed to St. Francis's Hospital. There his condition grew steadily worse, and last evening he died of what the physicians diagnosed as spinal meningitis.

The Coroner's physician, Dr. Thomas Curtin, will hold an autopsy this morning to determine the cause of death and will investigate the story of the attack on Thanksgiving night as told to him by the boy's father. The police said last night that the case had not been reported to them, and that they could take no steps until after the autopsy.

WANTS A CITY ARCHITECT.

Controller Prendergast Thinks New York Would Thus Save Money.

The Board of Estimate authorized the Mayor yesterday to appoint a committee to investigate the advisability of appointing a city architect. The matter was brought up by Controller Prendergast, who submitted a statement which showed that architects' fees cost the city in 1907, 1908, and 1909 $1,381,000. He estimated that the establishment of an office by the city to take charge of this work would not cost more than $100,000 a year.

POETIC MUSE AGLEE, WIFE ASKS DIVORCE

Not a Line of Rhyme in Mrs. Luber's Plea to be Free from Her Artistic Husband.

SOME HONEYMOON EPICS

They Each Took a Hand at Heart-Throb Lyrics and Then Co-operated on Some Others.

Special Master in Chancery Charles P. Rowe is struggling over testimony he took in Jersey City yesterday in a divorce that contains much poetry. He expects to decide the case in a few days, but what bearing the lines of verse will have on the decision remains to be seen.

The applicant for divorce is Katherine Luber, a music teacher of Englewood. She wants to be free from her husband, Charles A. Luber, an artist, whom she married at Syracuse, N. Y., on Aug. 21, 1904. She alleges desertion.

At the time of their marriage Mrs. Luber was 30 years old and her husband 20. After the ceremony the couple went to Susquehanna, Penn., to live with Luber's parents.

The pair planned a wedding trip to Germany, Mrs. Luber having saved some money. She though it would be nice to go where she could finish her musical education, and her husband could continue his artistic studies. In the end, however, only the husband started for Germany. He took with him $180 and a diamond ring belonging to his wife.

In October a letter was received by Mrs. Luber from her husband, in which he said he was getting on nicely with his studies until he met some unsympathetic soul in the streets of Paris, who robbed him of his soul. He said he couldn't pursue his studies further, and asked her to send him some money.

Mrs. Luber didn't answer this letter, and didn't set eyes on him again until the Fall of 1905, when she accidentally met him at the Susquehanna Railroad Station in Jersey City. She asked him what had become of her diamond ring, and he told her that he had given it to his mother for safe keeping. Mrs. Luber then left the home at Susquehanna, and finally settled at Englewood, where she teaches music.

During the taking of testimony Mrs. Luber brought in her wedding certificate, which was in book form and handsomely engrossed in verse. It told of wedded bliss, the kind they were to follow. One verse reads:

> Across the threshold led,
> And every tear kissed off as soon as shed;
> His house she enters, there to be a light,
> Shining within when all without is night,
> A guardian angel o'er his life presiding,
> Doubling his pleasures and his cares dividing.

This was like a solemn promise from her, while he followed with this sentiment:

> Love, it is our wedding day;
> The very rustling of your dress,
> The trembling of your arm that lay
> On mine with timorous happiness;
> Your fluttering breath and faint footfall.
> Ah! Sweet, I hear, I see them all.

This from the pair:

> Our marriage day, the soul's noontide,
> In these rare words, at watchful rest;
> What sweet, melodious meanings hide
> Like birds within one balmy nest.
> Each quivering with an impulse strong
> To flood all heaven and earth with song.

This verse from the consoling book of verse is illuminating, if the testimony is not:

> Like life's horizon be their scene
> Of life; a rich and various ground,
> And whenever lowering or serene,
> Heaven all above it and around.

The Special Master is not required to pass on the merits of the throbbing verse.

FIRE RATES FIXED BY N. Y. EXCHANGE

The Legislative Graft Committee Learns That All Companies Act in Concert Here.

MONOPOLY POWER EXERCISED

Political Influence, Which Mr. Robb Calls "a Loud and Enduring Noise," Protects Small Brokers.

A chapter of inside fire insurance history was related yesterday before the Legislative Graft Investigating Committee. Before it was finished the committee had been informed that practically all the fire insurance companies in the Metropolitan district have their rates fixed by the New York Fire Insurance Exchange, and that they operate in concert through this exchange.

This was important to the committee, as they have under consideration the advisability of recommending the passage of an anti-compact insurance law, such as has been adopted by many other States, and also new legislation affecting the 80 per cent. co-insurance clause.

For several hours the committee listened to the testimony of Willis O. Robb, Manager of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange. Mr. Robb went carefully over the ground covered by the exchange in its relations to the fire insurance companies. In addition to his direct testimony, Mr. Robb submitted a printed statement, setting forth just what the New York Fire Insurance Exchange is, what it does, and how it does it. This statement was embodied into the record of the proceedings. The Exchange, he said, was a voluntary and unincorporated association, formed pursuant to a permissive article in the by-laws of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, allowing the organization of tariff or rating associations by members of the Board.

It was learned that the results of the rate-making work of the Exchange are embodied in printed rate cards, which are distributed in daily installments to Exchange members and filed in their rate cabinets for constant use. The expense of the exchange for printing and distributing cards alone is nearly $60,000 a year. The membership of the exchange consists of about fifty-five companies, represented by officers or general managers, and a similar number of agency members, representing one or more companies in New York City.

Thinks Exchange a Public Benefit.

The exchange rates are based on a stipulated ratio of insurance to value, says the statement submitted by Mr. Robb, and presuppose the attachment to every policy of either the 80 or the 100 per cent. average co-insurance clause. The assertion is made that the exchange has done as much or more than any other agency, "both to improve the quality of so-called fire-proof construction by charging for defects and to encourage by its very low fireproof building rates the multiplication of standard fireproof structures and the breaking up of great areas of conflagrations breeders."

These conditions considered, it was argued that "the Exchange is doing, with intelligence, equity, and an effectiveness that only its control over rates renders possible, a work for the public good that no other public or quasi-public body can do in its stead."

An effort was made by M. Linn Bruce, counsel for the committee, to draw from Mr. Robb the admission that the Exchange exercises a monopoly of the fire insurance business. But the nearest Mr. Robb came to admitting that was to say:

"Practically all the business is done by members of our organization."

Mr. Robb said that when a fire insurance man became a member of the Exchange he signed an agreement, but just how this agreement bound him was not made plain. He told Mr. Bruce that there were no stock companies in the metropolitan district which were not members of the Exchange.

The Exchange was supported, partly by assessments on the members and partly by fees charged to fire insurance brokers entitling them to do business in the metropolitan district. Mr. Robb told the committee that he would be very glad to have them visit the Exchange. The invitation was accepted.

The High and Low Rates.

Mr. Robb said in reply to questions that the National Board of Fire Underwriters had no control over tariffs and that the New York Fire Insurance Exchange was not subordinate to the New York Board of Fire Underwriters. There were rates as low as 5 cents and as high as 5 per cent on property in the metropolitan district, and some insurance men were inclined to believe that the highest rate prevailing now was not bearing its proper share of the fire losses and that the lowest rate was bearing more than its share. But Mr. Robb did not agree with such a view. He said that many attempts had been made to have the insurance companies adopt a uniform scale of classification.

"What effect does the competition of factory mutuals have upon your companies?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"It is not material in the congested districts of New York," said Mr. Robb.

Mr. Bruce wanted to know what had been done to cut down the number of small fire insurance brokers who have certificates from the Exchange. Mr. Robb said that efforts had been made, but they did not seem feasible, "so long as political influence existed." Senator Wagner of the committee asked him what he meant.

"Most of the complaints against the Exchange have come from brokers who have lost their certificates or have failed to obtain them," said Mr. Robb. He added that frequently the men making such complaints would get their district leaders or other politicians to "make a loud and enduring noise" to get the Exchange to issue the desired certificate.

The Big Noise Has Its Effect.

"Does this 'loud and enduring noise' lead the Exchange to issue the certificate?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"Not as a rule," he replied, "but the loud and enduring noises have their effect in the insurance business, as in almost every other sort of business."

Further knowledge of the actual operation of the 80 per cent. co-insurance clause was extracted by the committee from this explanation contained in a pamphlet issued by the Hartford Fire Insurance Company:

When the 80 per cent. or reduced rate average clause is attached to a policy it means that the assured agrees to carry insurance equal to at least 80 per cent. of the value of the property involved. Failing so to do, he can recover only such proportion of any loss amounting to less than 80 per cent. of the value of the property insured, as the amount of insurance he actually carried bears to 80 per cent. of the value.

Thus, if the value is $10,000 and he carries $5,000, he can recover but five-eighths of any loss that amounts to less than $8,000; that is to say, of any loss which amounts to less than 80 per cent. of $10,000.

On the other hand, however, when the assured carries insurance equal to 80 per cent. of the value of the property insured, the 80 per cent. coinsurance or reduced rate average clause is of no effect, and the assured will recover the entire amount of his loss, be it large or small, not exceeding, of course, the amount of the policy.

J. H. Stoddard, an underwriter and agent for the Hartford company, was a witness. He said that the present rates charged by the fire insurance concerns were as equitable as the companies could make them, and explained that the risks were classified according to the hazards.

Prof. Albert W. Whitney of the University of California, who is actuary for the Legislative Committee, was another witness. He produced several charts, showing the cost of insurance to the insured and the ratio of loss to the companies. His statistics showed that for 10,000 fires on the Pacific Coast the fire insurance companies paid a total of $81,159.

It was announced that the race track bribery inquiry will be resumed to-day. F. K. Sturgis, Treasurer of the Jockey Club, and several officials of the Metropolitan Turf Association have been notified to be on hand this afternoon. They will be questioned about book entries, purporting to represent expenditure for "legal services" incurred while adverse race track legislation was pending at Albany.

PENNSYLVANIA HAS 7,665,111

New Census Shows 21.6 Per Cent. Increase—West Virginia 25.7 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The population of the State of Pennsylvania is 7,665,111 according to statistics of the thirteenth census made public to-day. This is an increase of 1,362,996, or 21.6 per cent., over 6,302,115 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 1,044,101, or 19.9 per cent.

The population of the State of West Virginia is 1,221,119. This is an increase of 262,319, or 27.4 per cent., over 958,800 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 136,006, or 25.7 per cent.

These figures in the cases of both Pennsylvania and West Virginia indicate a more rapid increase of population between 1900 and 1910 than was shown in the previous decade. These increases are accepted by the Census Bureau as another indication that the cities and the industrial centres generally are increasing at the expense of the agricultural regions.

Of the sixty-seven counties in Pennsylvania, nineteen, or more than one-fifth, show a falling off, while five counties showed an increase of less than 2,000 each. In almost every instance the decrease was in an agricultural county. Under the present basis of apportionment Pennsylvania would obtain seven additional Congressmen and West Virginia one with a large fraction left over.

Further population statistics of the thirteenth census made public to-day include Pensacola, Fla., 22,982, compared with 17,747 in 1900, and Gadsden, Ala., 10,557, compared with 4,282 in 1900.

ONLY ONE BATTLESHIP BID.

Newport News Company's Best Is $5,760,000 for New Super-Dreadnought

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company submitted the only bids for the construction of the new 27,000-ton battleship authorized to be constructed at a private shipbuilding plant. The bids were opened at the Navy Department to-day. The other battleship authorized at the last session of Congress will be built at the New York Navy Yard.

The Newport News Company submitted four bids—two for construction entirely according to Government plans and two with hull and equipment of Government plan. The lowest bid for the former was $5,775,000, with Curtiss turbine engines. The lowest bid under the other plan was $5,760,000, with Curtiss turbine engines. The company agrees to construct the battleship in thirty-six months and guarantees 21 knots speed.

It is generally believed at the Navy Department that lack of competition for the battleship contracts was due to the provision in the naval appropriation bill stipulating that the work must be done in accordance with the eight-hour law.

GRAPE-NUTS.

EAGER TO WORK

Health Regained by Right Food.

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment.

But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden.

"A year ago, after recovering from an operation," writes a Michigan lady, "my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble.

"At times my appetite was voracious, but when indulged, indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever.

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the merest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking across the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question.

"I had seen Grape-Nuts advertised, but did not believe what I read at the time. At last, when it seemed as if I was literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts.

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

HIS FOLDING BED KILLS ENGINEER

Lott Was Never Tired of Showing It and Telling of Its Perfect Mechanism.

SHUT ON HIMSELF AND WIFE

Vertebrae of His Neck Dislocated and His Wife Almost Smothered—It Took Three Men to Release Them.

Benjamin Lott, a civil engineer of 245 West 145th Street, died yesterday afternoon in Harlem Hospital of injuries he had received by the sudden closing of a folding bed, in which he and his wife were asleep on Wednesday night. His neck was dislocated by the sides of the bed, which caught it and held it tight, and from the moment of the accident he was paralyzed from the neck down.

The bed was let down from the side of what appeared by day to be a cupboard with a heavy marble top. Mr. Lott thought it an ingenious piece of mechanism, and according to a boarder, James Redwood, he was fond of showing off its intricacies to his visitors and dilating on its safety and convenience in a small apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Lott retired early on Wednesday night, but about 11 o'clock Mrs. Lott awoke and discovered that something was wrong with the bed. The legs at its foot had collapsed and the back boards were sloping down to the floor. She hook her husband, and he started up, but his movement jarred the mechanism and the bed closed with a snap.

Mr. Lott was leaning out of the bed, and his neck came between the upper shelf and the sideboard of the bed itself. He was caught fast, as if in a steel trap, and was powerless even to cry out. As the foot of the bed rose Mrs. Lott was thrown on her head and half smothered between the mattress and the pillow. On her was the entire weight of the bed pressed upward by the strong spring, and she was entangled in the bed clothes. She could barely move, and was quite unable to do anything to help her husband. All she could do was to shout, and it was long before she made herself heard.

After she had been calling for ten minutes Mr. Redwood, who was asleep in the next room, was awakened by her cries. He rushed into the Lotts' room, but found that he was not strong enough to get the bed open again. He shouted for help from the window, and Patrolman Mahoney of the West 125th Street Station came to the house. A second policeman was summoned and by the united strength of the three men the Lotts were released.

Mrs. Lott was almost unconscious from suffocation, but was otherwise unhurt. Her husband had retained all his senses, and declared himself all right, but found that he could not move a limb. He was lifted to another bed, and as he waited for a doctor kept turning his head and saying:

"It's very curious. I can't move my arms. Yet I feel all right. I'll be all right in a minute or two. I guess it's just the shock."

Dr. MacCallum had Mr. Lott sent to the Harlem Hospital at once. There it was discovered that he had dislocated the cervical vertebrae and that his case was hopeless. Mrs. Lott was able to go home again for the night and walked yesterday to the hospital, where she stayed by the side of her husband till he died in the afternoon.

Mr. Redwood said yesterday that when he went to live with the Lotts, Mr. Lott offered to get him a folding bed similar to his own.

"I told him then," he said, "that I wouldn't sleep in such a death-trap for $10,000 a night, but he just laughed at me and was never tired of telling me how perfect the mechanism was and how impossible it was that anything should go wrong with it."

Splendid Books to Give Younger Readers

This book is suitable for readers of any age.

The Slant Book

By Peter Newell

Fun is waiting aplenty for the readers of this strange new book. You never saw anything like it—it is printed on the bias. The slant is real, the pitch is sharp and the humor of it bumps out as a hilarious youngster in a go-cart slides down each page. The pictures are in color and the verses are just as bright. The truth is, this new book is even funnier than "The Hole Book," which made everybody laugh last year.

Cloth, $1.25.

This book is specially suitable for readers of 8 to 12 years.

The Hollow Tree Snowed-In Book

By Albert Bigelow Paine

In this new book the author and artist have again collaborated, and have given us another set of "Hollow Tree" tales. There is a new "Little Lady" and a new "Mr. Dog," but it is the same Hollow Tree and the same Deep Woods, and the stories are told in the familiar room of the Lowest Ceiling and the widest Fireplace. The 'Coon and the 'Possum and the Old Black Crow are back again, and with them Mr. Rabbit and Mr. Robin and Mr. Fox—all of the old favorites.

Fully Illustrated from Pen-and-Ink Drawings by J. Conde. Crown 8vo, Cloth. Untrimmed Edge, $1.50.

These four books are specially suitable for readers 11 years and over

The Young Forester

By Zane Grey

In this stirring adventure story of the southwestern wilderness, an Eastern boy is shown with a love for trees and outdoor life which gain him a chance to join a forest ranger in the West. His arrival in Arizona brings him into instant conflict with timber thieves, the pirates of the forest. There follow scenes which hold the reader tense with suspense.

With Illustrations. Post 8vo, Cloth, $1.25

Captain of the Eleven

By Alden Arthur Knipe

A story of real human nature as well as football, written by an author who knows boys and also football, which he played as a member of a 'varsity eleven. The story introduces us to the fun and sport and the various contests for leadership at a "prep" school where Bunny, the hero, appears on the scene first as a disregarded figure.

With Illustrations. Post 8vo, Cloth, $1.25

The Story of Great Inventions

By Elmer Ellsworth Burns

This graphic narrative ranges from Archimedes to wireless telegraphy, and includes vivid presentations of the conditions and circumstances of the greatest basic discoveries. Archimedes and his lever, Galileo and the relations of the earth and sun, Newton and gravitation, Watt and steam power, Morse and the telegraph, Bell and the telephone, Edison and electric lighting, and Marconi and wireless telegraphy are among the stories of discovery told simply and vividly.

Stetson Hats for Christmas

Most people, nowadays, like to give—and receive—useful things.

Can't give a man anything more useful than a Stetson Hat.

And there are mighty few things the average man would rather find in his stocking on that gladdest day of the year.

I issue "Merry Christmas" Certificates—good for Stetson Hats—that both giver and recipient will find mighty convenient.

And my store in the Metropolitan Life Building is the only place in New York where a man can always get—in his size—any style of hat Stetson makes. $3.50 to $12.

I also carry canes (in my store, not necessarily when out for a stroll)—likewise caps, and a Special Umbrella—English style with stick clear through—unusual value at $5. All appropriate Christmas gifts.

A moral in the foregoing for firms who want to remember employes or friends. I'll give discounts for quantity orders.

GEN. DIAZ, GUARDED, AGAIN INAUGURATED

Usual Display Absent—President Driven to Ceremony Through Double Lines of Troops.

CONGRATULATED BY WILSON

Our Envoy Speaks for the Diplomatic Corps and Diaz Makes a Brief Reply.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 1.—The inauguration for the eighth time of President Diaz took place here to-day.

Nothing occurred to mar the solemnity of the simple ceremony, which occupied less than half an hour. It took place in the temporary quarters of the Chamber of Deputies.

Dr. Manuel Flores, President of the Chamber of Deputies, administered the oath of office first to President Diaz and then to Vice President Ramon Corral in the presence of the Diplomatic Corps and high Mexican officials.

This over, the President and Vice President entered carriages and were driven to the National Palace. There felicitations were extended by the Federal Department chiefs and the diplomats. The only formal speeches were those of the American Ambassador, Henry L. Wilson, and President Diaz's brief reply. The American Ambassador acted as Dean of the Diplomatic Corps in presenting the congratulations of the representatives from the various foreign powers, including the United States. He said in part:

"It is my pleasure and duty, as representative of the diplomats resident in Mexico, to express to your Excellency their congratulations on the auspicious events of this day, events which signify the approval of your administration by the Mexican people and crown the patriotic labors of more than a quarter of a century with the respect and confidence of the world.

"The marvelous development of Mexico during the successive administrations to which your Excellency has been called by the suffrages of your fellow-citizens, the moral and material progress which has been achieved, the firm position of the public credit, and the faith felt by the nations and the rulers of the world in the stability and responsibility of this Government are matters of common history, which, however well known, may be repeated with profit on an occasion like this, so profoundly significant of the future of the republic."

Replying to the congratulatory address, Gen. Diaz said:

"It is with particular satisfaction that I have listened to the kindly phrases which, in your own name and that of the Honorable Diplomatic Corps, you have just addressed to me at this moment in which I inaugurate a new presidential period.

"I say with satisfaction because such words reveal to me that the nations which you represent are sincere friends of Mexico, and that fact will necessarily be to me a great stimulus. The Mexican public continue to honor me with the confidence with which for many years they have distinguished me, and with that stay I shall continue to consecrate all my attention and my energies to peace and the cause of National progress.

"I appreciate greatly the allusion you make to my worthy co-laborers, whose patriotic service is beyond doubt.

"Accept then, representatives of the Diplomatic Corps, my thanks for these good wishes and for the sentiments conveyed by this formal act by the Governments and peoples represented by you."

This afternoon Gen. Diaz and Señor Corral received delegations of business men and foreign residents. To-night there were band concerts, free theatrical performances, and the distribution of food and blankets among the poorer classes.

The usual inauguration display was absent to-day. The President and Vice President were driven from the National Palace to the Chamber of Deputies and back to the Palace through double lines of soldiers, and escorted by the Presidential staff and guard. As the party returned to the Palace a salute was fired by a battery of artillery. There are no crowds in the streets, and the business of the city proceeded as usual.

Notwithstanding that the possibility of any attempt being made to interfere with the inauguration programme was generally thought to be remote, every safeguard had been taken against an overt act by those who during the past two weeks endeavored to overthrow the Diaz administration. A feeling of relief was apparent among the public when the affair was over and this feeling was doubtless shared by those in authority.

FOSS ASKS PEOPLE TO DEFEAT LODGE

Accompanied by Republican Insurgents He Begins Open Fight at Provincetown.

CITES RECORD OF SENATOR

Calls Him Servant of Privileged Interests, Not of the People—Lodge Goes to Washington.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 1.—Gov.-elect Eugene N. Foss opened his appeal to the people against the re-election of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge at a meeting here to-night. He was accompanied by four insurgent Republicans State Senator Arthur L. Nason, former Mayor David L. Dickinson, Cambridge; Andrew J. Sails, and William B. Willicut and newspaper men. The party came from Boston, 120 miles, in automobiles. There was a torchlight procession before the meeting.

In his opening attack on Senator Lodge Mr. Foss said:

"You know that the vote in November, sweeping as it was, was the verdict of the people against not only Gov. Draper, but Senator Lodge.

"If Senator Lodge were truly a representative Massachusetts man, he would have withdrawn after this overwhelming vote of censure, but he has chosen to defy the will of the people by standing for re-election, and by so doing he has already accomplished his own defeat. He should have withdrawn or else gone before the people for vindication. Then, if the people really wanted him, they would have quickly made it known.

"Working in silence and secrecy he resorts to his self-constituted political machine, the machine which has dominated Massachusetts politically for years. He is seeking the counsels of those whom he serves, the privileged interests, and ignores the verdict of the people.

"He has never mingled with the people or worked shoulder to shoulder with them. He has never been a vital part of the industrial life of the Commonwealth. He has never realized, from experience, the needs of our industries and the necessities of the great mass of our people employed in them.

"What legislation in the interests of the people bears his name? What legislation has been molded in any way by him? Only one bill that I recall bears his name, and that is the force bill—a measure that causes every honest man to blush."

Mr. Foss reviewed extensively Senator Lodge's record on various policies—telling of his opposition to direct primaries, direct election of Senators, a Federal income tax, reciprocity, and other reforms, and his aid to special interests in tariff and other legislation. He showed vote after vote of the Senator for high duties, and also charged that his influence had been used to aid the Sugar Trust in the Philippines.

"I fail to find in Senator Lodge's record," he went on, "any vote in favor of the rights of the people, or any championship of the people. So far as the people are concerned his legislative record is a blank.

"But we have in Massachusetts no open insurgent movement within the Republican Party. Why? Because Senator Lodge and his machine have strangled every Progressive who showed his head.

"Every Republican Convention has been a cut and dried affair. No word of dissent from the platform has been permitted. No one who had a progressive idea, or who had the courage to suggest that the party ought to live up to its principles, has been allowed to speak. And every candidate of the party has been drawn from those whose subservience to the boss was unquestioned. Everything in this State has been written all over with 'Stand pat.'

"This campaign marks the beginning of the end of Senator Lodge. I say it is the end because he cannot maintain by methods of secrecy, sinister influence, and wire pulling the leadership of his party. The day of these things has gone by. He declines to come out into the open, and for this reason, if for no other, he is doomed.

"He is fighting secretly through his machine, and we are forced to believe that that machine is centring all the vicious forces which he commands to sway in secret the action of the legislators. Through the political machine he is now bringing to bear the force of the National Administration, the pressure of all the social and financial powers of the State, and is attempting to coerce the representatives of the people to keep him in power.

"Notwithstanding this terrific pressure, these same legislators, backed by the people, will repudiate him."

Mr. Foss brought with him 100,000 copies of a circular, "How Lodge Voted on the Tariff Bill." Copies were distributed all along the route.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge left for Washington to-day to be present at the opening of Congress. His departure was delayed several days by the illness of his son, who is now improving.

WILL EXONERATE DR. POTTER

But Fosdick Will Urge the Mayor Not to Make Him Ambulance Director.

Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick announced yesterday that he will have his supplementary report on Dr. Daniel C. Potter's record as the head of the Charitable Institutions Division of the Department of Finance ready for Mayor Gaynor when the Mayor returns from St. James, L. I., on Monday.

While it will exonerate Dr. Potter from the charge of having accepted a purse of $6,000 from various charitable institutions, it will set forth other matters which caused the Commissioner to urge the Mayor not to approve the appointment of Dr. Potter as the new Director of the Board of Ambulance Service.

The Commissioner admitted yesterday that he and the Mayor had a more or less serious disagreement over the matter, but said that he had no intention of resigning.

BAD EGG TRAFFIC WIDESPREAD HERE

Fosdick Tells the Mayor They're Sold in Food with Health Inspectors' Connivance.

GIVES NAMES OF DEALERS

Says "Protection" Money Was Paid to One Inspector—Pie Trust Put in the List.

Startling revelations of the existence in the city of a widespread traffic in rotten eggs for food purposes with the knowledge, it is said, of the Inspectors of the food and drug division of the Health Department, are made in the first report of Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick on his investigation of the food inspection bureaus of the department, submitted by him to Mayor Gaynor. Testimony was given before the Commissioner tending to show that one Inspector, Hugh Masterson, took money from the men engaged in the traffic, and a Government Inspector declared that he had repeatedly told Bayard Fuller, Chief Inspector of the division, of what was going on.

The Commissioner recommends that Masterson be dismissed and that the suspension of Fuller and Inspector Holtz, which was ordered soon after the investigation started by Health Commissioner Lederle, be continued until the inquiry is completed. Mr. Fosdick also recommends that the entire record of the testimony taken so far be turned over to the District Attorney for action.

In his report the Commissioner gives the names and addresses of the alleged dealers in the rotten eggs and of the bakers to whom it is said they made deliveries.

The New York Pie Baking Company of 82 Sullivan Street, commonly known as "the Pie Trust," is shown to have been a customer of one of the dealers who admitted handling large quantities of bad eggs.

A Profitable Traffic.

Evidence was produced that the traffic is lucrative, the "rots" and "spots," as they are called, invariably selling for much more when used for food purposes than in the legitimate trade—and there is a legitimate use for rotten eggs, which makes the traffic possible. They are used by tanners to soften leather.

Mr. Fosdick will continue his investigation into the inspection of all kinds of food by the Health Department. Indication has already been found that there is an extensive traffic in the city in bad meat.

The evidence against Masterson is given in the report as follows:

In examining the check books of Bernard Kochman, egg dealer of 212 Duane Street, several stubs for $25 and $50 each were found payable to Hugh Masterson. The checks corresponding to the stubs had been drawn to the orders of cash. Kochman confessed that he had given the money to Masterson upon the latter's request. He insisted, however, that these transactions were "loans," admitting at the same time that the money had not been returned. The fact that Kochman appears to be one of the worst offenders in the trade, and that the supervision of eggs was part of Masterson's duty, gives to the transaction a particularly ugly look.

Furthermore, Mr. Steel of the Steel-Drake Baking Company of 42 Wallabout Market, Brooklyn, testified that in the Spring of 1909, after a suit against him by the Bureau of Food Inspection had been withdrawn, he had paid Masterson $25 in cash, although the latter demanded $200.

Abram Samulefsky, who conducts a small egg stand at 99 Thatford Avenue, testified that he, too, had been forced to pay Masterson, the final agreement with the Inspector being to pay him $10 down and $10 a month during the continuance of his business of selling rot and spot eggs for food purposes.

Chief Inspector Warned.

The testimony of Herman Lind, a Government Food Inspector, is quoted to show that Fuller knew of the existence of the traffic. He said that he had repeatedly called it to the Chief Inspector's attention. In his testimony on this point Lind said:

He always had some excuse. I pointed out to him one instance where one of the local men was breaking spot eggs, and selling to a baker supply house, Wood & Selick. The man who broke these eggs for Wood & Selick was Bernard Kochman, and I told Mr. Fuller about this matter. I told him I thought the business ought to be stopped.

Here are some abstracts from the report as to the traffic:

"Bany Lazar, an itinerant egg dealer, formerly located in Philadelphia, testified that during the year 1909 he broke and sold to F. E. Rosebrock & Co., corner of Reade and Duane Streets, rot and spot eggs for food purposes.

"Lazar's books showed that during this period he sold to the Rosebrock people 111,076 pounds of eggs, rots and spots only, for which he received from 9 to 12 cents a pound.

"On Oct. 25, 1910, immediately prior to our investigation, Rosebrock purchased from the firm of Lazar & Thompson thirty-four cases of spot eggs at $2.75 a case and twenty cases of spots and rots at $2.25 a case. These cases were marked 'not to be used for food purposes.' At the price for which they were purchased they can hardly have been used for anything else.

"Sumer Sumerman, an egg dealer from Pittsburg, testified that in 1908 he, too, sold rot and spot eggs in cans to F. E. Rosebrock & Co. for food purposes at 10 cents a pound.

A Philadelphia Contract.

"Bernard Kochman, an egg dealer at 212 Duane Street, testified that on June 17, 1910, he entered into a contract with Max Cohen of Philadelphia, to purchase all his spot and rot eggs at $1.75 a case. The bakers to whom Kochman sold eggs during the period covered by the above-named contract appear by his books to be as follows:

Wagner Pastry Co., 22 Johnson Street, Newark, N. J.
Schulze Baking Co., 50 Church Street, city.
Wood & Selick, 36 Hudson Street.
New York Pie Baking Co., 82 Sullivan Street.
Waldorf Pound Cake Co., 909 East 135th Street.

"An examination of the books of Morris Steisel, an egg dealer of 146 Reade Street, showed that during September, 1910, he purchased 608 cases of eggs, of which but two cases cost more than 8 cents per dozen, most of them costing less than 5 cents a dozen. In October, 1910, he purchased 525 cases of which 388 cases cost at the rate of 5 cents per dozen or less, only eight cases costing 8 cents a dozen or more. During the first week of November he purchased 196 cases of which 123 cases cost 5 cents per dozen or less.

"Steisel admitted on the stand that these eggs were sold for food purposes. The bakers to whom Steisel's eggs were sold during the months of September, October, and November, 1910, appear by his books to be as follows:

C. N. Hoefler & Co., 27 Wooster Street.
S. Cross, 412 East Tenth Street.
Lovty, 1,641 First Avenue.
Herschman & Blerer, 518 East Seventy-second Street.
August Fehr, 351 Third Avenue.
Mae's Baking Company, 251 East Thirty-third Street.
Vienna Baking Lunch Company.
Warshauer Bakery, 67 Throop Avenue, Brooklyn.
First Biscuit Company, 404 East Thirty-second Street.
Charles E. Schmall, 146 Reade Street.
Mutner & Huselkom, 178 Chambers Street.

"William Rubin, an egg dealer at 197 Duane Street, refused to answer some of the questions put to him in regard to the kinds of eggs sold to bakers, on the ground that it tended to degrade and incriminate him. He admitted selling some of his eggs at 6 cents a pound to east side bakers. His regular price, he stated, was 9 cents a pound.

"Sumerman, the Pittsburg dealer, testified that he supplied Rubin with cans of broken rots and spots for food purposes at 3 cents a pound, wholesale rates.

Dealers Who Got the Eggs.

"An examination of Rubin's books showed that from June 15 to Nov. 9, 1910, he sold 21,000 pounds of eggs to the following bakers in New York:

C. N. Hoefler & Co., 27 Wooster Street.
Morris Stolz, 130 Broome Street.
Samuel Goldstein, 52 Pitt Street.
Vaclav Popecky, 64 Avenue A.
Israel Blankenstein, 108 Ludlow Street.
Samuel Gross, 412 East Tenth Street.
Solomon, 40 Essex Street.
Morris Goldberg, 240 East Third Street.
Henry Lemel, 24 Rivington Street.
Gustav Gintel, 196 Clinton Street.
Harry Rapp, 348 East Tenth Street.
L. Hainies, 172 Avenue A.
Brody's Bakers, 1,783 Madison Avenue.
Bloom, 289 Rivington Street.
Dressler, 27 Morrell Street, Brooklyn.
Kalish, 422 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn.

Testimony of a substantially similar character was taken in regard to the egg business conducted by Samuel Rottenberg of 183 Duane Street, the European Egg Company of 316 Washington Street, George S. Males of 8 Caroline Street, Louis Kalb of 17 North Moore Street, and many smaller dealers.

AN ELIZABETHAN FEAST.

Women Dine on a Boar's Head and Other Dainties at Ethical Fair.

The past and present have met in "Ye Mermaide Taverne" at the Elizabethan Festival of the Ethical Culture Society now going on in the new building, Sixty-fourth Street and Central Park West, for a before-theatre dinner party has been given there, and women in modern décolleté evening gowns sat around the deal tables and enjoyed a feast of Elizabethan dainties—boar's head, game pasties, pigeon pie, and suckling pig. Yesterday Hy. Mayer auctioned off a box for Josef Hofmann's concert on Saturday afternoon, and W. J. Locke was on duty at "Ye Booke Shoppe" disposing of his own works.

To-morrow afternoon will be a special occasion for the little people. Twelve young kindergartners are to be present in Elizabethan costume—showing what kindergartners might have been in that age if there had been any—and they will tell the children stories and amuse them, and if there are mothers who wish to bring their babies the kindergarteners will give checks for them, and both mothers and babies will have a chance to play. There is a "wishing well" and a "fairy tree," as well as a grab bag for the little people. There will be entertainments in "Ye Playe House" both afternoon and evening to-day and to-morrow, and there are still many pretty things to buy.

MRS. YERKES PROTESTS.

Says the Ancillary Executor of Husband's Estate Is Wasting Securities.

Mary A. Yerkes applied to Surrogate Thomas yesterday, and also in the Probate Court in Chicago, for the removal of Louis Owsley as ancillary executor of the estate of her husband, the late Charles T. Yerkes. The petition was supported by her statements, all made on information and belief, that he had "wasted and improperly applied" the funds of the estate, and caused it a net loss of $3,936,300 by "the secret delivery" on Oct. 26 of $4,494,000 par value of bonds of the Chicago Consolidated Traction Company to the Chicago Railways Company for $1,101,000, and this despite the fact that he was directed not to transfer any property of the estate in New York to the credit of the estate in Chicago.

Owsley lives in Chicago. He was appointed ancillary executor last February and was qualified by a bond of $500,000. The Surrogate issued an order yesterday directing that he be served with a citation to appear and answer the application.

Mrs. Yerkes gives it as her belief that if properly administered her share of the estate would give her an interest of $2,000,000.

PLEAD FOR ST. JOHN'S GUILD.

Noted Men Tell of Its Needs at the Charity's Annual Meeting.

The churches think too much of infant damnation and the State too much of infant industries, and neither of them enough of the vital question of infant preservation, which is the great work of St. John's Guild, Rabbi Wise told members of the guild at the annual meeting in David Belasco's Republic Theatre yesterday afternoon. The President of the guild, Prof. William H. Burr, made an address telling of the erection of new buildings at the Seaside Hospital, which had depleted the treasury, and the Treasurer, Isaac N. Seligman, showed the state of the finances.

The guild is in need of money to erect a fireproof building at its seaside hospital and money to keep the hospital open through the Winter.

Leeds Johnson was elected a trustee, and John D. Crimmins, Mortimer M. Singer, and Clinton H. Crane re-elected trustees for another five years. At the close of the exercises Duff G. Maynard of the Board of Trustees, showed stereopticon pictures of the guild's work among the children.

MEAT PRICES LIKELY TO GO STILL LOWER

Dealers Admit That the General Tendency Is Downward in All the Markets.

SOME COMPARATIVE FIGURES

Housekeepers Not Expected to Get the Full Benefit of the Slump Until After Christmas.

The general tendency of prices of meat continues downward, though there has been some reaction in veal, and beef continues to remain at about the same level to the general consumer. The dealers best posted on the conditions of the trade are confident that in a few weeks there will be a still more pronounced decline in prices, and that there really are better times in store for the housekeeper.

Wholesale prices in the New York market yesterday, compared with those that ruled ten days and seven weeks ago, tell the tale of a falling market:

	To-day.	Nov. 21.	Oct. 13.
No. 1 Beef—
Ribs and loins	11¼	12½	14½
Rounds	9½	10	10½
Chucks	8½	8½	9
No. 2 Beef—
Ribs and loins	10	10½	12
Rounds	8½	8½	9
Chucks	7½	7½	7½
No. 3 Beef—
Ribs and loins	8	8½	9
Rounds	7½	7½	7½
Chucks	6¾	6½	6
Pork loins	12	14½	17½
Boston butts pork	11	14	16
Lamb	10½	10	11¾
Sheep	7	7	8¼

Retail prices, quoted yesterday in Washington Market by Koelsch Bros., as compared with those of last week, were:

Beef—	Yesterday.	Last Week.
Porterhouse	25c.	28c.
Sirloin	22c.	22c.
Round	20c.	20c.
Lamb—
Legs	18c.	20c.
Chops	22c.	25c.
Shoulder	15c.	16c.
Veal—
Cutlet	35c.	32c.
Chops	25c.	25c.
Loin	27c.	24c.
Shoulder and breast	18c.	18c.
Pork—
Loins	18c.	20c.
Fresh hams	18c.	20c.

How far such prices can be obtained from the retailers uptown depends on how quickly they will respond to the slow decline in the wholesale rates. The cut on beef, of the kind quoted as No. 1, ranges from a cent to half a cent since last week, but the retail price has been affected in the case of porterhouse steaks by the decline in the demand. Many persons are now buying turkey, fowl, or pork instead of the beef, which formed their staple food in the Fall, while the demand for the chuck steaks in some parts of the city has gone up. The result is that the dealers can afford to lower their prices on the highest priced cut of all.

At the same time, it was pointed out yesterday by one of the large downtown butchers who supplies hotels and steamships, that it is difficult to get really prime beef at all now. The so-called native cattle, that is, those raised in the Middle States, are decreasing in numbers on account of the high price of land, and the Western cattle, which are brought East and fed up for a time to produce the so-called No. 1 beef, don't really come up to the true standard. Consequently a dealer who wants only the best is obliged to look for meat from the local slaughter houses and not from the large packers.

The effect of the low price of corn has not yet had time to make itself felt on the beef market. The meat actually being sold now was killed five and six weeks ago, when high prices were still the rule, so that the retailer, by following the decline of the wholesale market too closely is liable to find his margin of profit vanishing. The cattle fed on this year's cheap corn will begin to come on the market after Christmas, and it is on account of this that lower prices are promised.

The chief fall in price has been in pork. Loins which were selling at the beginning of November at 25 cents a pound were quoted retail yesterday at 18, and the decline may go still further. Mutton, on the other hand, has gone up somewhat since last week, but this, it was explained, is a regular movement at this time of year, due to the fact that the growers begin about December to feed their sheep with grain, and this makes them heavier than the public cares to buy.

BUSHWICK CLUB IN TROUBLE.

House That Entertained Dr. Cook Is to Go Under the Hammer.

Coincident with the reappearance on the world's stage of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the man who made the American gumdrop famous, the handsome home of the Bushwick Club of Brooklyn, which gave him a proud and joyous welcome home when he returned after accomplishing the remarkable feat of reaching the north pole by not going near it, is to be sold at public auction. The club is unable to pay the interest on $80,000 of mortgage bonds and a friendly suit in foreclosure has been brought.

The property will be sold at the Brooklyn Real Estate Exchange next Tuesday.

TAXICAB WAR GOES ON.

Peace as Far Away as Ever, Both Sides Standing Firm.

The taxicab strike situation was not improved yesterday, and the strike seemed as far from settlement as ever, the chauffeurs holding out for a recognition of the union by the companies and the companies just as firmly refusing to recognize it.

It is admitted by the companies that the strike is costing them dearly, and even the taxicabs that are sent out under police protection are not well patronized, patrons who ride in taxicabs in time of peace not caring to run the chance of getting hurt by strike sympathizers.

The union button is also an issue now, the men insisting that they be permitted to wear them at all times and the companies refusing permission. The companies say that many of the strikers are returning to work, and that in time the trouble will wear itself out through the desertion of the union by the men. The union leaders on the other hand maintained that their ranks are still intact, and deny that any considerable number of the men have returned to work.

The police continue on the taxicabs, and some of them are tired of the job. There was no violence yesterday such as was the case on Wednesday following the failure of the strikers and companies to come to an agreement.

No conference has been arranged between the committee of strikers which visited Mayor Gaynor on Wednesday and a committee of the companies.

TO DEPORT HAREM FUGITIVE.

Marie Hebella, a Greek young woman who has been telling the immigration officials that she escaped from the harem of a Turkish pacha in Damascus, will not be allowed to land here. She and Tony Jahara, the Damascus railway conductor, who she says helped her to escape, have been ordered deported.

Investigation by the officials does not bear out all the facts as related by Mrs. Hafifi Hebella of 178 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, the cousin of the woman detained, who appeared on her behalf. There is no doubt that Marie Hebella was in a harem, the officials say, but the young man, who figured as the hero in her escape, is already married. He left behind a wife and two children while rescuing beauty in distress.

Mrs. Hafifi Hebella visited Ellis Island yesterday. She became nearly hysterical when told that her cousin and the latter's companion must go back.

PRISON FOR A FAKE DOCTOR.

Samri Ellis Sentenced for the Illegal Practice of Medicine.

Samri Ellis, alias Charles Balwanz, was sentenced yesterday to prison in lieu of a fine of $300 by the Justices in Special Sessions for the illegal practice of medicine. Ellis, who is a clairvoyant, is now under an indictment charging grand larceny in that he swindled several of his patients into buying worthless stock in the Blue Ridge Mining Company.

It is charged that a woman detective in the employ of the County Medical Society called on Ellis at his office, 9 West Forty-fifth Street, last June and complained that she was ill. Ellis gave her a package of herbs that are sold by a company in which he was interested, charging her $1 for his services. He pleaded guilty when arraigned yesterday, and said that he could not pay the fine.

HIDING OF A WITNESS ENDS DIVORCE TRIAL

Justice Greenbaum Stops Harden Suit When Wife Admits She Concealed Maid.

WARNING FOR HER LAWYER

Court Calls It an Improper Attempt to Delay Suit—E. H. Burr of Raided Burr Brothers the Co-Respondent.

The trial of the divorce suit which James Harden, Jr., has brought against his wife, Leah Harden, came to a sudden halt yesterday, when the woman admitted under the questioning of Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum and William Rand, her husband's lawyer, that a material witness in the case, Nannie Bradshaw, had been kept at her house in West 127th Street all the night before, sheltered from the subpoena servers of the plaintiff. Concerning this same Nannie Bradshaw, Mrs. Harden had signed an affidavit the day before in which it was set forth that she could not find the woman, and which was submitted to the court as ground for an adjournment of the case until the December calendar.

John Reilly, Mrs. Harden's lawyer, admitted that the affidavit had been prepared in his office, but said that he supposed its contents true. Justice Greenbaum said he believed the court had been grossly deceived, and that improper efforts had been made to get the case off the calendar. He warned Reilly that he would be ordered to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt.

It will be decided to-day whether the case will be allowed to continue before jurors who were not in court yesterday. The jury with which the case started was discharged.

Harden is Secretary of the Acheson-Harden Company, manufacturers of handkerchiefs. He names as co-respondent Eugene H. Burr of the firm of Burr Brothers, raided the other day by the Federal authorities.

Mr. Rand wanted very much to clear up the matter of the maid's whereabouts, and both he and the court questioned Mrs. Harden about it yesterday. She went twice to the woman's house in West Ninety-ninth Street, but had not seen here, she said, and later told the court that she had seen her twice, following this by the faltering admission that Nannie Bradshaw had spent the night with her.

"Didn't Mr. Reilly tell you to do it?" was the next question.

Mrs. Harden answered in the affirmative and broke down completely. If her statements were contradictory, she sobbed, it was because she was muddled and confused.

On this point Mr. Reilly had his chance to say something. Mrs. Harden was mistaken, he explained, when she said that he had given her instructions to act as she had. Asked if that constituted a denial, he declared that it did. As for the affidavit, he said, it was prepared under his direction and in his office, but not by him personally.

Nannie Bradshaw was produced in the afternoon, and gave the vaguest of answers to the questions put to her by Justice Greenbaum. Land's sakes, she couldn't be expected to remember where she was all the time; she had "a very poor memory," she informed the court. She did remember, when urged, that she had spent Wednesday night at Mrs. Harden's house.

MRS. GLOVER'S PAST UNVEILED IN COURT

Laundryman's Widow Admits Two Marriage Ceremonies, an Alias, and Stage Career.

OWNS ALSO TO PISTOL USE

Hattie Le Blanc's Attorney Thus Develops Announced Plan to Throw Suspicion on Widow.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1.—A verbal duel between Mrs. Lillian M. Glover, widow of Clarence F. Glover, and Melvin M. Johnson, the leading counsel for Hattie Le Blanc, the seventeen-year-old Cape Breton girl who is on trial for the murder of Glover, held the interest of the court room for the whole of to-day's sessions, and was not concluded when court adjourned.

The cross-examination by Mr. Johnson, who had announced yesterday that he intended to show that Mrs. Glover had the motive, the capacity, and opportunity for the murder of her husband, covered much of Mrs. Glover's life since she came to Boston from Cape Breton, dealing minutely with her actions and feelings on the day and night of the murder and the few days that followed.

Mr. Johnson brought out the fact that Mrs. Glover was twice married to Glover, once in Boston in 1890 and a second time in Providence ten years later. She said the second ceremony was because she understood that the first was not legal.

She admitted certain falsehoods regarding her birthplace and her name, and certain discrepancies in her testimony with that given at other hearings were pointed out.

Before Mrs. Glover was cross-examined Assistant District Attorney Wier asked her a few more direct questions. She admitted that she was familiar with firearms and that Hattie Le Blanc was with her husband and herself in an automobile at a football game on the afternoon before the shooting. Mrs. Glover said that in past years she had sent money and clothing to Hattie's family at West Arichat, C. B., and had aided two of Hattie's sisters to come to the United States.

The witness and Mr. Johnson gazed steadily at each other when the leading counsel for the defense rose to conduct the cross-examination. Mr. Johnson began by asking Mrs. Glover her name.

"Lillian Marie Le Blanc Glover," was the reply.

"Did you ever have any other name?"

"No."

"Were you ever known as Lillian Walker?"

"No."

"Did you not receive letters from Maud Halliday Glover under the name of Minnie Everett Clark?"

"Yes."

By further questioning Mr. Johnson brought out the fact that Mrs. Glover was introduced to her husband by Arthur Glover, his brother, and that both men used the name of Gardner.

She said that she and Clarence Glover were married in Boston in January, 1890, and again in Providence in 1900. The second marriage ceremony was performed because she was told that the first was illegal. Mrs. Glover admitted that in the marriage certificate issued at Providence the place of her birth was not given correctly. She explained that her husband wrote it as East Boston instead of Arichat.

Mr. Johnson then inquired into her occupations, and in response to a number of questions, Mrs. Glover said that she had been a mill hand, maid, a seller of bicycles, of furs, of books, a dressmaker in New York, an addresser of envelopes, a tailoress, a clerk, a milliner, and on the stage posing as a marble statue. She is now engaged in the millinery business.

She admitted that she had indulged in revolver practice with her husband in their back yard in Waltham, but she disliked a rifle. Four pictures showing her holding such a weapon were exhibited, but she said they were all taken for effect.

Then came a long colloquy over letters. She said that she frequently wrote letters for Hattie Le Blanc and admitted sending one to a Mr. Fales at Centreville, N. B.

"I wrote what Hattie told me to write," said Mrs. Glover with the greatest deliberation.

"If you know what is in those letters, why don't you show them to me?" said Mrs. Glover.

"Because they can't be found," replied the lawyer.

Mrs. Glover said that since the murder the police and the lawyers had ransacked her house, and many letters were missing, including letters addressed to Hattie.

Mrs. Glover declared that after the bathroom incident involving her husband and Hattie, she took Hattie to the theatre, sent her away for a week, and then took her back. At all times their relations were pleasant and she never knew her to quarrel with Mr. Glover.

"Do you know any reason why Hattie Le Blanc should have shot your husband?" asked Mr. Johnson.

"No," replied Mrs. Glover.

"Did you ever say to a friend while at the theatre one day, 'I could have given Hattie up to the police on Sunday morning, the day following the shooting, if a certain person would have let me'?"

"No," was the reply.

District Attorney Higgins wanted the name of the "certain person" introduced, but Mr. Johnson would not comply with the request, and Mr. Higgins appealed to the Judge, but the court, after telling the District Attorney that he talked too much, denied the request. Mr. Higgins attempted to reply, but Judge Bond told him to sit down.

This episode was followed by Mr. Johnson's requesting three lawyers who have been identified with the Glover will contest to leave the courtroom as they would be called upon to testify later in the case. One of them, Mr. Lenelle refused, but Judge Bond ordered him out.

Mr. Johnson then led Mrs. Glover through certain incidents on the day of the shooting.

She told the time she arose that morning, her purchasing of the Sunday dinner, and of her leaving with Hattie Le Blanc and her husband in an automobile at 2 o'clock for the football game. They reached there late and left early, but as there was some shopping after the game the party did not reach Waltham until 6 o'clock P. M.

She denied that she ever said to Hattie in the automobile, that she used to like her husband, but she did not now, or that he was "no good."

Coming to the night of the murder, she said she went to the hospital where her husband was dying, accompanied by a police officer, but after starting up stairs to see Glover, she retraced her steps because she felt faint, and also because she heard Glover vomiting. She further understood that he was to be operated upon.

An hour later she left the hospital without seeing him, and a few minutes after reaching her home she was told of his death. She accounted for the greater part of the time on the fatal evening, saying that she was in the house until called to the hospital.

$3,000 FOR WOMAN'S WORK.

Christmas Stocking Gains Funds to Lift Mortgage on the Exchange.

A Christmas stocking, hung betimes, has brought good luck to the New York Exchange for Woman's Work. Into it have been put in the last week contributions of more than $3,000 for the payment of the $15,000 mortgage on the Exchange Building at 334 Madison Avenue.

Among the donors have been Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, $500; Joseph Choate, $100; William P. Clyde, $500; Henry C. Frick, $500; Mrs. William H. Moore, $200; J. Pierpont Morgan, $500; Mrs. George W. Perkins, $250; Thomas F. Ryan, $500; Mrs. William D. Sloane, $250, and W. K. Vanderbilt, $500.

The exchange disposes of more work done by women in the home than any other institution in the United States. A special Christmas sale of this work—good things to eat, pretty things to wear, and for the house—is to be held in the banquet hall of the Waldorf-Astoria all day Monday, Dec. 5.

PAINT WASHINGTON MARKET.

First Coat Since It Was Built in 1882 —Hopes of Other Improvements.

Washington Market got the first touch yesterday of the only new coat of paint it has had since the market was erected, in 1882. Many times, it is said, city administrations of the past voted money for a thorough refurbishing of the market, but not one of the 104 stall keepers or their 600 assistants ever saw the paint.

The work begun yesterday was by order of Borough President McAneny, and it was taken by the Washington Marketmen's Association, of which Karl Koelsch is President, as proof that the Borough President's promises are to be carried out. The interior of the market is to be rearranged and improved next Summer in the slack season.

There is complaint that the removal of outside stands has made the market insufferably cold.

UNDERGROUND CITY STREET.

City Engineer Planning a 1,000-Foot Tunnel Through Fort George Hill.

Chief Engineer Lewis of the Board of Estimate is at work on plans for the construction of a tunnel walk through Fort George Hill from Broadway and Fairview Avenue to the new subway station at St. Nicholas Avenue and 190th Street. The tunnel will be 16 feet broad and 16 feet high, and about 1,000 feet long, the largest underground city street in the country. It will be known as 190th Street South. It is estimated that the tunnel will cost about $[illegible]0,000.

Fort George Hill is about 190 feet high, and the point where the tunnel will enter the subway station is about 150 feet under St. Nicholas Avenue, which will be connected with it by elevators.

GUIDE A WALKING TYPHOID FACTORY

Adirondack Woodsman Found to be Charged with the Germs —Is a Public Menace.

PROBLEM FOR AUTHORITIES

No Law by Which "Typhoid John" Can Be Isolated, and Epidemic May Follow Him.

Another case, to match that of the famous "Typhoid Mary," has been run to earth up-State, where, according to the report made to Commissioner Porter of the State Health Department, this second "walking repository of typhoid germs" was responsible this last Summer alone for the deaths of two persons and the illness of about thirty more. This brother in affliction of "Typhoid Mary" is an Adirondack guide and his full record of destruction has not yet been established.

"Typhoid Mary," readers may remember, was an Irish cook named Mary Mallon, who was found responsible by the New York City Health Department of having caused at least three epidemics of typhoid fever. While apparently strong and well herself, she possessed the power of collecting and distributing typhoid germs wherever she went. It was in 1906 that the epidemic occurred which brought the strange misfortune of this woman to public notice. At that time she served as cook for a family in Oyster Bay, and after she had been there only a few weeks no less than six persons came down with typhoid fever. Suspecting the water supply, the family called in Dr. Saper, an expert in such matters, to investigate.

Finding a clean bill of health for both water and milk supplies, Dr. Saper was led to look into the history of the cook. It was found that in the Summer of 1904, soon after she had been employed by a Sands Point family, four persons came down with typhoid. Two years before that, while cooking for the family of J. Coleman Drayton at Dark Harbor, Me., nine persons in the household were attacked with the fever.

This record was enough to set the city authorities at work, and "Typhoid Mary" was sent to North Brother Island for treatment. Two years later a lawyer instituted habeas corpus proceedings on her behalf, but being pronounced uncured by medical authorities, the writ was refused. Last February, however, Commissioner Lederle had her released on the ground that she had learned to avoid this infection and on her promise that she would never again cook for anybody.

The new case, "Typhoid John," is in many respects like this earlier one. An epidemic involving more than thirty-six persons occurred in a fashionable Adirondack camp, and specialists were called in to discover the cause. For a while they were baffled, since the water was good and the milk supply excellent. It came from tested cattle, was gathered by dairymen in white suits and gloves, and was then deposited in sterilized cans. It was learned, however, that the last man who handled it was an Adirondack guide, who was brought down to New York City by Dr. Charles E. North of the New York Milk Committee for examination. The man was found to be suffering from chronic dysentery, and was literally charged with typhoid bacilli.

The State Health Department was notified and asked what was to be done, since it was clearly a menace to public health to let the man loose. Commissioner Porter responded that there was no State law by which a human carrier of typhoid bacilli could be kept from spreading contagion and disease. Thereupon "Typhoid John," unlike "Typhoid Mary," who had to be removed by force for treatment, arose to the occasion and agreed to submit to any course of treatment desired. Dr. North, who has experimented with the Metchnikoff cultures, believes that by a sour milk treatment the typhoid bacilli in the man's system can be driven out, and Dr. Nathaniel B. Potter, successor to the late Dr. Bull, has agreed to provide free medical services, and the only hitch now is to get a boarding place in this city where "Typhoid John" can be safely kept while undergoing the treatment. The New York Milk Committee is interested in the case and is trying to make suitable provision.

This "Typhoid John" affair brings to light the interesting situation that there is no law in this country restraining the movements of these human carriers of typhoid germs, although medical experts estimate that there are probably some 10,000 such afflicted and afflicting persons in the United States. "Typhoid Mary" was held for treatment by the purely local authority of the city Health Department.

MURPHY SEES SHEPARD MEN.

And Tells Them That He Has No Candidate for the Senate.

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy gave ear yesterday to a committee of Democrats who had come to advocate the selection of Edward M. Shepard as successor of Chauncey M. Depew in the United States Senate. There were six in the delegation, and none of them has been seen much about the Wigwam. Mr. Murphy greeted them with what degree of cordiality he could muster, and said: "Gentlemen, be seated."

John D. Crimmins, who was a liberal contributor to Tammany campaign funds long before Mr. Murphy became the Tammany leader, headed the delegation. Other members were J. Edgar Levey, former Deputy Controller; Henry T. Dykeman, counsel for the gas companies in Brooklyn; William Church Osborne, and F. H. Allen of Westchester.

Mr. Murphy concealed any bitterness he might feel for Mr. Shepard and told the delegation that he had no candidate and was very pleased to hear from the friends of Mr. Shepard.

ROTHBARTH SUIT IN EQUITY.

German Hop Merchants Whose Cash Convict Used Get After His Brokers.

Martin Rothbarth & Co., hop merchants of Frankfort and London, want an accounting of the firm's moneys, which they say their New York agent, Adolph Rothbarth, placed with brokerage houses here through many years. Members of the firm have brought an action in equity against Edey, Brown & Sanderson and against Herzfeld & Stern.

Adolph Rothbarth is in Sing Sing, having confessed a few months ago that he had perpetrated a swindle on several New York banks.

Counsel for the firm explained yesterday to Justice Seabury that Rothbarth had been "faithless to his agency," and that he had taken the "moneys of the firm and used them in connection with the defendants, who are a brokerage house."

FALLON DECLARED ELECTED.

Court Finds Recount Gives Him and Not Dwyer Municipal Justiceship.

Supreme Court Justice Amend directed a jury yesterday to bring in a verdict declaring that Joseph P. Fallon, Civic Alliance candidate, and not John J. Dwyer, Democrat, was elected in November, 1909, to the Justiceship of the Eighth Municipal District Court. His plurality is 18 according to the recount, which has lasted thirteen days.

A messenger took the judgment to Albany last night for the approval of the Attorney General, and Fallon hopes to be on the bench by Monday. Dwyer has ninety days in which to prepare an appeal.

$500 FOR KISSING A WIDOW.

Louisiana Judge Tells Postmaster He Should Have Known Better.

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 1.—Judge A. J. Murff held in the District Court yesterday that the kiss of a young widow was worth $500. The decision was rendered in the case of Mrs. Grace Hunter against J. K. Norman, former Postmaster at Oil City, this parish.

Mrs. Hunter alleged that Norman kissed her while she was in the Post Office, and sued for $2,000. Judge Murff told Norman that he looked old enough to know better.

HILL LEFT ESTATE TO TWO PROTEGES

Secretary Manwiller, Found in Barber's Shop, and Dr. Pearse Chief Heirs of Former Senator.

TO SELL "WOLFERT'S ROOST"

Mementos of the Albany Executive Mansion Are Left to Alton B. Parker and Other Friends.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 1.—"A plain and simple monument to be erected over my grave" is one of the injunctions in the last will of David B. Hill, late Governor and Senator. It was filed in the Albany Surrogate's office at the close of the business day this afternoon by John A. Stephens, who for years had a law office with Mr. Hill, as attorney for the executors, Alton B. Parker and Peter J. Manwiller. The will was executed by Mr. Hill on Jan. 24, 1906, after he had passed through a critical illness, and is in his own handwriting.

The chief heirs are two men to whom Mr. Hill gave a start in life, and who had been devoted to him in his later years. After other bequests have been paid from the sale of his property, including "Wolfert's Roost," the balance of the estate, which may run to $100,000 in value, is to be divided equally between Peter J. Manwiller and Dr. Harry S. Pearse.

Mr. Manwiller had been Mr. Hill's secretary for almost eighteen years, including the time when Mr. Hill was United States Senator from this State. It has often been remarked that there was no man as close to Mr. Hill nor one upon whom he seemed to depend so much in recent years. He was attracted to Manwiller as a young man in the Delavan House barber shop conducted by an uncle. The youth was an orphan, and his quiet ways and discretion so pleased the Governor that he was invited to join the Executive Chamber staff. He soon was advanced and became permanently attached to Mr. Hill.

Mr. Hill brought Dr. Pearse with him from Elmira when he became Governor.

Some of the other bequests in the will are:

To Alton B. Parker one section of his private library, consisting of the Congressional Records from the beginning of Congress to date; also the large mahogany bedstead and dresser in the guest's chamber at "Wolfert's Roost," which formerly was in the Executive Mansion at Albany and purchased from the State, and the silver pitcher presented to Gov. Silas Wright in 1847 and purchased by Mr. Hill in 1887.

To his brother, Dr. Alonzo D. Hill of Dexter, Mo., $2,000, and two nephews and two nieces, also of Missouri, $1,000 each.

To Franklin Fisher of Montclair, N. J., a long-time friend, the sum of $3,000, and to his son, Bennett Hill Fisher, who was named after Mr. Hill, the sum of $2,000.

To John B. Stanchfield a set of Irving's works.

To the Elmira City Club a valuable painting, "Venice," by Moran, and a seashore scene.

To Col. E. L. Judson of New York City, military secretary to Mr. Hill when he was Governor, the watch presented to him by his military staff in 1891.

To the Fort Orange Club of Albany a large vase which was presented by William M. Whitney, Jr., of this city, and a painting of the ship Half Moon.

To Mrs. Catherine Bleri, who had been his housekeeper for some years, and her daughter, the sum of $250 each.

To Mr. Manwiller the law library and office furniture.

The value of the estate is not given in the papers. The petition merely says that the real estate is worth more than $10,000. As it includes "Wolfert's Roost," which was built by J. K. Emmett, this figure, of course, is too low. This estate is assessed at only $32,000, but its real value is estimated at from $50,000 to $75,000. The house, which cost $150,000 originally, is surrounded by thirty-six acres of land. Mr. Hill bought it under favorable conditions and paid only $35,000. The value of the personal estate, exclusive of household furnishings, effects and library, is estimated as at $30,000.

PUPILS APPLAUD LONE MEDAL WINNER

Children Hampered by Little Knowledge of English Show They Are Free from Envy at Times Award.

CEREMONIES IN 4 SCHOOLS

Pupils in Jersey City Participate in Exercises in Honor of Those Bearing Prizes in Times's Bergen Contest.

One of the prettiest of the incidents that have marked the presentations of the Tiffany medals and certificates of merit for the Bergen Village anniversary compositions to the school children of Jersey City occurred at School 9 at Brunswick and Wayne Streets, in the lower part of the city, yesterday.

The school building is in the industrial heart of the city, and its classes are recruited from the children of foreigners. Most of the children are Italian, Slavonian, or Hungarian descent, and usually speak the tongue of their parents in their homes. J. K. Light, Principal of the school, has been in charge there only since September. The Van Winkle articles upon which the compositions of those who engaged in the competition for the medals were based, began to appear in THE TIMES soon after he took office.

These conditions limited the number of compositions sent in by the school and the judges found only one which in their opinion called for a prize. That was the work of Rose O'Malley, 10 years old, a fair-haired girl in Miss Charlotte Coyle's class, 8B. Rose was not in the least spoiled by the distinction that had fallen upon her as the winner of the only medal awarded to the school.

Mr. Light received the bearers of the medal with as much ceremony as if they had brought a score of prizes. All the pupils, a thousand or more, in the grammar classes were summoned to see the prize bestowed, and Miss Coyle went to the piano to accompany them in a series of school songs. Col. James Molony, who is THE TIMES's spokesman at the delightful entertainments the School Principals are arranging for THE TIMES, with the permission of City Superintendent Henry Snyder, found a text for his address in Rose's feat, and when he had concluded his address invited the women to the platform.

All the pupils in the room turned beaming faces upon the little heroine as she emerged from a cluster in the shadows away back in the great hall and walked with perfect composure up the aisle to Principal Light's side. Col. Molony received her with a courtly bow, and, with a few appropriate words, dropped the coveted prize into her hand. Then he led her to the front of the platform, and as they faced the room he said:

"Rose belongs no more to School No. 9 alone, she belongs also to THE NEW YORK TIMES."

And the thousand youngsters broke into applause that could not have been more stirring if each had shared the honors of the day with little Rose.

The ceremonies were over then; and the medal bearers went to School No. 28, where their presentation had been delayed the day before by the school's parting dinner to Mr. Clenhew. This new school edifice is some miles away from No. 9, up on the Hudson City hilltop. Principal J. R. Fitzer had anticipated the party's arrival and the school was quickly assembled for the presentation ceremonies. The pupils sang and Col Molony delivered an address. Principal Fitzer declared that the rule of percentages, to which he said he was devoted, showed him that School 28 had received more prizes in proportion to the number of compositions submitted than any other school in the city.

That ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy McAdoo, afterward Police Commissioner of New York, and the late Congressman Allan L. McDermott had attended School 6, at Central and St. Paul's Avenue, gave Col. Molony the text for an inspiring speech at that school, where Principal J. W. Wakeman gave THE TIMES's representatives a cordial greeeting in which all the school joined.

The hour for the closing of the school was near at hand when the medal bearers reached School 255, on Zabriskie Street, near the Boulevard, but Principal J. R. Towne held them for an attractive ceremony. Principal Towne found material in Col. Molony's talk for an impressive address, and the children voted that their detention had been well worth while when it was all over.

An arrangement was made yesterday with Principal James J. Hopkins of the High School for a presentation of the medals there at the 1 o'clock assembly hour next Tuesday, and this afternoon some of the schools in the Lafayette and South Bergen sections will be visited.

CIVIC FEDERATION GROWING.

Lecture Series on "The Growing South" Is Attracting New Members.

To increase the membership of the Woman's Welfare Department of the New York and New Jersey Section of the National Civic Federation, of which Mrs. Francis McNeil Bacon is Chairman, invitations to join this department have been sent to a selected list of representative women in New York and New Jersey, and nearly one hundred names already have been added to the list of members.

The membership fee is $10, and this includes a ticket to the course of lectures on "The Growing South," which to any one not a member of the federation, costs $15. The money raised by these lectures is devoted to the welfare work of the federation.

The first lecture, "The Influence of the Panama Canal on Southern Commerce," will be delivered by C. Grosvenor Dawe, managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of Dec. 8.

SEE LEWIS CLUE IN SUICIDE.

Man Dead in a Wilmington Hotel Resembled Trunk Case Fugitive.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 1.—A man who registered at the Hotel Wilmington yesterday as J. F. Adams, Portland, Me., and who, the authorities believe, may be William Lewis, the supposed slayer of the trunk victim in New York, committed suicide at the hotel to-day. He shot himself through the head while in bed in his room.

The body was found by Albert Bothman, the proprietor. When a picture of Lewis was shown to-night to Edward E. Myers, assistant to the Coroner, who removed the body from the hotel to the morgue, he said there was some resemblance. "Above the eyes the picture looks like the suicide. More than that I cannot say," he stated.

The general contour of the face, Myers said further, somewhat resembles the photograph of Lewis. The suicide has the appearance of having been a consumptive. This would make the face thinner than the picture, Lewis having been missing for five years. Coroner Gaynor and Deputy Coroner Chandler will follow out this supposed clew to-morrow. An effort will be made to have someone come from New York who knew Lewis to try to identify the body. It was learned to-night that the shoes worn by the suicide were sold by Henry M. Tuttle & Company of Boston. They were manufactured by Johnson & Murphy, Newark, N. J. The man carefully cut all identification marks from his clothes and shoes. A mark on the bottom of the shoes, however, led to the name of the dealer. Eleven dollars and sixty-four cents were found upon him.

The man was about 38 years old, 5 feet 8 inches, the same height as Lewis.

STEAMSHIP RATE INQUIRY.

Secretary of Conference Says It Does Not Try to Establish Rates.

Lawson Sanford, Secretary of the North Atlantic Steamship Conference, was a witness yesterday before the Special Congressional Committee, composed of Representatives Longworth, Olcott, Hawley, and Garrett, which is investigating the lobby said to have been maintained by the foreign steamship companies to defeat ship subsidy legislation.

Congressman Longworth tried to find out whether the conference fixed the rates of trailf, and asked whether the rule that all tickets must be sold at current tariff rates was not made with a view of making rates. The witness replied that the rule applied to agents and was designed to prevent undue competition in agents' districts.

"What does this mean in the list of rules and regulations?" asked Congressman Hawley, reading the following:

"'That members of this conference shall hold sacred and confidential in the highest degree the acts of this conference; if made public it shall be done as an individual act and not as an act of this conference.'"

Secretary Sanford declared that it was an innocent rule made to prevent booking agents from knowing too much about the business of the steamships.

Mr. Sanford will testify again to-day.

NO RATE CUT TO CHICAGO.

Michigan Central and Panhandle, Following Protests, Raise Fare to $20.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—First class passenger fares between Chicago and New York over the Michigan Central and the Panhandle routes will be $20 after Jan. 15, according to advices received here late to-day subsequent to a secret meeting in New York attended by representatives of those roads, and of the Erie, Wabash, and Grank Trunk. This lays to rest the prediction of slashed rates and unprofitable competition.

This action by the two routes which heretofore have enjoyed a differential rate of $19 for the Michigan Central and $18 on the Panhandle, followed open threats of another cut instigated by the Erie, Wabash, and Grank Trunk, such as the Erie used two years ago to straighten out the complicated emigrant rate situation.

PULLMAN RATES CUT, OFFER IS REJECTED

States' Attorneys General Say 20 Per Cent. Reduction on Uppers Is Not Enough.

TOO MUCH, SAY RAILWAYS

Company Offered to Make Minimum Upper $1.25—And Cut Lower Berth Rate Also in Certain Cases.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—An offer of the Pullman Company to reduce the rates charged for upper berths in sleeping cars 20 per cent. where lower berths were priced at more than $1.50, to make the price of uppers $1.25 as a minimum, and to reduce some lower berth rates was opposed before the Inter-State Commerce Commission here to-day by Attorneys General of four States and by two railways. The Pullman Company's offer left unchanged Pullman seat rates, and was to become effective upon approval and acceptance by the commission.

In opposing the plan the railroads alleged that they would have to stand a part of the brunt of the lessened prices. The States' Attorneys General declared that the reduction was not sufficient.

"I don't think the 20 per cent. reduction represents the difference in service value of an upper and lower berth," said Attorney General James Bingham of Indiana.

"It is not enough; I stand on our petition," said Attorney General John S. Dawson of Kansas.

"Here, too," agreed Attorney Luther Walters, representing Attorney General Norwood of Arkansas.

"It is not at all satisfactory," concluded Attorney General Charles West of Oklahoma.

The Great Northern, which owns its own sleeping cars, also protested against the proposed reduction, on the ground that it would have to meet the lower rates. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, which also owns its own sleepers, was represented, but made no comment on the proposal.

Commissioners Franklin K. Lane and E. E. Clarke, therefore, were confronted by an offer of voluntary reduction of rates for uppers (also a number of material reductions on lower berth rates) which the railroads said was too much and the State officials called too small. The whole matter came on a combining of all complaints against sleeper rates in one hearing by the commission, following an order from the Federal Circuit Court that previous cuts ordered by the commission were not justified.

The Pullman Company's reduction schedule included the following cuts on lower berth rates, upon which, as upon remaining existing rates, the 80 per cent. charge for uppers was proposed to be applied, the effort being, according to the company's representatives, to charge an average of 6 mills per mile:

Route.	Reduction.
Chicago to New York	Unchanged
New York to Tampa	.50
Poughkeepsie to Elkhart and South Bend, Ind.	$1.00
New York to St. Augustine, Fla., or Savannah, Ga.	1.00
New York to East St. Louis, Ill.	.75

New rates proposed by the company include these:

Route.	New Rate.
St. Paul or Minneapolis to Seattle and Pacific Coast points	$11.00
New York to New Orleans	8.00
Chicago to San Francisco	13.00

The former Minnesota-Pacific Coast rate was $12; that from Chicago to San Francisco, $14.

The commission will hear further arguments, and if held advisable, will receive evidence in the specific cases combined in one hearing.

One of the cases involved was a rehearing of the petition of George S. Loftus against the Pullman Company, the point at issue being the upper berth rates between Chicago and the Pacific Coast. Last March the Inter-State Commerce Commission ordered a reduction in the rates for both upper and lower berths, and the United States Circuit Court enjoined the enforcement of this order. Instead, it directed that a rehearing be held.

"We have not prepared all our tables establishing the new rates," explained G. S. Fernald, Assistant General Solicitor for the Pullman Company, "but we are working on them as fast as possible. We decided that although the upper berths cost more to build, furnish, and maintain than the lower, public discrimination against the uppers required a reduction in their price. Where the lower berth is rated at $1.50, the upper will be $1.25, and in all instances other than this the upper will cost 80 per cent. of the lower.

"Not a rate has been raised by this new schedule, but we are endeavoring to adjust all charges to correspond with the Eastern standard of six mills a mile. This brings about a number of reductions in lower berths as well as the correspondingly greater reductions in uppers."

MELLEN ALSO PESSIMISTIC.

Looks for Recession in 1911—His Road's Traffic Grows.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—A pessimistic business prediction for 1911 was to-day voiced by President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. His statement was given in response to a request.

"There is every indication at the present time of a recession in business in 1911," he said. "How severe it will be or how long it will last, I am unable to predict."

He declined to make a more extended statement.

In New England, where the railroad and financial outlook has been regarded as entirely separate from that of the West or even the Nation no report has been made public by the New Haven road which could be the basis in any degree of the forecast of Mr. Mellen. The last quarterly report indicated an advance in both passenger and freight receipts.

YALE BOYS EARNED $214,449.

As Waiters 135 of the Students Got $18,463 Last Year.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—The total amount earned during the last year by men working their way through Yale is given as $214,449 in a pamphlet just issued by the Bureau of Self-Help at the university.

The total number of men answering inquiries was 564, which is estimated at nine-tenths of all who were working their way through college. These gave a total of $190,449 as earned, of which $127,564 was the amount gathered in during term time. Adding $5,000 as the amount of first-year men for one term and $19,000 for the unreported tenth, the total is placed at $214,449.

The 88 men in the graduate school earned the most, $48,970. The largest amount earned from one line of work was $37,163, made by teaching, mostly by graduate school men. The amount earned as waiters by 135 students was $18,463.

Tramp Steamer Aground Off the Hook

Late last night a heavily loaded tramp steamer was reported aground on the edge of the Ambrose Channel off Sandy Hook. The vessel was outward bound. She evidently got to near the south edge of the channel and ran her nose hard and fast in the mud. The vessel was reported to be in no danger and unless she comes off with the tide during the night wrecking tugs will be sent down to get her free.

LORD CHATHAM

Splendid Book to Give

His Early Life and Connections

By LORD ROSEBERY

A great book suddenly flashing into view is rare indeed. Lord Rosebery has wrought the miracle a second time in his new book, "Lord Chatham"—just published. It was holiday time nearly ten years ago when Rosebery dazzled the reading world with his "Napoleon; the Last Phase," and although unillustrated it was the chosen Christmas book of thousands of discriminating givers. "Lord Chatham" is quite as brilliant a performance. It is the sort of book no man could write unless inspired by his subject—and the reader is carried away as completely as was Rosebery in the writing of it. Here is that "strange cockatrice brood of the Pitts" and the great Chatham growing into the fullness of his powers. Jeannette L. Gilder declares: "If comparisons had not been condemned as odious I would proclaim Rosebery the Macaulay of his day and generation." Crown 8vo. Cloth.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, DEC. 2, 1910.

LET US HAVE A VERY DIRECT PRIMARY.

Do the Democrats of New York need a formal direct primary law to permit an expression of their opinion upon the choice of a United States Senator? Manifestly not. The opinions of Democrats exceptionally well qualified to advise the Legislature in choosing a Senator are every day being expressed. Democrats of prominence and enlightenment all over the State have indicated their choice. A great majority of them declare that EDWARD M. SHEPARD should be chosen by the Legislature to succeed Senator DEPEW. This is the best kind of direct primary, the old-fashioned method of expressing the people's choice that in former years in all the States resulted in the election of men whose character, great ability, and priceless service conferred distinction upon the name of Senator.

The trouble is that there are too few expressions. Democrats everywhere, thousands and tens of thousands of them, should make their choice known. They are not shut up to the choice of Mr. SHEPARD, if he does not suit them. Other strong names have been mentioned, though in our judgment the selection of Mr. SHEPARD would be the wisest the party could make, the best for the Senate, for the Democrats of New York, and for the party throughout the country. But if the Democrats are thinking about the Senatorship, if they have any opinion at all, they ought to make it known.

Will the Democrats let Mr. MURPHY select a Senator for them? There is a supine acquiescence in the belief that he controls, that he will name the next Senator. If, unfortunately, we had a direct primary law, this would be true, we presume. The direct primary is a first-rate device for strengthening the hands of the bosses. They know how to get out their vote, they do get it out, while the excellent gentlemen who talk much in their clubs, in their homes, or in their offices about the necessity of electing the best man Senator wouldn't take the trouble to attend the primary. As the case stands, Mr. MURPHY does not control the election of a Senator. He cannot control the vote of the Legislature if the Democrats in this city, in other cities, and all over the State will assert themselves. The vast majority of the Democrats have no confidence in CHARLES F. MURPHY. It is only cowardice and stupidity and flabbiness of public spirit that permit him to have his say in the matter.

There are a hundred ways for Democrats to make their views known. They can communicate by speech or writing with their Senators and Assemblymen. They can discuss the Senatorship with their neighbors, and awaken public interest in a matter so important that interest ought to be spontaneously awakened. They can write to the newspapers. Under competent leadership and direction mass meetings could be held. Is not the election of a Senator from the State of New York a matter of sufficient consequence to warrant the holding of mass meetings? We know of no question of greater importance just now to the Democratic Party than this Senatorial election in New York. A choice can be made that will put courage into the hearts of the Democracy the country over. Or, the New York Democrats can let MURPHY name a Senator whose appearance at Washington will deaden the vital regenerating spirit that now possesses the party.

There is no public or political or party reason why Mr. MCCOOEY in Brooklyn should be expected to "deliver" to MURPHY the Senatorial and Assembly votes he is supposed to control. Once in a Democratic Convention when JOHN KELLY, in the hope of averting a nomination he much disliked, caused a Brooklyn Democrat to be named as a candidate for Governor, the hall rang with the cry, "Get up, Kings County, and support your own man!" Upon this worthier occasion cannot Kings Country do that? Is Erie content that its representatives in the Legislature should be handed over to MURPHY? Are the Democrats in all the counties who resent Tammany dictation doing their duty to themselves, to their party, and to the State if they sit silent and let MURPHY send to Washington a Senator whose election will make it difficult or impossible for the Democracy to regain that full measure of public confidence which it must possess to carry this State and the Nation for a Democratic candidate in 1912?

A RESIDENT ALIENS DIVISION.

The Immigration Service deals properly with aliens coming in. Has it no function to perform in respect of resident aliens? The resident aliens are the moneyed men, the men with savings. They go back to Europe with their savings, 400,000 of them a year. They are the pick of all the immigrants. We are losing the better class. In the loss both of money and of potential citizens of thrifty habits we are doubly impoverished.

Great numbers of these thrifty people, originally farmers, are totally ignorant of American conditions outside the industrial work they do here. The inflated values of European farms show that they are eager to go back to farming. They know something of the high prices of American foodstuffs, nothing of the cheap American farms at the gates of our cities which they might buy, and grow thereon food supplies at an excellent profit.

There is no law against telling these men with savings all about American opportunities for investment. There is every public reason for telling them. We suggest that there be established in the Immigration Service or in the Agricultural Department at Washington a Division of Information for Resident Aliens, and that its officers cooperate with the States in advertising among this class their advantages of rural investment.

HARLEM'S GREAT THOROUGHFARE.

The effort of Harlem merchants to improve their most important crosstown thoroughfare, 125th Street, is commendable. A big city is made up of many small towns and villages, which have grown together geographically as well as politically. Harlem is an important and distinctive part of the vast Borough of Manhattan, and in spite of modern transit facilities Harlem is still largely "self-contained," for it has its own markets, its own department stores, its own Board of Trade. There is no reason why 125th Street should not be transformed into one of the famous business thoroughfares of the world. It extends from the East River, if not quite to the Hudson, at least as far as the Riverside Drive and Grant's Tomb, while its abundant traffic is carried to the west side ferries on Manhattan Street, which many persons still believe to be an extension of 125th, and which from Amsterdam Avenue westward would surely be included in any scheme to improve 125th Street.

But the improvement, to be permanent, to have lasting influence, should not be confined to arc lighting. A crosstown "Great White Way" is not likely to add to the importance or dignity of Harlem. The thoroughfare has some fine buildings now and will doubtless have many more. Let the Harlem merchants appoint an advisory committee of architects to secure harmony of design and make their favorite street one of the most beautiful as well as one of the busiest on Manhattan Island. Let them create and stimulate public opinion in favor not only of architectural reform but also of some sort of reasonable restrictions. Rents are high enough along Harlem's chief crosstown thoroughfare to keep it restricted to a good order of legitimate business. Stir up the pride of the landlords. Plenty of light is all very well, but make the street from end to end worthy of the brightest illumination.

BEAUTIFUL THEORIES AND HARD FACTS.

It is to be hoped that President ELIOT is aware of the dressing down President GOMPERS has just given him, and is correspondingly and becomingly humbled and edified. For the benefit of those who may not be aware of what happened it is worth while to say that President GOMPERS destroyed forever President ELIOT's reputation for knowing what he talks about, and speaking with a sense of responsibility to his fellow-men. President ELIOT seems to President GOMPERS like a stall-fed ox defending his own class by expounding "his impractical college lecture room notion that the trades union ought to be no more than a Dorcas society." President GOMPERS admits that it may seem harsh to charge a man like President ELIOT with "vulgarly reckless statements" and superficial assumptions as the basis of remarks on trades unionism indicating that he had never given the subject much thought.

President GOMPERS cannot be charged with anything of that kind. He knows all about trades unionism. Therefore he knows that this week a band of boys beat with broomsticks a one-armed lad who was carrying messages because he needed the job which the other boys had abandoned. There were many other similar incidents, but this is the only case in which a mob attacked a cripple and naturally gave him more nearly his deserts than the others received. Another characteristic occurrence of this week was the initiation of WILLIAM DALY into the Steamfitters' Union in Brooklyn. DALY's story is that he tried to enter the union last May, but was told that there was no room, and was placed on the waiting list. Meanwhile he worked to live, and recently received a letter saying that now the union would take him in upon payment of $50. He went to be admitted, with the money in his pocket, paid it, and received his card of membership. He had not left the building before three men assaulted him with results described by the police as "three scalp wounds, blackened eyes, and contusions of the body and arms." Now he is in hospital. Also, an express company is advertising a reward for the men who assaulted one of its employés because he was not wearing a button of union membership.

Nor is it only in the United States that things happen which so clearly distinguish trades unions from Dorcas societies. The Canadian papers in the recent mails narrate the instructive tale of the employés on the radial railway. They sought admission to the union of the Toronto Railway employés, and were refused because they accepted pay below the union scale. Naturally they sought admission to the union for the sake of receiving support in asking higher wages, and naturally they were refused membership for the same reason that they asked it. The unionists said they had troubles enough of their own without championing any "outsiders'" troubles. It is not to be denied that they were prudent in so doing, but what then becomes of the trades union maxim that the injury of one is the concern of all? It would almost seem that the unionists were desirous only of benefiting themselves, and had no ambition to promote universal uplift. This idea is strengthened by the demand of 30,000 cloakmakers that only they shall make cloaks. And there are social reformers who sympathize with the 30,000 rather than with the larger number who are not allowed to earn cloakmakers' wages, and whom the law protects only inefficiently.

These events occur even as President GOMPERS is instructing President ELIOT in the true mission of trades unionism, to wit, "to suppress illegitimate competition among the masses of wage-earners." President GOMPERS believes "this mission is understood by the intelligent public and to it we appeal for support in our movement toward the goal of social justice." The intelligent public now has an excellent opportunity to choose whether it will support the cause of the crippled boy messenger, or the beaten steamfitter, or the unionists who limit membership in order to prevent an oversupply of labor by limiting the number of those qualified to earn their living unmaimed by their sympathetic fellow-laborers. In the alternative the intelligent public has the opportunity to support President GOMPERS's unions, which presently he will attempt again to have exempted from the operation of the law against combinations in restraint of trade on the ground that they are organizations for uplift and not for mercenary profit.

SMOKING MOTOR CARS.

Drivers of automobiles who permit dense smoke to issue from their exhaust pipes on any of this city's thoroughfares are subject to arrest, conviction, and fine. The fines are being inflicted. Dr. LEDERLE, at the head of the Health Department, has for the past two months rigidly enforced this law, obtaining convictions in 450 out of 520 cases. On Nov. 29 twenty-five arrests were made, and twenty-four out of the twenty-five drivers convicted and fined.

Commissioner LEDERLE, who is zealously supported by such bodies as the National Highways Protective Society in the suppression of this nuisance, is to be commended. All decent owners of motor cars are glad that this occasion of prejudice against them is being removed by a strict enforcement of the law.

MR. BRANDEIS AND THE RAILWAYS.

Mr. BRANDEIS's acceptance of the invitation of the railways to give a demonstration of his theories of scientific management lends interest to certainly the most novel and possibly the most interesting development of the rate hearings. His suggestion of co-operation for lower costs and prices rather than for higher is alluring at a time when the cost of living is a problem hardly settled by the election. He is such an engaging gentleman and experienced advocate that his words have made an impression not surpassed by anything yet elicited by this historic controversy. Almost he persuades us to agree with him, and yet we confess doubts that he will be as successful in his practice as in his preaching.

And why does he give this advice to the railways alone? Why does he not advise his clients to practice this easy road to unlimited wealth, and share their savings with the public? Is there not a vulnerable point in his argument when he suggests that these easy lessons in efficiency, practiced by others for honest profit, should be practiced by the railways in a spirit of true altruism? Mr. BRANDEIS is too well informed not to be aware that the railways were conspicuous among all industrial enterprises, both for the improvement of their methods and for sharing the results with the public, up to the time that the law decreed that their profits should be limited to a sum which their dividends should not be allowed to exceed. Does not Mr. BRANDEIS fear lest his betterments through efficiency may prove as disappointing as the operation of the rate law? Suppose his improvements were adopted, is there any certainty that their benefits would be passed along to the ultimate consumer? Is there no danger that the trades unions would absorb a good part? Would not Mr. BRANDEIS's clients, the shippers, take all they could get? Will not the limitation of the profits of the railways lessen their interest in the proposal, whatever its merits? What is the motive force for taking trouble for the benefit of others? Mr. BRANDEIS's motive may be pure benevolence, but can he expect the railways to imitate him in this respect?

For example, the two leading railways of this country are completing in this city the most splendid terminals in the world. There is nothing in Mr. BRANDEIS's argument which would justify such a sinking of capital. Terminals might have been built for half the money. The difference represents a sacrifice to public spirit, and the beneficiaries ought to appreciate it. Instead the beneficiaries resent the trifling charge made for the use of these conveniences, and it has been argued publicly that cost of the terminals ought to have been absorbed in the regular charges, and that it was extortion to exact anything for the accommodation. Just so Mr. BRANDEIS's clients would absorb all the beneficial results of his engaging and ingenuous advice, and the railways would be allowed to spend their money and take their trouble for nothing.

Nevertheless Mr. BRANDEIS's argument is most interesting. His propounding of a theory of economic morality is a distinct contribution to the deadly dull science. Hereafter profits must be not merely honest and reasonable, they must also be benevolent. Might not some railway in a way bad enough to offer a good object lesson offer itself as a subject? After this 606 of the railway world had proved its value there would be a great rush to take the cure and Mr. BRANDEIS's argument would have won the day.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Consistent, If Not Convincing.

Were it not that so many people retained their belief in Dr. COOK after claims which had from the very beginning only such plausibility as came from the supposed unlikelihood that he would attempt deception had been utterly refuted, there would be no need to fear the seeing in his latest utterances of anything except exactly what they are. But those who clung so long to his original stories, treating doubt as folly and disproof as malice, will probably fail to see that his plea to be treated as an honest man who may have made a mistake is quite unworthy of serious consideration.

Had Dr. COOK's arctic adventure stood alone, his explanation of temporary madness might have possessed some elements of the credible—for the very charitable. It does not so stand, however, and the theory utterly breaks down under the inevitably added burden of the Mount McKinley episode. The fact is that Dr. COOK's abnormality is not temporal; it is constitutional and therefore habitual, and it shows up just as clearly in his pseudo-confession as it did in the previous products of his vivid imagination.

He expects us to believe that he was driven mad, or half mad, by his hardships in the desolate land he so picturesquely describes. As a matter of fact, few explorers of the arctic have endured less of real suffering than he did, even according to his own account. Of course, he was often cold and always more or less uncomfortable, but these are the commonplaces of arctic travel, and receive more than casual mention only when raised to the very limit of human endurance. During the worst of his experience his loneliness was mitigated by the company of his Eskimo companions, they were in a good game country, with the food problem fairly well solved, and even when their fare was scanty they could conserve their energies by inaction instead of exhausting them by desperate marches over the ice floes.

Dr. COOK says that he may have been mistaken! He knows, as he always has known, precisely what he did in the north and after he returned. But no hint of that knowledge appears in the summaries of his forthcoming articles—no word of regret for the cruel wrong done by him to the man who, after hardships incomparably greater than his, really did discover the pole. If such a plea as his wins any sympathy it will be wholly undeserved.

Nobody Likes to be Scared.

As pictures taken by flashlight are frequently reproduced in this paper, we cannot be suspected of any prejudice against them, as such, or of any desire unnecessarily to restrict the industry and enterprise of the men who take them. It does seem to us, however, that in the securing of these pictures the limits of reason, propriety, and decency are not infrequently passed, and that it is time in some way and degree to protect the public from the annoyances and dangers to which this sort of photography, as it is now practiced, often subjects them.

The chief abuse lies in the taking of flashlight pictures not only without permission, but without warning. Actual permission, indeed, is hardly necessary as regards a great majority of the groups or gatherings that interest the photographers who work for the newspapers and magazines, but for people at all sensitive to sudden shocks—and that means almost everybody—it is a most unpleasant experience to have a considerable amount of a strong explosive set off close at hand with no preliminary announcement of what is going to happen.

We do not remember that anybody ever was "frightened to death," as the saying is, in this way, but such a result is far from impossible to sufferers from weak hearts and unstable nerves, and there is no question that many people have been injured in health as well as temper by the unexpected bangs and flashes to which they have been exposed. When everybody knows what is coming little or no harm can be done, but when the cannon-and-lightning effect is produced with no chance to prepare for it—that is quite another matter. The thing is an abuse and an evil, and it need be neither.

These remarks of protest are especially addressed to the managers of public dinners and of such meetings as that held this week to celebrate the memory of Mark Twain. They can, if they choose, at least see to it that nobody is thus dangerously or painfully startled, and the consequence of judicious action on their part will be the production of better, not worse, flashlight pictures, while the number of those worth taking will not be materially decreased.

And there is one other argument in favor of always giving the warning for which we ask: Anybody who doesn't want to have his or her picture taken at a dinner or meeting should have an opportunity to escape in time. There are often good reasons for such reluctance, and among them, now and then, is modesty.

It Didn't Seem Fortuitous.

What a pity it was that when the General Manager of the not much loved Interborough Company started for the Public Service Commission meeting on Wednesday there chanced to be lying on his desk a little compilation of traffic figures which later was to embarrass him by illustrating the deceptive capacity of correct statistics!

For, after he had read the figures and drawn from them the deduction that increased subway accommodations, if needed at all, should be on the Lenox Avenue rather than the Broadway branch, somebody called attention to the fact that the comparison had been made in the Summer months, when east siders stay at home and a good many west siders retire to Sabine and other farms. Thereupon Mr. HEDLEY's deduction died the death, and his explanation that mere chance had determined his bringing of that particular document to the hearing was received with—well, it didn't add materially to the Interborough's popularity or to its reputation for frank and fair dealing with the public.

Perhaps Mr. HEDLEY was right in saying that the relative showing for the two branches would have been much the same for other months, but a deathless suspicion had been aroused. If ever there was a company which should avoid even the appearance of evil it is the Interborough, and few, alas! have been more unsuccessful in doing it.

URBAN POPULATION.

Returns Show 73 Per Cent. of Total Increase in the Cities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With the announcement to-night of the populations of Nebraska and Maryland, nearly two-thirds of the population of the country in 1910 has been tabulated and announced by States and Territories.

The total population of the twenty-five States and Territories hitherto announced is 51,150,529, as compared with 43,542,141 in 1900 and 36,462,774 in 1890. The gains of these twenty-five States in the last ten years have therefore been 7,608,388, while from 1890 to 1900 the gains were 7,079,367, or only 529,021 less.

Of the gain 1900-10, 4,793,060, or 73 per cent., has been in cities of 25,000 and over, whereas in the same cities, 1890-1900, the gain was 3,516,564, or 49.6 per cent. of the entire gain of that period.

Outside the cities of 25,000, from 1900 to 1910 the gain has been 2,815,328, or 37 per cent. of the gain of these twenty-five States, whereas from 1890 to 1900 these States, outside the same cities, increased 3,562,803, or 50.4 per cent. of their entire gain.

In a letter recently received from Director Durand he informs me that my previous prediction that the growth of the urban population in the last decade will be very considerably greater, both in quantity and in percentage, than from 1890 to 1900, agrees with his own impression.

The rapid tabulation of twenty-five States to-night, made and summarized as above, reinforces my certainty of the correctness of that prediction.

Repopulating the Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the communication from Mr. Steiner in your issue of the 30th, together with your editorial comment on the same. The difficulty lies in the fact that the small farmer cannot make a living to-day, owing to the charges imposed upon him by the express companies. He is forced to sell at "bid prices" to the middleman, because he cannot ship to the consumers in the cities in amounts that they can use. Give the country a parcels post in connection with the recently authorized Postal Savings Bank and you will make the longest stride toward repopulating the rural communities. W. P.

FOR PRISONERS' FAMILIES.

Mrs. Booth Asks Charity for Needy Wives and Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Year after year you have given me the opportunity of bringing to the thoughts and hearts of your many readers the need of the wives and children of men in prison. I have been grateful for this chance because it has brought to us a liberal response from many who only needed to hear the cry of the sorrowing to quickly respond to it with practical aid.

The further I go in my prison work the more do I realize that upon the innocent falls the heaviest burden of suffering so far as physical privations are concerned. These men who to-day are working for the State, however hard their lot may be, have at least warmth, clothing, and food, but they have left behind poverty-ridden homes. There we have found hard-working and broken-hearted mothers whose struggles for existence are appallingly hard, and little ones who are often poorly clothed, insufficiently fed, and lacking at this glad season all the joys and comforts that make Christmas the long-looked-for delight of our happier little ones.

Being so closely in touch with the prisoners, we of the Volunteer Prison League come to know of poverty that would be hidden from the world, for these women are not beggars for charity. Many of them are very self-respecting and they often suffer in silence. We know of hundreds of homes where this Christmas there would be no Christmas cheer, but where real hunger, cold, and misery would reign unless we can step in at the right moment with the gifts that will banish these enemies of the Christmastide gladness.

We will spread no great feast to feed the poor promiscuously, but we do plan to carry Christmas into hundreds of homes. Each case is investigated, and warm clothing will be purchased to fit every child, while groceries, dolls, and toys will be added to the packing of every Christmas box. We also give chickens, fruit, vegetables, and fuel, where the need is the greatest and in those homes within our personal reach.

May I ask your readers to help us in this practical charity? Any donations of clothing, toys, or money will be most acceptable. They should be directed to Mrs. Ballington Booth, Volunteer Prison League, 84 West Twenty-eighth Street, New York City.

The World's Fastest Trains.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I would like to call your correspondent's attention to several of our fast trains which he seems to have forgotten.

Probably the fastest trains for short distances are four trains on the Philadelphia & Reading between Camden and Atlantic City. Their scheduled running time for 56 miles is 50 minutes, which means 67.2 miles per hour. The Pennsylvania runs several trains between the same points 59 miles in 54 minutes, or 65.5 miles per hour.

For long distances the Twentieth Century Limited and the Twenty-four-hour St. Louis probably hold the record. The former covers 959 miles in 17 hours and 55 minutes, at the rate of 53.6 miles per hour, and the latter 1,171 miles in 24 hours, at 48.8 miles per hour.

There are countless trains in the East covering 90 to 450 miles at the rate of from 50 to 58 miles per hour.

The Paris-Calais express, of which "B. R. C." speaks, covers 186 miles in 3 hours and 20 minutes, at the rate of 56 miles per hour.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to recent discussions in THE TIMES there is probably no subject as deep and little understood as medicine, yet let the layman get the least insight into the subject and he immediately becomes imbued with the idea that he is a finished pupil on the subject and leads himself and his family into all sorts of wild dreams. This condition is too often caused by publicity in medical matters. Discussion is excellent, necessary, in fact, but let us confine it to the meeting room at the academy. Don't burden the layman with it. Give him a rest from these matters, and mayhap the patent medicine man may in the future find that his literature is less sought after.

SUCCESS OF SUFFRAGE.

Miss Blackwell Asks Us to Suppose Wyoming Were New York.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Commenting on the recent adoption of the woman suffrage amendment in Washington, a writer in your columns says that equal suffrage does neither harm nor good. For half a century its opponents have declared that it would do the most frightful harm. They have now "come down" half way, and say it has no results at all. This marks progress; but suffragists cannot agree to call it a drawn game. As Mrs. Julia Ward Howe wrote in The Outlook of April 3, 1909:

"It has now been proved to demonstration, not only that woman suffrage has no bad results, but that it has certain definite good results;" and she went on to enumerate them.

It is said that the evidence is conflicting. The conflict is as one-sided as a fight would be between the whole United States Navy on the one hand and a canal boat on the other.

Suppose New York had adopted some law forty years ago, and after twenty years' experience of it as a statute had incorporated it into its Constitution by an overwhelming majority; suppose every Governor of New York for forty years had testified that it worked well; suppose the Legislature had twice passed resolutions bearing witness to its advantages by a unanimous vote; suppose three States bordering directly upon New York had copied the New York law; and suppose that for the last twenty years the opponents of such legislation elsewhere had not been able to find in all New York State two respectable men who would say over their own names and addresses that it had had any bad results. Then the case of New York would be that of Wyoming.

Or take Colorado. Suppose New York had had a certain law for seventeen years and no motion had ever been made to repeal it, but, after some years' experience of it as a statute, it had been embodied in the Constitution by a large majority. Suppose long lists of eminent New Yorkers testified that it had done good, while it was almost impossible to find a respectable New Yorker who would say over his own name that it had done harm.

The late Justice Brewer called attention in The Ladies' World to the large number of witnesses in the suffrage States who declared woman suffrage has worked well and the scarcity of those who say otherwise. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe wrote, in the article already quoted:

"During many years the opponents of woman suffrage have been diligently gathering all the adverse testimony that they could find. So far as appears by their published literature, they have not found, in all our enfranchised States put together, a dozen respectable men, residents of those States, who assert over their own names and addresses that it has had any ill effects. A few say that it has done no good, but the mass of testimony on the other side is overwhelming."

ALICE STONE BLACKWELL.

Dorchester, Mass., Nov. 30, 1910.

Mr. Barry's Story of Suffrage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems somewhat surprising that Alice Stone Blackwell should be so much concerned about Richard Barry's mistakes in reporting facts. She seems so concerned about the mistake made by Mr. Barry concerning Mrs. Gage, Mrs. Blatch, and Mrs. Belmont—all very trivial and unimportant.

If Mr. Barry is right, (and I know he is, because I have lived in Colorado nineteen years, and have voted myself,) all the facts concerning the excellence of woman suffrage printed by the suffragists are not true, and the suffragists facts are in question, and not those of Mr. Barry.

Mr. Bok and Mr. Barry should be thanked for their honest endeavor to tell the public what the woman's vote has accomplished for women in the four suffrage States.

The suffrage information generally comes here to us in the East from suffrage camps. If we applied to Tammany we would get excellent results of what Tammany is doing; hence, Mr. Barry's unprejudiced presentation of the true state of affairs in Colorado should be appreciated by the large reading public, that thank you for publishing his results.

MUNICIPAL DANCES.

Believes There Are Ways Public Dances May Improve a City.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your remark this morning, apropos of "Milwaukee's Municipal Dance," that "our idea of the functions of city government has never included social entertainments," inspires the belief that you would be interested in The Record-Herald's account of the social enterprises which are being supported by the city of Chicago.

The fieldhouses of Chicago's smaller parks, to the number of a dozen or more, are open freely to all sorts of social organizations. Of the hundreds of clubs which avail themselves of such opportunity, two-thirds make dancing their principal feature. The halls of the fieldhouses furnish suitable floors, lights, proper supervision by qualified attendants, and, in most cases, facilities for music. And there is no charge for admission.

In Rochester a common closing feature of the "general evenings" which are held weekly in the schoolhouse social centres is a dance in which the whole neighborhood joins. These centres are run and maintained by the Board of Education.

In New York the hot Summer evenings are made endurable for thousands of working girls by the bands and opportunities to dance which are provided out of city funds in the schoolhouse roof gardens. Social dances are also permitted at the recreation piers maintained by the Dock Department. During the past Winter mixed dances were also enjoyed at six of the evening recreation centres which are supported by the Board of Education.

The way in which "public dances can improve a city" was illustrated by the dance which was held last St. Patrick's Day evening at one of the east side centres. A club of girls were the hostesses and the guests were boys from neighboring centres, selected for the occasion by their Principals. A visiting school official counted three hundred young people on the floor having a most enjoyable time. On leaving, he stepped across the street into a commercially managed dance hall of questionable character which ordinarily had a large patronage. That evening only thirty couples were present.

New York, Nov. 30, 1910.

What Mr. Corwine Said.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your account this morning of the hearing yesterday before the special committee of Congress investigating into the lobby which it has been charged was maintained at Washington by the foreign steamship companies to defeat ship subsidy legislation, you quote me as having said that Mr. Gustav H. Schwab was the only member of the Merchants' Association interested in shipping. The question which brought this out was whether or not any member of the Merchants' Association at that time was interested in foreign shipping. I replied that the only member who was prominent in that connection, whose name I could recall, was Mr. Gustav H. Schwab of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, adding that he declined to take part in the discussion of the various ship subsidy bills when they were being considered by the Directors of the Merchants' Association, declining also to vote on any of the resolutions which were presented to that board by the special committee which had been appointed to study the bills and ordered to report its conclusions. Mr. Schwab even went so far as to offer to resign from the board and the association if his fellow-members thought he ought to do so. The Directors appreciated his fair-mindedness, and, while permitting him to refrain from participation in the discussions and from voting, would not permit him to resign.

I felt that it was due to Mr. Schwab's high character that a statement to the foregoing effect be placed upon the record by one who had knowledge of the facts.

REMBRANDTS AMONG PICTURES TO BE SOLD

Durer Also Represented in Dr. Charles Hitchcock's Collection at American Galleries.

MR. HIRSCHBERG'S IVORIES

Excellent Examples of the Skill of Japanese Carvers — Robert Hoe Pictures and Objects of Art.

In the upper rooms of the American Art Galleries two collections are on view which will be sold next week. The engravings and etchings collected by Dr. Charles Hitchcock contain many very fine examples to which the catalogue, written by Fitzroy Carrington, is an illuminating guide. Among the old masters Dürer and Rembrandt take, of course, first place. There are beautiful silvery impressions of the famous "Melancholia" and of the "St. Hubert," full of a delicate atmosphere unusual in Dürer's engravings and never present in impressions too heavily charged with ink. The "Virgin with the Monkey" is also present in a very fine impression, and the portrait of Erasmus is in a condition that properly emphasizes the superb technique of the plate.

Among the Rembrandts is a remarkably rich impression of the "Three Crosses" in the fourth state, according to Rovinski. In this state the light seems to stream down from the upper portion of the plate, fairly drenching the central figures in a flood of radiance. The "Ecce Homo" is also shown in the fourth state, and there is a beautiful impression of the "Christ Preaching," a marvel of the artist's characteristic treatment of chiaroscuro.

The modern prints range from Jacque to Jacquemart, and include, by the way, some particularly fine examples of the latter, who, together with Felix Buhot, merits an even greater degree of appreciation than either has received from collectors and connoisseurs.

Mr. Hirschberg's ivories are nearly all of Japanese workmanship and are excellent examples of the skill shown by the carvers of that nation in giving life and variety to figures executed on a very small scale. A few of the pieces are comparatively large, notably that in which an old man sawing a log is the principal figure. In all the intimate and domestic scenes corresponding to the favorite subjects of the print-makers, the vitality of the conception and the delicacy of the execution are in strong contrast to the little group of European carvings in the exhibition. Porcelains, bronzes, and enamels of varying degrees of importance and an interesting group of jade carvings, with a few miniatures, make up the rest of the collection.

The most interesting event at the American Art Galleries this year will be the sale of the Robert Hoe pictures and objects of art, which will take place either the last of January or the first of February. The work on the catalogue has just been begun, and the numbers run up to three thousand items in the different departments, probably a two weeks' sale. Mr. Hoe was an eclectic and eager collector, and his possessions included watches, ivories, prints, enamels, miniatures, silver, fans, and many other forms of art besides pictures, of which he had rather more than a hundred, representing many schools, the French school, however, taking precedence.

At the Knoedler Galleries this week is a roomful of pictures by George Hitchcock, which includes much of his best recent work. The "Flight into Egypt" is there with its faint suggestions of Bastien Lepage in the cool gray coloring; there is a field of poppies with a little peasant girl in a black dress, the flat plane made by the tops of the flowers extremely well indicated, and there is a particularly charming little picture of a woman standing under the trees, her gown dappled with light and shadow, feeding a young goat. The texture of the goat's hair and the subdued color scheme are in the artist's most fortunate manner.

There is also a group of water-color paintings on ivory by Mrs. Hitchcock, which are more or less akin to her husband's interpretation of Dutch types.

On one wall of the upper gallery is a group of miniatures by Alyn Williams, President of the Royal Society of Miniature Painters in England, very minute, formal, and painstaking in style. His portrait of President Taft is a quite different affair from the Sorolla portrait, and is decidedly the President on dress parade, with much of his individuality subdued. In Knoedler's window is Rufus Zogbaum's picture of the United States Fleet at Sea, a fine union of technicality and freedom. The waves move rhythmically and the ships ride them gracefully, all the details are rendered with the certainty and definition of a man sure of his facts, yet the general effect is neither pedantic nor trivial.

At the Kennedy Galleries is a large collection of mezzotints and stipples, largely drawn from a private collection recently acquired and of unusually good quality. "A Poultry Market" and "A Vegetable Market," engraved by W. Ward after James Ward, are in the pleasant rustic vein that gives both Ward's pictures and Wheatley's the precise character required for these naïve translations. The "Outside of a Country Alehouse," with its animated pack of dogs and its dashing huntsman stopping for his mug of ale, is a masterpiece of appropriate rendering.

The Morland subjects are also excellent material for the engraver designing to print in color, but Romney's sweetness becomes insipid and Sir Joshua's archness mannered in the hands of even the competent Bartolozzi.

OLD ENGLISH FURNITURE SOLD

$925 Paid for a Table and $550 for Cupboard—Lots of Chairs.

The people in New York who are in need of chairs started in to buy them at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, and they will continue the rest of the week.

"Did any one ever see so many chairs?" exclaimed a woman examining the old English furniture which is being sold for the Tiffany Studios. There are so many chairs that they will bring lower prices than a smaller collection, but even at that the average person will not set up housekeeping with them. The single chair which brought the lowest price yesterday was the first sold, a Windsor side chair, one of those old-fashioned chairs with rounds in the back and centre slat, the one in this instance having a star cut in the centre.

Among other pieces sold yesterday was an old oak dining table, dating from 1620 to 1640, a long, narrow, straight table, with four heavy carved legs and a low rail, or stretcher, connecting the legs at the bottom, carved with a shell design. One of the tables, with which long benches were used for seats, started at $500, and went finally to W. W. Seaman, agent, for $925. A charming Chippendale drop-leaf table of mahogany, with a carved-rope moulding edge and bird's claw and ball feet, went to Mrs. Edwin Gould for $110. A mahogany tilt-top table, with the piecrust edge, went to H. O. Heydt for $180. Mrs. H. W. Bull paid $75 for one, and another went to A. R. Shattuck for $130.

L. V. Lockwood paid $125 for a mahogany dumb-waiter table and William E. Bailey $140 for another. Albert D. Guion paid $250 for a pair of mahogany candle stands. A mahogany tilt table with rat's claw and ball feet went to Mrs. George C. Perkins for $200, and another, with slightly carved feet, to Guy W. Walker for $155.

A Hepplewhite mahogany sideboard was bought by Mrs. MacLeod for $210. Mrs H. S. Lowndes paid $230 for an Empire mahogany sofa. A quaint old desk, with innumerable tiny drawers at the top, went to Harris Fahnestock for $190. Gilt mirrors brought good prices yesterday, and one in Sheraton style, surmounted by three horns of plenty, went to Mrs. Lowndes for $200. Mrs. Gould paid $180 for another Sheraton mirror of delicate design, with festoons of wheat at the top.

Of the chairs, a walnut Flemish style armchair went to Guy W. Walker for $260 and two carved and caned Flemish beech side chairs to Mrs. Lorillard for $260. Mrs. Herbert L. Pratt of Brooklyn bought a Chippendale armchair for $105, another for $65, and a third for $85. A cupboard, with two drawers at top and two doors below, went to James Fenimore Cooper for $170. Another, with designs in early Renaissance, went to Bernet, agent, for $550, and a great Flemish oak cabinet in three pieces went to William E. Bailey for $225. The sale continues this afternoon. The returns for the day were $15,812.

MISS TAFT'S DEBUT WHITE HOUSE EVENT

Twelve Hundred Guests to Greet Coming Out of President's Young Daughter.

BRILLIANT WITH UNIFORMS

Taft's Daughter the Third White House Debutante in a Decade—The Misses Roosevelt the Others.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The début of Miss Helen Taft, only daughter of the President of the United States, which took place at the White House this afternoon, adds another to the list of historic social events associated with the Executive Mansion. The President received with Mrs. Taft and their daughter, in the great East Room, welcoming with a cordial grasp of the hand each of their 1,200 guests. Capt. Archibald Butt, the President's aid acted as master of ceremonies. The full Marine Band played in the outer corridor throughout the two hours of the reception.

Col. Spencer Cosby, U. S. A., with Commander Leigh Palmer, U. S. N., stood to the left of the President who, in reverse of the usual order, was the last member of the receiving party. Once past the East Room the company broke into small groups in the various drawing rooms, each gorgeous with choicest roses and chrysanthemums from the White House conservatory, and hundreds of baskets and bouquets sent in the débutante's honor.

Miss Taft, who is tall and slender, carried a cluster of lilies of the valley and wore a pink chiffon gown, built on white satin. The chiffon stopped shortly below the knees leaving the scant round skirt of the present mode. The bodice was formed by surplice drapery back and front, leaving a deep V of blonde lace picked out in tiny pink beads. Mrs. Taft's gown was blue chiffon cloth over satin, all in a rich hew tone with bands of skunk fur used in graceful lines on shirt and bodice.

All the officers present wore full uniform, which added to the brilliant appearance of the company.

In the state dining room a beautifully appointed table decorated with thousands of pink roses and lighted by pink shaded tapers extended from end to end of the room. Mrs. Beekman Winthrop and Miss Boardman dispensed tea at one end, Miss Colton and Miss Mary Southerland serving chocolate from the other.

Miss Taft is the third White House débutantes in a decade. President Roosevelt's two daughters were presented during Mr. Roosevelt's term of seven years, the eldest, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, having made her début in the first year of her father's administration, and Miss Ethel Roosevelt in its latter days.

The presence of the Vice President and Mrs. Sherman at Miss Taft's coming-out party effectually settles the relations of the Vice Presidential and Presidential households, so far as political affairs are concerned. The break between Mr. Taft and Mr. Sherman last Summer had been expected for a time to be permanent. When Mr. Sherman failed to call at the White House on the occasion of his visit to Washington a few weeks ago, the circumstance gave rise to many rumors that in future there would be no exchange of courtesies between Mr. Taft and the Vice President. The invitations to the Cabinet dinner on Dec. 15, issued yesterday, showed also that there would be no obvious cessation of courtesies between the two households. The Vice President is among those invited, and it is confidently expected that he will be present.

WM. THAW, THIRD, WEDS MISS BRADLEY

Ceremony in the St. Regis Attended by 100, Including Pittsburg and Philadelphia Relatives.

MARRIED IN FLORAL CHAPEL

Bridegroom Son of Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., and Bride the Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bradley.

The marriage of William Thaw, 3d, son of Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., of Pittsburg, and Miss Gladys Virginia Bradley, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henderson Bradley, was celebrated yesterday afternoon at 4:30 in the Louis XV. suite at the Hotel St. Regis, the Rev. Dr. Daniel Dorchester, formerly of Christ Church, Pittsburg, officiating.

The ceremony took place in the larger room of the suite, which had been converted into a floral chapel, the decorations being white and green. The white prie dieu was placed at the west end of the room under a low-hanging bower of smilax and white chrysanthemums.

An aisle was made with white posts, roped off with white ribbon, and it was down this aisle that the bride walked with her father to the altar. She wore a satin gown richly embroidered and trimmed with old point lace, a tulle veil, and carried three streamers of very small orchids over her arm.

The bride had no attendants, but when the ring was placed upon her finger, little Miss Cordelia Drexel-Biddle of Philadelphia, her niece, stepped up and took the streamers of orchids. Miss Drexel-Biddle wore a frock of light blue chiffon and a hat to match, tied with pink ribbons.

There were no ushers. Mr. Thaw's best man was Frank Dorman of Pittsburg. The wedding music was played by an orchestra in the main corridor, and the guests remained standing in the long suite during the ceremony. There were about 100 guests in attendance.

Reception in Marble Ballroom.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the marble ballroom, where a buffet collation was served. The ballroom was decorated with red American Beauty roses. The bride removed her tulle veil and greeted her friends, with a drapery of old family lace over her head and shoulders. Half an hour after the ceremony the bride and bridegroom were ready to start on their bridal trip. Mrs. Thaw's going-away costume was of heliotrope-shaded cloth with a large black velvet hat.

The majority of the guests ranged up in the marble corridors, near the elevators, anxiously awaiting the reappearance of the bride and bridegroom. When they had stood there about half an hour they learned that the couple had left the hotel through a private entrance on Fifth Avenue and were already on their way to the new Pennsylvania station.

After a short bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Thaw will spend the remainder of the month visiting their relatives in Pittsburg, Philadelphia, and Bridgeport, Conn. Mr. and Mrs. Bradley are still occupying their Summer home at Bridgeport, and came down to the St. Regis on Wednesday with their daughter to prepare for the wedding. In January the couple will sail for Europe, where they purpose spending several months.

Many Relatives Among Guests.

There were many persons from Pittsburg and Philadelphia among the guests, all of them having come especially for the wedding. The bride is a sister of Mrs. A. Drexel-Biddle of Philadelphia. Mr. Thaw is a grandson of the late William Thaw of Pittsburg. Their engagement was announced last Summer.

The members of the Thaw family present, besides Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., the mother of the bridegroom, were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Collins (Mrs. Collins is a sister of the bridegroom), and Mrs. Copley Thaw, formerly the Countess of Yarmouth.

Those coming from Philadelphia were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel-Biddle and Miss Drexel-Biddle, Mrs. Joseph Gazzam and Miss Gazzam, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sinnickson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baird, and Arthur L. Wheeler.

Among those from Pittsburg were Mr. and Mrs. George Westinghouse, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Jamieson, and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Miller. Mrs. Miller is a sister of the bride.

Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. Thomas Carnegie of Florida, Mrs. Albert Pease, Mrs. James Sullivan, Mrs. Harry Luce, Buchanan Stuart, Howard Shelley, Miss Mary Newhurst of Florida, Miss Mary Mortimer, J. C. Wheeler, Mr. Van Vechten, W. J. Brady, E. E. Lyon, and Ralph Flynn.

The friends of the bride's family at Bridgeport who attended included Judge and Mrs. Marion, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Henshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Ten Eyck, Gregory Bryan, William Reed, Mr. and Mrs. McNiel, Arthur Wheeler, and Byron Brooks.

Williams Offers Stage Hands Increased Salaries if They Stop Practice

Percy Williams announced yesterday that he had entered into an agreement with the Theatrical Union, made up of stage employes, by which he agreed to increase their salaries materially on the condition that they refrain from accepting tips from the actors playing his houses. Mr. Williams explained that the custom of tipping the stage hands had been the source of considerable discrimination and criticism in vaudeville theatres, as high-salaried performers, able to give generous tips, had received courtesies which the smaller salaried actors were denied. He said that in some cases the stage hands were said to mark a performer's baggage with secret signs by which other stage hands could tell if this actor was an open handed tipper.

CISSIE LOFTUS A MOTHER.

Son Born to Actress, Who Is the Wife of Dr. A. H. Waterman.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Mrs. Waterman, better known as Cecilia Loftus, became the mother of a baby boy to-night.

Cecilia Loftus, better known as Cissie Loftus, was married on June 9, 1909, to Dr. A. H. Waterman of Chicago. This was her second marriage, her first husband having been Justin Huntley McCarthy, the English dramatist, with whom she eloped while playing a theatrical engagement in England. They were divorced in the United States some years later. Miss Loftus is best known for her impersonations of prominent actors, but her last engagements here were in regular dramatic productions.

Maugham's Play, "Loaves and Fishes."

W. Somerset Maugham, the English playwright, author of "Smith," "Mrs. Dot," "Penelope," and other comedies, returned to New York yesterday after visiting Boston and Washington. He has completed the first act of his next play, which is to be a farce called "Loaves and Fishes," and expects to finish it immediately after his return to London. Its first performance will be given there the first week in February.

RUSSIAN SYMPHONY CONCERT

Successful Appearance of a New Violinist, Miss Katharine Parlow.

The second concert of the Russian Symphony Orchestra, given last evening in Carnegie Hall, was made notable by effecting the first appearance in this country of Miss Katharine Parlow, violinist, an artist who immediately established her claim to the high consideration of this public. Miss Parlow is a Canadian, who has played abroad and of whose work favorable report has come; but favorable report from foreign parts is not often so conclusively confirmed by actual achievement as was the case with Miss Parlow.

She played Tschaikowski's concerto: a composition to tax the powers of the most accomplished violinist, one that is expected to put foremost the brilliancy and bravura of the virtuoso's attainments. Yet Miss Parlow made it seem that, while she possesses such attainments in the fullest measure, she has the more valuable gifts of a truly musical capacity, an artistic insight and fine taste. All these things united to make her performance a remarkable achievement, a promising introduction of a young artist from whom much may be expected. Miss Parlow has a tone of purity, roundness and mellowness, of a quality both searching and sympathetic.

In the most brilliant passages it never loses this musical quality, and in cantilena it is moving and expressive. She plays with a remarkable accuracy of intonation, and with a fluency and precision that do not fall her in the most exacting and difficult passages, which, in this concerto, are piled one upon another. Her bowing is masterly in its elasticity and freedom; and slender as this young woman is to look at, she shows an astonishing endurance, and unflagging power, a sweep of nervous energy that is manifested beneath poise and repose. In the first movement there was a splendid authority and élan, and in the slow movement there was depth of feeling and poignancy of expression.

The last allegro might be played with more of the reckless abandon that Tschaikowski has suggested in it, and that other players of another disposition have put into it; but there was no lack of brilliancy and dash in Miss Parlow's presentation. In all she does there is incisiveness of rhythm and finish of phrasing that come from her admirable mastery of the bow; her exceeding accuracy of intonation is a grateful boon to the ear, and there is an unexpected authority in her performance that imposes itself at once upon her listeners. There is the self-effacement of a truly artistic nature that is concerned with the music rather than with the exploitation of its own powers. This concerto is a temptation to the spirit of virtuosoship; and the fact that Miss Parlow approaches it not as a medium for display, but rather as one seeking its essentially musical quality, gives a promise of interest to the further disclosure of her powers in dealing with music less concerned with externals and more of the spirit.

The orchestra played Tschaikowski's first symphony, a work wholly characteristic of him, though composed in his earlier years, and indeed one for which he cherished a special fondness all his life. The playing of it was in some respects better than much that the orchestra has done. There was an intermezzo, by Napravnik, for strings, singularly effective in color and in melodiousness, and two Caucasian sketches by Ippolitow-Ivanow that Mr. Altschuler has given before. And there was a novelty, a "Fireworks" fantasy by Strawinsky. It is an ingenious piece, that meets all the expectations derived from its title and that in one of its sections suggests that the composer has listened intently to Strauss. But it prompted the reflection that fireworks, like children, are made to be seen and not heard.

COBURN ACTORS IN ALCESTIS.

Blanche S. Wagstaff's Poetic Drama Is Presented at Hudson Theatre.

"Alcestis," a poetic drama, by Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff, from the Euripidean story of Alcestis and Admetus, was presented at the Hudson Theatre yesterday afternoon by the Coburn Players, who appeared at the same theatre earlier in the week in Gilbert Murray's version of the "Elektra" of Euripides. "Elektra," by the way, also was given yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Wagstaff, in making a play of the story of Alcestis, has been able to preserve much of the dignity of the Greek drama and to give to it in English the same sonorous verse quality that marks Prof. Murray's translation of the other drama. It would be difficult to form a correct estimate of the literary quality of her work from the spoken play alone.

The Fates have ordained the death of the King of Thessaly, but in order that he may live his wife, Alcestis, gives herself in his place, neither of his aged parents being willing to suffer death for his sake. Hercules comes to visit the King and learns of his bereavement. Advised by Nemesis, the hero follows Alcestis to the tomb, and there wrestles with Death and regains her, bringing her back to her husband. The chorus is spoken by men and the characters include, besides Nemesis, Alcestis, Admetus, and Hercules, Apollo, Erebus, and Pheres, the father of Admetus. The setting is a garden, and the costuming, like that of "Elektra," consists of clinging draperies, made sombre by black veils.

Mrs. Coburn appeared yesterday in the title rôle, and John E. Kellard had the part of Admetus. Mr. Coburn played Hercules, Dorothy Turner was Nemesis, Leopold Lane, Apollo, Malcolm Dunn, Erebus, and Burr Caruth, Pheres. The chorus was spoken by David Kirkland and Frank Richter.

"IL TROVATORE" IS GIVEN.

Performance at Metropolitan Lacks Spirit—Slezak Sings with Cold.

Leonora	Marie Rappold
Azucena	Louise Homer
Inez	Emma Bonnigis
Manrico	Leo Slezak
Il Conte di Luna	Pasquale Amato
Ferrando	Giulio Rossi
Ruiz	Pietro Audisio
Un Zingaro	Edoardo Missiano
Conductor	Vittorio Podesti

The Metropolitan Opera Company is obviously bending all its forces in the direction of the first production of "The Girl of the Golden West" and "Königskinder," and so "off nights" are probably inevitable for a week or so. Last evening, for instance, the initial performance this season of "Il Trovatore" was not by any means up to the standard of the theatre. In the first place the performance was lacking in spirit; neither orchestra, chorus, nor principals, with one or two exceptions, were above reproach in this respect.

Mr. Slezak sang Manrico with a cold, and printed apologies were slipped into the programmes to this effect, so that it would be unfair to speak of his work. Mrs. Homer and Mr. Amato sang better than their colleagues, but Mrs. Homer's intonation was sometimes faulty and Mr. Amato did not seem to be singing as well as usual, although his air in the second act was given with such power and resonance of tone that it roused the house more than anything else during the evening.

Mme. Rappold sang the music of Leonora not much more than acceptably and Mr. Rossi was uncertain vocally as Ferrando.

The scenery had been retouched or rearranged and was a great improvement on the settings which have been used in the past. The costumes were also new.

Grell's Mass Postponed Until March.

Grell's celebrated mass will not be given by the Oratorio Society next Tuesday evening, as had been announced. The mass is written in a very early style, employing four four-part choirs and four solo quartets. The entire work is sung without accompaniment. The obvious difficulty has made it necessary to have more rehearsals and therefore the performance will be given on March 10.

The first performance the Oratorio Society will give this season will be "The Messiah," around Christmas time.

MUSIC NOTES.

An extra concert of W. W. Andreeff's Imperial Russian Balalaika Orchestra has been announced for next Sunday evening in the New Amsterdam Theatre. The soloist for the concert of this organization to-morrow night in Carnegie Hall will be Mme. Charlotte Maconda.

Katherine Hanford, soprano, and Morton Adkins, baritone, sang at the annual meeting of St. John's Guild at the Republic Theatre yesterday afternoon.

MRS. C. H. TROWBRIDGE DEAD

Her Historic Residence In Elm Street Passes to New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—The death of Mrs. Caroline Hoadley Trowbridge last night gives the city possession of a residence in Elm Street, which has many historical connections. The house stands between the new public library and the new County Court House, and has been the home of Mrs. Trowbridge for a great many years. When she deeded it to the city some time ago she retained a life interest in the property.

In ante-bellum days the house served as a refuge for fugitive slaves who were being sent North from New York to Boston. When volunteers were departing for the war they often gathered in front of the house, and on the lawn Mrs. Trowbridge presented to the Tenth Connecticut Volunteers a flag which she herself had made.

The Ponte Vecchio

Why do you linger on the Ponte Vecchio and examine and re-examine the many jewels displayed there, yet pass with indifference the far more wonderful productions in gold and jewels to be seen in shop windows on Fifth Avenue? Is it the Italian sky or the historic environment which casts a glamour over the gold and silver? Is it that our own unpoetic surroundings do not stimulate the imagination? Marcus & Company invite visitors to their showrooms to inspect their jewels and note their workmanship. There are fairy watches, so tiny, so jewel encrusted, so beautifully enameled that you would exchange all your Italian treasures just to own one of them. There are medallions that are as finely spun as cobwebs and yet wholly made of diamonds. There are gold mesh bags that it has taken months and months to fashion, ring by ring, and whose strong frames are set with the most precious stones. Come and see them. You will not return to the Ponte Vecchio for the sake of the jewels.

Robert Bruce will remain in charge of the National Headquarters Touring Information Bureau, which will be greatly amplified in the near future.

Reports from various States indicating the progress therein of the automobile movement were presented by these Directors: John Bancroft, Delaware; F. E. Edwards, Illinois; Dr. H. M. Rowe, Maryland; A. D. Converse, Massachusetts; Edwin S. George, Michigan; Col. F. M. Joyce, Minnesota; J. H. Edwards, New Jersey; F. G. Webb, New York; H. L. Vail, Ohio; Paul C. Wolff, Pennsylvania; John N. Brooks, Connecticut; Sam P. Atkinson, Virginia; M. C. Moore, Wisconsin, and S. S. Ballard, Vermont.

In placing the association the more emphatically on record concerning violations of a State's law by visiting motorists Dr. H. M. Rowe of Maryland offered a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, calling upon the officers of States issuing registration licenses to notify the executive officers of the A. A. A. of such offenses, so that the association could take action through its various State bodies.

Federal aid in the construction of highways, while working at the same time for State roads improvement, was embodied in the passage of this resolution:

"That this association emphatically indorses the principle of Federal aid in the construction of highways, and that it further indorse and urge upon each of the several States the permanent appointment of a Commissioner or Commissioners and the adoption of desirable highway laws and proper provisions for making the same effective."

While the professional element figures mostly in spectacular high-speed competition there has been indication recently that private owners may be induced to participate in amateur events under the proposed new definition barring from this class the driver whose trade affiliations give an advantage over the man who competes for the sport itself. Hence came the following resolution offered by Chairman S. M. Butler of the Contest Board:

"That the Contest Board call upon A. A. A. clubs to encourage amateur automobile competition by interesting their members in various forms of contests on road or track, or on courses properly prepared for such contests."

The retiring President, Mr. Speare, received a standing vote of thanks and a committee was appointed to select a memento of his notable occupancy of the association's highest office. In connection with the fothcoming annual meetings it was voted that a banquet should be held, and the President was empowered to appoint a committee to take charge of the affair.

Graduates' Association to Honor Team Victorious Over the Army.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 1.—A two-days' trip to New York as the guests of the Naval Academy Graduates' Association will be the unprecedented honor conferred upon the members of the academy football team next Saturday and Sunday in recognition of their splendid work in defeating West Point in the annual football game last Saturday. The invitation was extended largely through the efforts of Col. Robert M. Thompson of New York, and the necessary permission from the department was obtained by Commander R. E. Coontz, Commandant of Midshipmen.

The thirteen players who took part in the game with seven principal substitutes, and as many officers who have been actively interested in athletics, will form the party. They will leave Annapolis at noon next Saturday and will leave New York Sunday evening.

The members of the party will be Lieut. Frank D. Berrien, head coach; Lieut. Commander Harris Laning, officer in charge of athletics; Lieut. Commander Earl P. Jessup, Prof. Paul J. Dashiell, Lieut. F. H. Poteet, Lieut. James P. Lannon, and Ensign Jonas H. Ingram. The midshipmen will be Clay, Wright, Merring, Loftin, Douglas, Dalton, Sowell, Rodes, Gilchrist, Brown, Weems, Hamilton, and Elmer, with seven others to be selected. McDonalds Lead in New York Amateur League with a Total of Ten Points.

In the first division of the New York Association Football League the McDonalds lead eight other teams to date, with a total of 10 points, having won 4 games and drawn 2, with a goal record of 18, and 7 scored against them. The Critchleys are their closest opponents, with 8 points. The scores of the others follow: Hollywood, 7; Camerons, 6; Arcadias, 5; Columbia, 5; Bronx, 5; Astoria, 2, and Highbridge, 0.

Clan McDuff leads the second division with a clean score of victories, 8 in number, with 16 points. The Brooklyn Celtics have 14; Clan Bruce, 10; Clan McKenzie, 7; Donegals, 6; Mount Vernon, 5; St. George, 1, and Hungarians, 9.

From the above teams will be chosen the team which will represent New York State in the match against Pennsylvania on Dec. 26 in New York.

Tufts May Drop Football.

MEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 1.—Football may be abolished at Tufts College owing to inadequate financial support by the alumni. For the past three years the game has been a losing venture. Prof. Harry G. Chase, Chairman of the Athletic Advisory Board, favors dropping the sport. Prof. Chase's view is strongly opposed by the student body. The question of doing away with the game will be considered at the next meeting of the board.

Georgetown Re-elects Daly Captain.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Vincent Daly of Brookport, N. Y., at a meeting to-night of the Athletic Committee of Georgetown University, was re-elected Captain of the football team for the season of 1911. Daly directed the team in its successful season just closed and made a reputation in his position of left guard.

Little Actual Play in Big Game.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1.—The players in the recent Harvard and Yale football game were in actual motion only a trifle more than three minutes in each of the four fifteen-minute periods, according to a correspondent of The Harvard Bulletin, who held a stop watch at the game. It was also ascertained that there was an average of twenty-one minutes actual rest in each period. The correspondent says that there was less than fifteen minutes of running and wrestling stretched over two hours of play, and that the game is far less exhausting than a boat race, which calls for sustained effort for more than twenty minutes.

Committee to Select Soccer Team.

At a meeting of the New York State Association Football League the following committee was appointed to take charge of the arrangements and select a team to represent the association in the annual match with Pennsylvania. B. Martin, Clan McDonalds; N. Agar, Critchley; S. Johnson, Mount Vernon; F. Blackburn, Bronx; S. McNulty, Astoria, and J. Martin, Highbridge. A series of preliminary games will be played to select a representative eleven.

Catholic Club vs. Mohawks.

The Young Men's Catholic Club of Brooklyn and the Mohawk Athletic Club of the Bronx will meet in the second game of their series for football supremacy at Saratoga Field, Brooklyn, on Sunday. The Mohawk eleven is the only one to defeat the Catholic Club team this year, but the Bronx boys lost to the Acorn Athletic Association, and the Acorns were defeated by the Catholic Club. All three teams claim the club championship of Greater New York.

Recreation Centre's Games.

The Evening Recreation Centre of the High School of Commerce will hold indoor games at the high school gymnasium, West Sixty-fifth Street, to-night, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. The programme includes dashes of 20 and 220 yards, 880-yard run, one-mile run, and high and broad jumps. No admission is charged and the public is invited to attend. The Evening Recreation Centre of Commerce High School would like to arrange a dual meet with any evening school in Greater New York.

Montclair Basketball Schedule.

The basket ball schedule of Montclair Academy, Montclair, N. J., which has just been announced, includes ten games as follows: Dec. 7, Dwight School; Dec. 14, Glen Ridge High School; Jan. 11, Hasbrouck Institute; Jan. 18, Pennington Academy; Jan. 27, Peekskill Academy; Feb. 7, open; Feb. 10, Mackenzie School; Feb. 17, Kingsley School at Essex Fells; Feb. 24, University of Pennsylvania Freshmen, and March 3, Montclair High School at Academy. The second team is arranging to play six games.

YOUNG OTTO WHIPS JOE SEIGER BADLY

Contestants Refuse to Quit Even When Bell Announces the End of Bout.

Young Otto, the east side lightweight, gave Joe Seiger of Denver a hard pounding in their ten-round bout, which was the main event of the Long Acre A. C. last evening. The local boy made a strong finish after getting no better than an even break in the first half of the battle and left no doubt about his superiority over the Western boy. The tenth round was Otto's best, and he punished Seiger severely. At the close Seiger's face plainly showed the effects of Otto's hard wallops, while the New York boy bore no marks of any account.

Otto's clean work throughout the fight and his better work in the closing rounds gave him the verdict, but he had to fight all the way. He found in Otto one of the most willing mixers who has swapped punches in a local ring in some time and a boy who was willing to take all kinds of punishment to get over a few solid punches in return. Otto is known to possess a hard wallop in either mit, and he used both to good effect on the Denver bo ylast night, but he did not even stagger Seiger. Joe proved a glutton for punishment and carried the fighting to his opponent from start to finish, even though he had to pay the penalty for his rushing style of fighting. Both boys slugged in the open and pounded hard i nthe clinches, but neither scored a knockdown. Otto went to the floor in the fourth round, but it was due to slipping and not to any blow from Seiger.

The boys furnished all the fighting that could be crowded into ten rounds and seemed anxious to furnishe even more. The final bell found the two locked together near the ropes and pounding each other as hard as if the bell announced the beginning of a round. Referee Mike Neuman had to pull the boys apart when they refused to recognize the bell, and Seiger rushed from the ring refusing to shake hands with Otto. A few hisses mingled with the applause which the boys received for their hard battle.

The fighting in the opening round was very tame. Neither seemed anrious to do any leading for and practically all the blows which lanred were delivered in the clinches. Near the close of the round Seiger delivered what looked like a foul blow, and the first of a series of hisses which greeted his work during the fight were given by the crowd. Seiger bored in with head down and well protected, and in the clinches landed some hard rights on Otto's stomach and kidneys. In the second round the pair began the fast out, and both took some hard wallops. Seiger carried the fighting to Otto and did some telling work with his right uppercut i nthe clinches, but he had to take some hard swings to the head in return. Otto was fighting a cleaner cut battle.

The third round, which was marked by hard and fast fighting almost from bell to bell, was decidedly in Seiger's favor. His crouching style as he rushed in seemed to completely bewilder the local boy, and repeatedly, after forcing Otto back to the ropes, he got over terrific right and left jabs to the head. In the clinches, too, it was all Seiger, Otto showing up very poorly at both ends of the game. In the fourth round Otto came back strong, and pounded Seiger hard as the latter rushed in. Seiger continued to force the milling, and do the more effective work in the infighting. The fifth round was another for Seiger, who kept Otto backing up against the ropes and raining in blows altogether too fast for the east sider. Seiger opened a cut on Otto's ear in this round.

From the sixth round to the finish Otto gradually forged ahead. The crouching style of the Denver boy no longer puzzled him, and he pounded joe unmercifully as the latter rushed in to force the milling. In the seventh Seiger's face began to show the crimson, and in the tenth it was covered with blood and bruises. Seiger was hissed several times for his rough work.

The semi-final was a fast six-round battle between Johnny Kelly and Freddy Kaiser. Both were hard-hitting, clever fighters, and furnished a great battle, with the honors slightly in favor of Kelly.

Previous to the big bout of the evening Referee Mike Neuman introduced Young Griffo, the former wizard of the feather-weight class, who arrived in New York yesterday from Chicago on his return journey to his old home in Australia. He was accompanied by the Australian light-weight, Charley Griffen, who is taking the former idol back home. Both men were introduced, and Griffo was given a small ovation by the crowd.

Big Wrestling Carnival To-night.

Joe Humphreys's big wrestling revival comes off to-night at Grand Central Palace. Humphreys has completed a bill which, he says, has never been equaled in New York. The big feature of the carnival is the appearance of Zybszko, the giant Pole, in a handicap match against American Champion Tom Jenkins and Andrew Kindrat. Zybszko has undertaken the task of throwing each in half an hour. A second feature of the programme is Joe Rogers, the American Apollo, against three heavyweights—Phil Kuey, the Bavarian; Hans Tell, the Tyrolean Goliath, and Karl Pabst, the latest wrestling importation from Germany. Rogers agrees to throw each in fifteen minutes. George Bothner, the lightweight champion, is to appear against two men, Tom Boles of Wales and Gus Larsen of Sweden. To win Bothner must put both down within a time limit of twenty minutes. A little more international flavor is added to the bill in a match between Johnnie Nitlot, the Olympic champion, now instructor at Columbia University, and Will Bingham, champion light and welter weight of Great Britain. Bingham will then undertake to prove the superiority of catch-as-catch-can wrestling over the famous jiu jitsu art of the Japanese. He will meet Prof. Jillis, an English student of Japanese sports, both being rigged up in the jiu jitsu harness. Bingham promises to throw Jillis or make him quit in fifteen minutes. As an extra attraction, the opening number, the Kreiger brothers, two lilliputian wrestlers, will give a ten-minute exhibition, illustrating all the holds used in the mat game. Terry McGovern will officiate as referee in one bout. Ernest Roeber in another, Tom Sharkey in a third, and Charley White in the star events of the evening.

CYCLE SPRINT RACES.

Curtain-Raiser to Six-Day Grind at Madison Square Garden To-morrow.

The bicycle sprinting champions of three countries will meet at Madison Square Garden to-morrow night as a feature of the bicycle meet which will precede the annual six-day race, which will begin just after midnight Sunday. Frank Kramer, the American champion; Jack Clarke of Australia, and Walter Rutt of Germany will compete in a series of heats. All three are in the front row of cycling speed experts, and the three-cornered race should be fast and exciting. The race will be run in heats. The first will be at one mile, the second at half a mile, and if a third heat is necessary, the distance will be decided by the toss of a coin. The European system of scoring the race will be used, the first man in each heat to score one point, second two points, and third three points, the man having the lowest number of points to win. Rutt and Clarke are both to take part in the six-day race, Rutt being teamed with John Stol of Germany and Clarke with Floyd MacFarland of California.

Bobby Walthour and Elmer Collins will be seen in a ten-mile motor-paced race, and on the saucer track at the Garden high speed will be in order in this event. Walthour has recently returned from Europe, where he won a number of races. There will also be a ten-mile international open race, with an excellent field of contestants, including Kramer, Clarke, MacFarland, Root, Moran, Hill, Folger, Drobach, Lawson, and the foreigners Georget, Pouchois, Verlinden, Germain, Rutt, and Stol. Two amateur events, a quarter-mile and half-mile handicap, will complete the programme.

Columbia Starts in Basket Ball.

The Columbia basket ball team will get into motion to-night in the Morningside gymnasium, when they play the opening game of the season with the Trinity College quintet. The report from the Hartford team is that the Connecticut team is strong, and an interesting game is expected. It is probable that there will be two changes in the Columbia line-up from that of last year, since A. Alexander, '11L, who played centre, and R. Mahon, '12L, guard, have both said that it will be impossible for them to play, at least until February. The parents of both feel that the game takes too much time for men endeavoring to get through Law School. S. Jaques is the most likely choice for centre, while N. Salsbury will probably go in at guard. Both of these men have been in the 'Varsity squad for the past season and thus will fit in well with the old 'Varsity players.

Basket Ball Men to Meet.

The annual meeting of the Collegiate Basket Ball Rules Committee for Instruction and Interpretation of the Collegiate Basket Ball Rules will be held at Columbia University Gymnasium to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The meeting is for the purpose of instructing coaches, players, and officials on the rules so that their interpretation will be the same throughout the country. At last year's meeting there were about seventy men present. In the absence of Dr. Rayeroft of the University of Chicago, Chairman of the Rules Committee, who will conduct a meeting for the Western section of the country, Harry A. Fisher, member of the Rules Committee and coach of the Columbia University team, will interpret the various points of the game.

Aquinas Medicos Want Games.

The Aequinas Medico basketball team of West Farms would like to book games with teams averaging 110 pounds, offering a suitable guarantee within 100 miles of New York City; games to be played on opponents' courts on any Saturday nights in January and February. Address W. G. Marr, 1,988 Clinton Avenue, Bronx.

Detroit Wins in Eleventh.

HAVANA, Dec. 1.—The Detroit baseball team defeated the Almendares nine here to-day by a score of 3 to 2 in eleven innings.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

Fifty entries have been received for the amateur wrestling bouts at the Harlem Y. M. C. A. to-morrow night. Among the prominent men carded are Peterson, Fielsher, Ruggerio, Lee, and Bauers.

At the Bedford A. C. in Brooklyn to-night Jack Bradley of Philadelphia and Harry Phillips of Brooklyn will be the principals in the star bout at 120 pounds. Murray Allen and Young McFarland are to be the semi-finalists, while the preliminaries will show Young Otto and Willie Donnelly, Fighting Lockwood, and Jack Burgess, and Young Phillie and Eddie Jones.

For to-night at the new Polo Athletic Club Billy Moore, the President of the club, has arranged a number of bouts, chief among which will be the go between Danny Franklin and Buddy Eichler. The semi-final promises to be a slambang affair, with Fighting Cooper and Young Echler as the combatants. The four-round bouts will show Jack Siever and Tommy Moran, Young Mickey McDonough, and Joe Allen, and Solly Pastor and Young Bedell.

Three ten-round bouts and one six-round bout will be put on at the all-star show of the Olympic Club at the clubhouse on West 125th Street on Monday night. Jimmy Carroll of California, who holds decisions over Monte Attel and Sammy Keller of England, meets Tommy Houck of Philadelphia. Abe Attell, who will be the chief adviser for Carroll on Monday night, says Carroll is one of the best boxers in the country, and looks for him to score a knockout over the Quaker City bantam. In the other ten-round contests, Artie McGovern will meet Young Solsberg, and Joe Farmer will hook up with Leo Johnson. Kato Kiso, the Japanese boxer, who just arrived in this country, will go on with Kid Fabian for six rounds.

Frank Mantell and Sailor Burke will be the principals in the main bout of ten rounds before the National A. C. to-night. Burke has been training at Stratford and writes his manager, Tom O'Rourke, that he is in excellent condition and expects to win over Mantell. The Pawtucket boy showed up strongly in his recent bout with Jim Smith in this city and is just as confident as the sailor. Johnny Carroll, the only man credited with a knockout against Sailor Burke, will meet Jack Denning in the semi-final bout. Three preliminaries will precede these two events. On next Tuesday night Young Otto of New York, will meet Lew Powell, of California.

Jack Dorman and Joe Stein will clash in a 10-round bout which is the feature of to-night's boxing carnival at the Lehigh Athletic Club, Boston Road, near 169th Street. Al Dimmick and Joe Mahoney will figure in a 6-round bout in the semi-final and Young Ambrose will go against Marty Allen in the last preliminary. Two other bouts are also on the programme.

YALE DEFICIENT IN CREW MATERIAL

System of Coaching Not the Cause of Defeats, Says ex-Capt. Waterman.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—Yale's rowing defeats are declared by ex-Crew Capt. Cameron Waterman to be due to lack of material. Waterman, writing in The Yale Daily News, scores recent attacks on Coach John Kennedy, who he declares is the greatest rowing coach. Waterman says:

For years I have watched with alarm the trend of Yale rowing conditions and the underlying causes. As early as 1904 the result could be and was foreseen by many. Harvard men with whom I have conversed on the subject very erroneously attribute the decline to our coaching system, as this was the entire trouble in their own case not many years ago.

At one time there was much trouble with our coaching system, and by looking over a table of Yale-Harvard races one can easily locate its date, but that time is past, and I believe our present coaching system to be the best possible to meet American conditions and our coach, John Kennedy, to be without a peer. My own rather unusual experience with Yale rowing placed me in a position to judge it better than any one who has rowed at Yale in recent years.

I entered college in the Fall of 1897 in time to see the last of the Cook regime, viewing it from the inside, and I remained "on the ground" until June, 1904. In 1897 Bob Cook was in his rowing "dotage," so to speak; his ideas were not fixed, as they had formerly been, and he had lost his self-confidence. The graduates who returned for the Spring coaching for a day or two at a time could not be in a position to be valuable assistance in active coaching. There had not been one hand to watch the development in the rowing of the men as individuals or as a crew.

Dr. Gallaudet, who followed Bob Cook as coach, put his whole heart and soul into the work, but, although a finished oarsman himself, he had not the coaching experience that is essential to accomplish results. His theories were not based on sufficient practice.

I have seen graduates coach men for weeks at a time in vain endeavor to make them row like the rest of the boat and then appeal to John Kennedy, who corrected the trouble over night by simply changing the rigging of the boat. By raising or lowering the man's slide or outrigger the correction would be made and the next day the man would row like the rest of the crew, without ever knowing that things were different—except that he might feel more natural or comfortable and be able to get more power into his stroke. The rigging is something that does not enter into the matter in football coaching, and it makes crew coaching a different proposition. When I was in law school in 1902 I saw John Kennedy come into actual control. With him in supreme control of the active coaching Yale turned out winning crews, the coaching problem was solved, and while he holds the same position we must look elsewhere for the cause of the decline.

In 1904 the new trouble began to appear—the lack of material. Men who won their "Y" on the football field or felt reasonably sure of ultimately winning it did not come out for the crew.

Neither Yale nor any other college has proved that a winning crew can be turned out without material, and that I consider the entire trouble at the present time.

HARVARD MAY PLAY PENN.

Baseball Relations Likely to be Renewed Next Spring.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 1.—A Harvard-Pennsylvania baseball game next Spring is among the probabilities. Harvard and Pennsylvania alumni have been felt out on the subject and as the sentiment seems to be all in favor of the game, there is a good chance of its being arranged. Anyway, Harvard is willing. There has not been a Harvard-Pennsylvania baseball game since athletic relations between these universities were severed several years ago. There is to be only one Harvard-Princeton game on the next schedule and the Harvard-Pennsylvania game, which probably will be played here, will take the place of one of the battles with the Tigers.

A number of prominent baseball men have been considered in casting about for a coach for the Harvard ball team. No decision has been reached yet, but among those who have been written to asking if they could come and what their terms would be are Billy Lauder, Roy Thomas, Billy Keeler, Harry Bemis, Dave Fultz, Fred Tenney, and Lou Criger. Most of these have had considerable experience in coaching. Keeler once coached Harvard.

HARMONY IN BASEBALL.

Major Leagues Probably Will Confine Their Schedules to 154 Games Each.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Harmony will rule at the forthcoming meeting of the two major leagues Dec. 13 in New York, according to B. B. Johnson, President of the American League. As in the past, there will be 154 games in the American League, and from present indications the same number will be selected by the National League owners.

"Save for the election of four Directors—two from the Eastern clubs and two from the West—there won't be a great deal of business to occupy the attention of our officials," said President Johnson. "During the course of the two league sessions I hope to confer with Mr. Lynch relative to the arrangement of playing dates for 1911. Then at a later meeting the schedules will be drafted and acted upon.

"In addition to the schedule matter, Mr. Lynch and I will urge the passage of a new rule prohibiting the world's champions of any years to participate in barnstorming games following the close of the title series. To have a band of champions out of condition troop off to other countries and play with opposing teams in the highest stage of perfect condition, and perchance suffer defeat, cheapens baseball. These exhibition trips will have to stop."

These prizes will take the places of those which have been won outright, and were presented by the following:

SLOSSON NO MATCH FOR WILLIE HOPPE

Youthful Champion Scores 500 to 207 in First Block of 18.1 Billiards for Title.

BIG AVERAGE FOR VICTOR

Youngster Does 33 5-15, Passing Frank Ives' Mark of 31¼—Second Block To-night at Garden.

Willie Hoppe, the champion, and George Slosson, the challenger, met last night at the Madison Square Garden Concert Hall in the first half of their 1,000-point match for the 18.1 balkline billiard championship, with results disastrous to the latter, who was beaten by 500 to 207.

Incidental to the match, a question of average comes up, in view of the point that Hoppe's work of last night discounts the former best average of 31¼, made by Frank Ives against Sutton in a 500-point game. The present match, however, being for 1,000 points, presents a new side to the matter, which to-night's part of the match will only clear up. Hoppe, if he does not equal his work of last night, may not in the 1,000 points average over the 31¼ by Ives, which will then stand as a tournament record, while his last night's average will simply be accepted as a phenomenal performance in one half of a match, this being the initial 1,000-point match for the championship.

At no time after the second inning did the "Student" have the semblance of a chance, the consensus of opinion being that he had offered himself up as a sacrifice in order to forward the interests of billiards.

After the fifth inning the champion played into the lead, each inning showing him further to the good of his older opponent, with the result that when Hoppe's tally showed 240 Slosson's marked 103, and this was about the relative speed of the men.

Each played up to his mark, Hoppe averaging 33 5-15 and Slosson 14 11-14. In eleven of his fifteen times at the table the champion got into double figures, four runs of sixty-odd adding materially to the downfall of Slosson, whose best attempt in an individual inning was 45 in the fifth.

All shots looked alike to the youthful champion, who had the balls clicking like a rapid-fire gun, barely letting the ivories stop rolling before essaying the next shot. Many of his misses were apparently the result of carelessness, usually being the simplest of carroms.

Among the thousand devotees present were Judge Horace Russell, H. B. Hollins, Thomas Walsh, Ferdinard Poggenburg, Edward Gardner, Alfred De Oro, Tom Hueston, Calvin Demarest, Joseph Mayer, Harry Kline, Jerome Keogh, and Hal Chase.

After the customary announcement about the conditions of the match, the introduction of the contestants, and so on, the participants banked for the lead, with the result that Hoppe won. His opening try was a natural two cushion which he missed by the narrowest of margins. Slosson then took up the work, totaling an even half dozen and slipping up on a comparatively easy single cushion shot

The champion then took his turn at the table, and after a first shot with drive for position apparently had little trouble in negotiating 31, the spheres always being in the lower end of the table until the twenty-fifth shot. From the fifteenth to the thirty-first shot he gave a pretty exhibition of nursing in the centre of the lower rail, driving first one ball and then the other to the side rail.

After the completion of his thirty-first shot the balls "froze," and in an attempt at a single cushion bank he failed.

The "Student" got busy with the spheres following this, but slipped up on a single cushion draw after a run of 7. A single cushion proved the undoing of the champion in his next essay, as, after tallying four, in an attempt to count from ball to lower rail to ball he missed.

Following his twelfth shot in the next inning Slosson made an exceptionally pretty reverse English cushion shot, which obtained for him the position he apparently had worked for, as he cajoled the balls in the lower centre for a dozen shots before losing control. His twenty-fourth shot was a capital full-length-of-the-table single cushion, by which he got the balls again in balk.

Slosson's thirtieth shot in this run was a kiss out of the corner, which was perfection itself, netting him position, which seemed safe. On his thirty-third shot, however, he slipped up on a single cushion, which failed of having the requisite amount of English in order to have it count. This run carried him to the lead, the even innings showing Slosson 45, Hoppe 35.

The latter got busy without any delay, and after a splendid exhibition of close billiards up to his thirty-second point gave a glimpse of the kind of daring that stamps him as a great player. For his thirty-third point he was compelled to go after a four-cushion shot, which he tallied as though it were a common occurrence. His forty-seventh attempt, a massé, proved disastrous, as he just failed.

Slosson lessened the hopes of his admirers somewhat by slipping up on what looked like a comparatively easy single cushion, left as the result of Hoppe's miss.

The champion took up the running without any deliberation, and, wasting no time at any stage of his run, pounded out 64. His fiftieth shot was a nice single cushion reverse, which was immediately followed by a massé, which had every one on edge. After completing 64 Willie stopped upon the failure to complete a force follow to the rail and back.

The Student showed his knowledge of position in his next turn at the table. In his tenth shot, which he counted, he drove the red ball eight feet for two cushions at a different angle and brought both balls to absolutely perfect position.

His thirty-eighth shot was a pretty two-cushion drive for position. For his fortieth shot the Student deliberated long, finally trying a bank, which he got away with. With the completion of his forty-fourth shot the balls were spread, necessitating a long draw. The accomplishment of this left the spheres in such position that a two-cushion shot failed to connect.

Hoppe's sixth and seventh shots in his next turn at table, the sixth inning, were drives around and up and down the table in an endeavor for position. For his thirteenth shot he had provided for himself a most difficult draw, which just connected.

Some exceptionally pretty shots were made by the champion up to and including his sixty-eighth shot in the sixth inning. He made many drives for position, and found himself compelled to try on the sixty-ninth shot, which he missed, a bank the length of the side rail and bank, which only missed through his cue ball jamming straight into the red, which was in the corner jaw, the black being six inches further along the lower rail. At this stage the string showed Hoppe 213, Slosson 90, which the latter soon supplemented with 4 for a total of 94, even innings.

The champion slipped up on a short bank after a bevy of 27 in his seventh inning. Slosson's seventh shot in this inning was a daring three-cushion. He soon slipped up on an easy carrom in which his cue ball did not have to travel twelve inches.

After studying over his ninth shot—which he was apparently going to play as a massé—for a full minute, and getting the house on the ragged edge, Hoppe turned to a three-cushion reverse English side rail shot which was a corker and the forerunner of a run of 36, with a total of 276 to Slosson's 103, as the "Student" failed to make the spheres connect in his next turn at the table.

Capital all-around billiards marked Hoppe's next try, many fine shots resulting in his ninth inning. The twenty-seventh was a beautiful draw of two and a half feet across the lower end of the table. Thirty-one was his portion in this inning, with a total of 307, which was exactly 200 points ahead of Slosson's score when the "Student" reached his run of 4, with a total of 107.

Following a run of 4 by the "champ" in the tenth inning, at which stage he had an average of 31, Slosson had the misfortune to be kissed out on an all-around-the-table shot after he had tallied 2.

Hoppe's eleventh inning was productive of 61, with a total of 372, and an average of nearly 34. Up to and inclusive of his sixteenth shot close billiards was the rule. At this period he lost command, and after tallying his sixty-first he failed to put enough reverse to a rail shot, and failed of a count.

Slosson got into the game in his eleventh and twelfth innings, tallying 25 and 26, with a total of 160 points. The champion was not to be denied, however, as, after a temporary lapse in the twelfth, when he scored but three, he manipulated the ivories for 65, bringing his total up to 440, slipping up on a difficult single-cushion, which found the balls lined up, for which he failed to use enough English.

After going along swimmingly for a count of 29 in his eighteenth inning Slosson failed on a fairly difficult long single cushion.

In Hoppe's next turn at the table, his fourteenth inning, he went along like a house afire. His thirty-first shot was a beautiful carrom, the result of two times across in which the most important factor seemed the dodging of a kiss, which he escaped by a hair. Thirty-seven, with a total of 477, was as far as he got, as he slipped up on a spread draw.

The "Student" got over the two hundred mark with a bevy of 18, the last shot of which run was a splendid reverse long-rail shot into the lower corner. The leave from this, however, warranted a three-cushion attempt which just failed of contact.

Hoppe's last turn at the spheres finished up the first half of the contest, as he was not long in clicking off his required 23 for the total of 500, which he did, leaving the balls in perfect position for play to-night. The summary:

Willie Hoppe—0 31 4 46 64 68 27 36 31 4 61 3 65 37 23. Total—500.

George Slosson—6 7 32 0 45 4 9 0 4 2 25 26 29 18. Total—207.

Averages—Hoppe, 33 5-15; Slosson, 14 11-14. High runs—Hoppe, 68, 65, 64; Slosson, 45, 32, 29. Referee—Albert G. Cutler.

Mrs. King to Play De Oro at Pool.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Bertha May King, woman pool champion, this morning wired congratulations to Alfred De Oro, who has again won the world's championship, and requested that he play her a series of games soon. De Oro replied that he would do so, and this so cheered Mrs. King that she simply smothered little Martha Clearwater in this afternoon's match pool game of fifty points. The champion won by a score of 50 to 36, running out her string in less than six frames. The shots of the woman champion at times were marvelous. In the evening Miss Clearwater made a better showing, and though beaten managed to make matters close at the end. She missed one shot near the close which she should have made. The champion beat her in the night's play, 50 to 43.

Isaacs Beats Tobias at Billiards.

In the preliminary trials for the billiard championship of Harlem now in progress at the Morningside Billiard Academy, H. Isaacs defeated J. Tobias last night by the score of 200 to 145. Isaacs had a high run of 24 and averaged 5, while his opponent had practically no high scores and averaged 3, the game being decided in fifty-seven innings. In to-night's trials Reed and Hoffman will be the contestants.

Inter-City Billiards Postponed.

Owing to the Hoppe-Slosson championship match, the scheduled inter-city series between New York and Brooklyn at Doyle's will be played next week Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Tom Gallagher and George Moore will meet as arranged on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday.

STADIUM FOR ANNAPOLIS.

Naval Academy to Have Amphitheatre for Athletics to Cost $22,000.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 1.—It was announced at the Naval Academy to-day that plans had been selected, and work is in immediate contemplation, for the erection of a stadium which will accommodate 10,000 people.

Active negotiations for this work have been opened by the Executive Committee of the Navy Athletic Association, and only a short time will, it is said, elapse before the workmen begin erecting the big amphitheatre, which will be of steel and will cost in the neighborhood of $22,000. The necessary funds for the stadium, which is to be located on the new parade ground, at the opposite end of the Academy inclosure from where previous contests have been held, are to be raised by popular subscription among the 2,500 members of the Navy Athletic Association.

Poultry Show at Red Bank.

RED BANK, N. J., Dec. 1.—The third annual exhibition of the Monmouth Poultry Club will be held in the armory, this city, on Dec. 7, 8, 9, and 10. This is New Jersey's greatest poultry event, and it will be the largest show ever given by the association. This section of the State is considered as being the greatest market for pure bred poultry within several miles of New York City, and this fact brings out a large number of entries. The entries this year outnumber any show ever held in New Jersey, and it is reasonably expected that the number and quality of birds exhibited next week will put this show in line with Boston, New York, and Philadelphia shows. The exhibits will consist of poultry, pigeons, waterfowl, and pet stock. The exhibition will be under the American Poultry Association rules, and the premium list offers sixty-six silver cups, besides several hundred dollars in gold and valuable merchandise. The club has a membership of over 100 of the best-known poultry fanciers in Eastern New Jersey, who will, besides out-of-State competitors, show their stock. The judges will be F. H. Davey of Yonkers, W. G. Minnich, Carlisle, Penn.; W. J. Stanton, New York City; Major Joseph T. Field, Red Bank, and J. C. Plath of Manchester, Penn.

Entertainments, Sports at N. Y. A. C.

The New York Athletic Club announces a series of entertainments and contests for the next two months, with the addition of several games in the championship hockey tournament, in which the Mercury Foot is expected to cut quite a figure. Bowling, trapshooting, swimming, and hand tennis are among the activities now taking up the attention of the competitive element of America's premier athletic organization. The following is the schedule:

Dec. 3 and 17, smoking concerts and vaudeville; Dec. 5, bowling, Roseville at N. Y. A. C.; Dec. 10, Jersey City at N. Y. A. C.; Dec. 10, ladies' day, natatorium exercises at 2:30 P. M.; Dec. 14, swimming races; Jan. 3, 1911, hockey at St. Nicholas Rink, N. Y. A. C. vs. Hockey Club; Jan. 5, Crescents vs. St. Nicholas; trapshooting, Travers Island every Saturday. On Monday, Jan. 2, the New Year's collation will be served.

Blackburn Wins on Rollers.

William Blackburn, the professional champion skater, won one of the best victories of his career last night at the Metropolitan Roller Skating Rink, Fifty-second Street and Broadway, when he defeated a large field of skaters, among whom were some of the fastest men in the East, in the two-mile handicap race in the fast time of 6:40 2-5. The race was characterized by considerable fouling, and two of the men, Harry Burke and Frank Brower, both of Bridgeport, Conn., were disqualified by the referee, Mark Minnse. Burke was in good form and stood a fairly good chance of winning the race up to the time he committed the foul. J. Lowney, another Bridgeport skater, who started from the 50-yard line, finished a close second, with H. Allison of Long Branch, 80 yards handicap, third.

Seventy-first Regiment Games.

Many athletes of National renown will compete in the games of the Seventy-first Regiment in the armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, on the evening of Dec. 10. Roy Dorland, the four-time indoor champion at 300 yards, will start from scratch in the short distance events, and Dick Egan, who won the junior National half-mile championship at New Orleans in October, will be the honor man in the distance runs. Among the other star athletes who will compete are Bobbie Goggin, Frank Wright, Charles Nerent, Joe Malone, and others. There will be five open A. A. U. events as follows: 440-yard run, handicap; 600-yard run, novice; two-mile bicycle race, handicap, (N. C. A.;) one-mile run, handicap, and one-mile relay race, handicap, open to clubs and colleges. The entry list for the open events is very heavy.

Matty to Play Checkers Match.

Christy Mathewson, the Giants' famous pitcher, who can play a tip-top game of checkers, will take a hand at his favorite pastime to-day against Ben Scully, the blind checker champion. The match will be played this morning at 11 o'clock in Lyric Hall, Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. Mr. Scully, although blind, is very expert at the game. The match will be played on the new lawn checker board, which makes it possible for a large number of spectators to watch the progress of the play.

OPENINGS FOR TRADE IN SOUTH AMERICA

American Minister to the Argentine Tells Chamber of Commerce Where They Are.

MAKING UP FOR DULL YEAR

England Took $250,000,000 from the Argentine Last Year—People There Richer Than in This Country.

The Chamber of Commerce was addressed yesterday by Charles H. Sherrill, United States Minister to Argentina.

President A. Barton Hepburn explained that it was at his request that the Minister had come to speak of the things he had learned. Mr. Hepburn said that he considered the whole subject of the commercial development of South America one of primary importance to the business men in this country. The Minister came to New York directly from Boston, where he spoke before the Chamber of Commerce, which was entertaining the Presidents of fifty Chambers of Commerce from the principal cities of New England.

Minister Sherrill prefaced his talk on South America with a reference to James J. Hill's prediction that our manufacturers will not find in the next year the home market for their goods that they have found in the past year, and commented on the controversy that had since been waged over the railroad man's quoted utterances.

"Personally," he said, "I believe in practical ways of discussing a subject of that kind. Now, the way to treat that subject, in my opinion, is to open and develop foreign markets for these goods, with the result that the manufacturers, many of whom are present, will not be interrupted in their business and, furthermore, I believe this subject interests not only Chambers of Commerce in this country, but the labor unions as well, because it will afford employment to workers.

"It is my purpose to speak to labor unions throughout the country on this subject during my leave of absence.

"In my opinion there is no other market which offers a better field for immediate exploitation than South America. England knows the markets of Argentina, and the Buenos Ayres commercial reports state that England last year took $250,000,000 from the country that you gentlemen don't know anything about.

"I have only to say that the foreign trade of Argentina last year was $700,000,000, that of Brazil $450,000,000—Argentina being almost double that of Brazil—Mexico $200,000,000, Chile and Cuba $200,000,000, an dtherefore Argentina had a market ready for you, gentlemen three and a half times the size of Mexico or Cuba or Chile. When we drop below those we come next to Uruguay, which had a trade of $100,000,000."

The speaker referred to the general North American misconception of conditions on the lower continent. Argentina, he said, was a wonderland. The people there are richer, he said, than in this country, and he illustrated by saying that it cost a great deal more, almost double, to keep house in Buenos Ayres as it does in New York.

Our relations with Argentina were not as pleasant as they should be, Mr. Sherrill said, when the President asked him to take the post, but he said that misunderstandings had been very largely cleared away. Speaking of the commercial possibilities of the country, he said:

"Statistics show that last year $183,000,000 was the balance of trade in our favor, and the statistics show that the balance of trade in Argentina, with only 7,000,000 of population, was $90,000,000 in their favor.

"Following the instructions of the President, I inquired why we were not getting our share of the commerce, and we organized a committee for getting commercial information and appointed two exporters who export from the country and two importers, and I am glad to say that in two years we have raised the figures of $47,000,000, which was then the record, to $80,000,000, and during that period we secured for the manufacturers of this country, whose bids had been refused, $25,000,000 worth of Government contracts.

Minister Sherrill discussed the development of the American merchant marine, with apologies to the Chamber for broaching what he had been told was a worn-out subject, and advocated the establishment of direct lines from American ports to the South American republics. The question of an American bank in South America was another point upon which he touched, saying that the undertaking presented an opportunity which America has been too slow to grasp.

The Chamber before adjourning passed a resolution to adjourn out of respect for the memory of George F. Seward, the news of whose death had been officially communicated to the Chamber by President Hepburn.

President Hepburn appointed delegates to several conventions soon to be held. The appointments were:

Seventh National Convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, to be held at Washington—Eben E. Olcott, Robert A. C. Smith, George T. Wilson, William Hull Wickham, and Sereno S. Pratt.

International Conference of the American Society for Judical Settlement of International Disputes, to be held at Washington—Marcus M. Marks, Cornelius A. Pugsley, James Talcott, William Lummis, and William Skinner.

Monetary Conference, to be held at Washington—Paul M. Warburg, Welding Ring, Algernon B. Frissell, Samuel Sachs, and Maurice L. Muhleman.

GOVERNMENT ISSUE POSSIBLE

New Bonds Would Have to Offset Adverse Corporation Tax Decision.

In the event of a decision by the Supreme Court in the corporation tax case adverse to the Government the National City Bank, in its December circular, points out that the Federal Treasury will be under the necessity of returning about $25,000,000 which has been collected under the corporation tax law, and this, the bank says, would force an issue of bonds at once. The growing expenditures for the Panama Canal also suggest an issue of Government bonds, although the question is still unsettled as to the form in which bonds could be issued without impairing the position of the outstanding 2 per cents.

The chances of much new legislation being passed at the coming session of Congress is regarded by the City Bank as being very slight. The chief prospect, it says, is that all sides will be seeking principally to obtain partisan advantage. Out of this, it is suggested, may grow the necessity for an extra session, which now is being urged by members of both parties for partisan reasons, but which will become a matter of necessity should the present Congress at its short session fail to put through all the necessary supply bills.

Attention is directed in the bank's circular to the present favorable position of Philippine bonds and to the growth in trade between the Philippines and the United States in the past year.

Guggenheims Out of Rubber.

Daniel Guggenheim and S. R. Guggenheim have resigned as Directors of the Intercontinental Rubber Company. The preferred stock of the company formerly held by the Guggenheims has been retired for cash by the company, and while nothing definite is known regarding the common stock holdings of the Guggenheim interests it was inferred yesterday from the fact that they have resigned from the company that they have also parted with their common stock.

Condition of Oklahoma Crops.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 1.—The condition of Winter wheat is only 38.6 as against 93.7 a year ago, according to a crop bulletin of State Board of Agriculture issued to-day. The dry Fall is given as the cause. The board reported a decrease of 31 per cent. in the acreage of alfalfa. The cotton report is encouraging, being estimated at 776,000 bales, valued at $35,000,000.

TREASURY IN GOOD CONDITION

November Shows $1,000,000 Surplus Where October Had $5,000,000 Deficit.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—November was a highly favorable month for the finances of the United States Treasury. It produced a surplus on all accounts of nearly $1,000,000, where October had shown a deficit of more than $5,000,000.

The working condition of the Nation's cash drawer shows a corresponding improvement for the month. December opened to-day with a working balance of $34,000,000 on hand and $86,600,000 in the general fund, an improvement of a round $2,000,000 in the cash available for immediate operations. This condition would seem to justify Secretary MacVeagh's confidence in the Treasury's ability to maintain itself for the present without new financing.

If the drain of Panama Canal operations, amounting to $3,000,000 for the month, and which were not intended as a charge on the Treasury, could be eliminated from the calculation, November would show a surplus of more than $4,000,000 over all expenditures.

Pronounced cuts in the Government's expenses and a gain of $3,000,000 in the receipts over last month, are partly responsible for the showing. Customs, internal revenues, and other revenue sources made decided gains and brought the month's total up to $58,470,000. A decrease of $2,000,000 in the civil expenditures, $2,000,000 in the army, $3,000,000 in the navy, and other items brought the expenditures of November down to $54,200,000, some $4,000,000 less than the month before.

As compared with this date last year receipts are $14,000,000 higher and expenditures are $5,000,000 lower. The result of all this is that the total deficit for this fiscal year to date is $20,000,000, as against $44,000,000 this time last year.

The general condition of the Treasury's finances seems to augur against any issue of securities in the immediate future. It is believed that Secretary MacVeagh now is well equipped to seek advantageous terms for any future issue of the Panama bonds. The general understanding is that he will ask Congress at this session to enact legislation which would make it possible to offer the securities to the investing public and enable the Treasury to reimburse itself for $130,000,000 advanced to the Panama Canal and recover its balance.

National bank circulation increased during the month about $2,000,000, due to the organization of new banks. All the mints have been busy and have clicked off more than $16,000,000, of which $15,000,000 was gold.

COTTON JOBBERS FAIL.

Receivers in Bankruptcy Named for the Schwab-Kepner Company.

The cotton goods jobbing house incorporated as the Schwab-Kepner Company of 66 Leonard Street has gone into the hands of receivers. Because it is a New Jersey corporation the proceedings were taken before Judge Cross of New Jersey, and Theodore M. Crisp and Edward S. Atwater, Jr., were appointed receivers in bankruptcy.

Liabilities were placed at between $700,000 and $750,000, and the assets were not estimated. The company's annual statement issued last January put the assets at $624,000, and liabilities of $468,000 in bills and accounts payable were then reported. The concern had no rating in Bradstreet's.

Too little working capital is said to have been the cause of failing, too large a business having been attempted on the resources available.

Originally a business partnership, the firm was founded in January, 1905. Peter A. Schwab, then in the firm, was said to be a relative of Charles M. Schwab, the steel man. Peter A. Schwab sold out his interest to John B. Kepner in January, 1908, and the present corporation was then formed to take over the business. The capital stock was $200,000, equally divided into common and preferred shares. John B. Kepner became President and Wynne Ferguson Vice President. W. A. Corbett was Secretary and Franklin B. Conron Treasurer.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 1.—Later reports here on the assignment of the Schwab-Kepner Company of 66 Leonard Street, New York, indicate that the total indebtedness to two fine goods mills under one management is placed at from $75,000 to $80,000. Another fine goods mills which recently carried a large account with the concern, had reduced it to not more than $10,000. Other amounts named or due to different mills are $15,000 to a corporation in the eastern part of the city, $7,000 to another in the same locality, $14,000 to another, all for goods sold on time.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

The Duty Is Reduced on Feather Boas of Various Kinds.

Feather boas of various kinds imported by Bloomingdale Brothers of this city were accorded lower duty yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers. The merchandise the subject of the controversy consists of goods invoiced as "coque boas," "coque feather boas," and "coque."

According to General Appraiser McClelland, who writes the decision for the board, the merchandise consists in chief value of feathers in the form of boas. Collector Loeb exacted duty at the rate of 50 per cent. under the provision in the tariff law for artificial feathers and downs of all kinds. This classification was opposed by the importers, who made the claim before the board that the rate of assessment should be 45 per cent. It was shown to the satisfaction of the board that the merchandise is dutiable at 45 per cent. under the various provisions of the Tariff act of 1897 for "manufactures in chief value of metal."

While feathers enter largely into the manufacture of the boas, the board reaches the conclusion that the metal used in the manufacture of the boas must be regarded as controlling.

The board has sustained a protest filed by Isaac Vought & Co. regarding the assessment of duty on silver handbags and purses, which were returned for duty at the rate of 60 per cent. under the tariff provision for "jewelry." The firm's claim for a rate of 45 per cent. as "manufactures of metal" is sustained.

FAILURES IN NOVEMBER.

According to the statistics compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. the commercial failures during the month of November made a favorable comparison with 1908 and 1907, although they are greater in number than in the same month of last year. Dun's says:

During November there were 1,003 failures, with liabilities of $11,324,016. The liabilities of twelve of the failures aggregated $2,605,888, and there were 991 small failures amounting to $8,718,148. There were 260 manufacturing failures, with liabilities of $4,598,639, and 608 trading failures, with liabilities of $3,471,332. The failures in the class of brokers and transporters numbered 45, these having aggregate liabilites of $1,254,045.

In number of failures the November record compares favorably with that of the preceding month, and they were also less than July, April, February, and January, but were in excess of the other months of the year. The 1,003 November failures compared with 963 in 1909, 1,120 in 1908, and 1,180 in 1907. The 260 manufacturing failures compared with 322 in October, and were also less than in most of the preceding months of the year.

In aggregate of liabilities the November record compares favorably with the monthly average of the year. The total liabilities, $11,324,016, comparing with $18,977,696 in October, and the only month in which the total was less was May, when the liabilities were $9,590,186. The November liabilities compared with $9,812,695 in the corresponding month last year, $12,509,912 in 1908, and $17,637,011 in 1907. In the last fifteen years there have been only six years in which the November liabilities were less.

Condition of the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—At the beginning of business to-day the condition of the United States Treasury was:

Working balance in Treasury offices, $33,986,502; in banks and Philippine Treasury, $33,568,033. The total balance in the general fund was $86,683,896.

Ordinary receipts yesterday were $2,865,-885, with disbursements of $1,908,085.

The deficit to date this fiscal year is $8,761,234, as against $27,649,113 at this time last year.

These figures exclude Panama Canal and public debt transactions.

EUROPE YIELDS ON LADING BILL DISPUTE

European Bankers Withdraw Their Demand for a Guarantee.

COTTON MEN WIN THE POINT

Sir Edward Holden for the London and Midland Will Pay Surety Rates on Whatever Bills He Accepts.

Cotton men in this city who resented the efforts made this Fall by the European Bankers' Committee headed by Sir Edward Holden of the London City and Midland Bank to compel cotton houses here to insure the genuineness of their bills of lading, and to force them to incur the expense of providing a surety company guarantee, heard with some satisfaction yesterday that, following the formal abandonment of the European demand for guarantees on all bills issued after Dec. 31, Sir E. H. Holden is planning to obtain from American surety companies guarantees on all bills of lading which he may purchase, the premium to be paid by him instead of by the American cotton merchant or the American bank handling these cotton bills.

It was understood that Sir Edward's purpose to pay the premium exacted by the surety companies and himself provide the guarantees which American cotton interests refused to give had taken definite shape, but those in a position to speak authoritatively on the subject, while admitting that such a plan was under way, denied that the discussion between Sir Edward and the surety companies had taken definite form.

Meanwhile the European committee has withdrawn the demand that all American cotton bills accepted by European bankers after Dec. 31 be guaranteed. The impression has prevailed for some time that this course would be taken by the European bankers, but their formal action now gives assurance that the acceptance of cotton bills will proceed without interruption. Sir Edward in attempting to provide himself for the guaranteeing of all cotton bills which his bank may accept is regarded as breaking away from his fellow-bankers on the other side, some of whom were not so keen for guarantees as he at any stage of the negotiations. It is believed here that if the Holden plan is carried through the customers of Sir Edward's bank for whom cotton bills will be accepted will be called upon to cover the cost of the guarantee.

The tentative plan, which was worked out by a group of surety companies here at the instance of Sir Edward, provided for a guarantee by a group of surety companies, including the American and the National Companies, at a minimum cost of 6 cents a bale. This is the charge which will have to be paid by Sir Edward. From such information as could be obtained yesterday the surety companies are disposed to provide the guarantee for Sir Edward, who will probably undertake to assure a stipulated amount of business.

Our own bankers at the moment are more interested in the understanding in banking circles yesterday that President Taft had decided to recommend to Congress the enactment of an improved bill of lading law, and in the decision of the Inter-State Commerce Commission announced on Wednesday forbidding the railroads to issue bills of lading until after the receipt by the carriers of the merchandise covered by the bills. If this decision of the commission is upheld it will accomplish practically all that our bankers sought to accomplish last year through the Stevens bill, which was passed by the House but allowed to slumber in the Senate.

DISCUSSING BILLS OF LADING.

Foreign Bankers in Almost Daily Session to Decide the Issue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The situation regarding the cotton bill of lading guarantees is still receiving the serious attention of the European Bankers' Committee, which is meeting almost daily in London in an effort to arrive at a settlement. I have the authority of Sir Edward Holden, who is the moving spirit in the negotiations, to say that a definite announcement may be looked for within the next few days. Asked to-day whether he considered the prospects hopeful for a satisfactory outcome, Sir Edward replied "distinctly."

PROFESSIONAL SALES FACTOR

Affects Market as Seriously as Liquidation—More Adverse Railroad Returns—English Bank Rate Down.

The Stock Exchange went through two periods of weakness yesterday, one of the falling in the morning session and the other in the afternoon, and in spite of a rather extensive short covering movement near the close of the day prices of the leading shares closed at losses running from 1 to 2 points. Much of the selling was obviously in continuation of the liquidation which first made its appearance on Monday, but a new factor was the open attack directed against the market by bearish operators, who have been encouraged to undertake a campaign against prices by their recent successes. Having been denied profits and having suffered, in fact, pretty serious losses in the course of the long advance, speculators of the bearish persuasion are quite apt to endeavor to make up for lost time now that events are assisting their plans. All this will tend eventually to create in the market the short interest which it so sorely needed toward the close of the campaign for the rise.

For those whose interest is in the general financial and business situation rather than in the stock market position, Judge Gary's statement regarding the upshot of the steel conference, which came to a close after business was over on Wednesday evening, was reassuring. There is no attempt in the statement to blink the fact of dull business or price cutting on the part of smaller makers, but the assertion is made that the more important manufacturers are standing together and that the situation is by no means so bad as it has been described in many quarters. The allowance of moderate increases in rates to the railroads and the advent of a fair bond market, two developments quite within the possibilities, would very quickly change the complexion of the steel trade, which has suffered most, of course, from the withdrawal of the railroads from the market. One other matter upon which much stress was laid on the Stock Exchange was the weakness of the Gould stocks, particularly of Denver & Rio Grande preferred. Reports had it that the Denver dividend would be reduced and the income of the Missouri Pacific accordingly cut into. These rumors were promptly set at naught by the declaration of the usual dividend on Denver preferred, but at the same time the poor October earning statements of the New York Central lines, with their decrease of $1,862,000 in the operating income of the system after a gain of $960,000 in operating revenues, shows, when coupled with the similar returns of the Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific lines for the same period, a distinct tendency toward diminishing railroad returns.

Cables from London reported that the Directors of the Bank of England held a prolonged session before announcing the reduction in the official discount to 4 1/2 per cent. from the 5 per cent. quotation maintained since Oct. 20. Presumably their course was influenced by the strength of the Bank's own position, its reserve percentage of 50.24 comparing with an average of 46.62 at this season in the past decade, together with the calmness with which the general election has been regarded. The lowering of the rate means unquestionably that the strain in the English capital is over.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1.—Heavy selling of United States Steel, Reading, and Lehigh Valley gave the local market a depressed appearance at intervals to-day. There was little activity in such shares as United Gas, Rapid Transit, Philadelphia Electric, Cambria Steel, or Union Traction. Asphalt was a trifle heavy, and the volume of dealings in that issue was larger than in the others above mentioned. Pennsylvania held well, and so did Lake Superior.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Denver & Rio Grande Dividend.

Talk that the directors of the Denver & Rio Grande would reduce the dividend on the road's preferred stock was set at rest yesterday by the announcement of the regular semi-annual dividend of 2½ per cent. The stock had been weak on Wednesday and again yesterday morning, when at one time it showed a decline of 6½ points. The weakness of the stock had almost convinced the doubting ones that the dividend was to be cut, when the announcement was made that the regular dividend had been declared. The stock, which had got down to 64½, was not very long in recovering. It was sold as high as 69¾, and closed half a point below that figure, with a net loss for the day of only ¾. One reason why the talk of a probable cut in the Denver dividend received attention from many people was the fact that the Denver is sponsor for the Western Pacific as guarantor of its bonds. No information has yet been made available regarding the earnings of the Western Pacific, and this left the Street room to imagine that the Denver, in view of its obligations as guarantor, might deem it advisable to reduce its own dividend. The announcement which followed the directors' meeting put an end to the surmises which had been made regarding the dividend rate.

Red Winter Wheat Report.

Misgivings regarding the condition of the newly planted Winter wheat crop which have been voiced in dispatches received recently from the Southwest came in more definite shape yesterday, in a report of the State Board of Agriculture of Oklahoma. This report placed the condition of Winter wheat in that State at 38.6, compared with 93 at this date last year. The lack of sufficient rain is given as the reason for the very poor showing. Oklahoma produces in normal years over 15,000,000 bushels of Winter wheat. The 1909 Winter wheat crop in the State of Oklahoma was 15,680,000 bushels. In addition to the poor condition of the wheat fields, the bulletin of the Board of Agriculture says that the acreage of alfalfa, an important crop in the Southwest, shows a reduction of 31 per cent. from last year's acreage.

Bond Guarantees.

The announcement yesterday of the organization of a committee to protect the holders of the second mortgage bonds of the Middletown, Unionville & Water Gap Railroad suggests the plight which sometimes confronts the holders of bonds which have been guaranteed as to interest but not as to principal by another company. These Water Gap bonds were issued on a line which is now part of the New York & Susquehanna system, which, in turn, is controlled by the Erie Railroad. The Susquehanna guaranteed the interest on the bonds, but did not assume responsibility for the principal, although some at least of the holders looked upon the guarantee of the interest as an assurance that the principal would be provided for when the bonds matured. When the bonds ran out on June 1 the interest was promptly provided by the Susquehanna, but when the holders of the bonds asked about the principal they learned that nobody had made any provision for that. Now they are organizing a committee to protect their interests. It is made up of Charles I. Henry, Newman Erb, and Harmon W. Hendricks. Wollman & Wollman are counsel for the committee.

More Steel Meetings Coming.

Speculative Wall Street, which shows more concern over the outlook in the steel business than has been attributed to the manufacturers themselves, has not accepted the statement issued by Judge Gary after the conference on Wednesday as the last word on the price situation. The majority of the manufacturers regard a price reduction at present as an illogical move and protest that it would bring in no compensating increase in business.

The Street regards it as significant, however, that as in 1908-9, before the price cuts of the latter year were announced, subcommittees were appointed at one of the conferences to take up in detail the situation in the fields represented by a number of the important steel manufacturers. Such committees have again been appointed and will report back to the conferees as a body at some early date.

Incorporations Keep Up.

Returns from the Secretary of State's office at Albany show that there has been no let-up in the exploitation of new enterprises. During November there were incorporated in this State nearly one hundred more companies than in the previous month—632 in all against 565 in October. The capitalization figures are also much greater. In November the new corporations had a total capitalization of $33,241,000, against a total capitalization of $26,349,000 in October.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—Further realizing was in evidence in the local market to-day. Utah Consolidated lost a couple of points, while North Butte and United States Smelting each declined a point. Commission houses reported a considerable demand for odd lots, and this class of buying has probably taken considerable stock out of the market. The general list closed steady at a slight recovery from the bottom

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Money was in better supply and discount rates were quiet to-day.

The stock market was surprised by the reduction in the Bank of England's rate from 5 to 4½ per cent., and prices hardened in most of the departments, but business did not expand materially, owing to the political situation. The settlement in consols was concluded without trouble, and they advanced an eighth.

American securities opened about unchanged and later improved on the reduction of the bank rate. Prices further hardened in the forenoon, but the market reacted in the afternoon under the lead of United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, Union Pacific, and Denver and Rio Grande. Wall Street offered stock in the late trading, and the closing was weak.

The lower bank rate, which the market hardly expected this week, was decided on only after a prolonged discussion by the Directors of the bank. The past fortnight, however, witnessed a marked easing in the monetary situation and a steady rise in the bank's reserve. Exchanges on Argentina and India, from which the danger of gold withdrawals was mostly threatened, is now decidedly more favorable to London, while discount rates on Continental centres are lower. Egypt, it is expected, will furnish the bulk of the Indian gold requirements.

Bar silver steady, 25⅝d per ounce.

Money, 4@4¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 4¼ per cent.; for three months' bills 4 per cent.

Gold premiums are quoted at Madrid at 7 and at Lisbon at 7.50.

PARIS, Dec. 1.—Prices were firm on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 77½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 29½c for checks.

BERLIN, Dec. 1.—Prices opened weak on the Boerse to-day. Later the market improved on the lower London bank rate.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 47 pfennigs for checks.

Money, 4½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 4½ per cent.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

5,857. FEATHER PLUCKING AND PICKING MACHINERY.—An American Consular officer in a European country has received a request from a local business man for the names of manufacturers of feather picking and feather plucking machinery. The inquirer does not understand English, so that catalogues in that language will prove valueless to him. However, if manufacturers will transmit their catalogues, together with their best prices for cash, to another firm whose name is given, they will be translated and delivered to the person in question.

5,858. MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consular officer in a European country states that a well-established bank in his district with a paid-up capital of $1,000,000 has recently bought out a firm dealing especially in building machinery, such as hoisting machinery, concrete mixers, excavators, &c., and desires to get into communication with American manufacturers of such machinery with a view to representing them. The building trades are very active at the present time, dwellings to lodge some 16,000 families being actually in course of construction in one city alone.

5,859. AGENCIES FOR AMERICAN GOODS.—A South African business man writes the Bureau of Manufactures that he desires to obtain agencies from American firms handling the following lines: Groceries, provisions, canned salmon, sardines, and other fish, canned fruits, breakfast foods, furniture, American go-carts, combination brass and iron bedsteads, men's boots and shoes, tools, household hardware, kitchen stoves, dungaree clothing, carriages, buggies, and the latest novelties in all lines. This man states he can do a good business in all of the foregoing lines of trade.

5,860. COPPER, BRASS, AND ALUMINUM.—A business man in Northern Europe advises an American Consular officer that he at present represents Belgian and German dealers in copper, brass, and aluminum, but desires to get into direct communication with American exporters and producers of these metals. The report states this is an exceptionally good opportunity for exporters of copper, especially as the importation of this metal from the United States could be greatly increased by having a responsible agent on the spot. He will furnish all the reference and guarantees which may be required.

5,861. GLASSWARE AND LIGHT LEATHER.—An American Consul in Australia reports that a firm of good standing in his district is in an excellent position to handle large quantities of American goods and desires to form connections with American manufacturers of glassware, glass tumblers known as "American jelly glasses," and light leathers, chrome, and other for boot and shoe manufacture. The firm states it would be necessary for interested manufacturers to furnish full details as to free on board prices, or if price is at factory, cost of inland freight, &c., that it is open to handle chinaware and glassware on the basis of a sole agency, and would be willing to supply manufacturers of good standing with letters of credit with American bankers.

5,862. POTATOES.—A business man in France has written to an American consulate calling attention to the poor crop of potatoes in that country this year, and asking that he be put in communication with dealers or growers of potatoes in the United States who will let him know the price per ton of potatoes in bags or in carloads free on board at port of shipment, and if possible the cost of transportation to destination. The inquirer states that he may buy 110,000 to 220,000 pounds, depending upon the price quoted. He also asks that samples of the different qualities of potatoes, with prices, be sent him by parcels post at as early a date as possible.

5,863. TRAMWAY CONCESSION AT JERUSALEM.—Consul William Coffin of Jerusalem has transmitted translated copies of the contract and specifications for the tramway concession in that city, reference to which was made in foreign trade opportunity No. 5,832. A copy of the original French text of the concession also accompanied the report. All these papers are on file in the Bureau of Manufactures and can be obtained by interested American contractors.

The committee is composed of ex-Gov. John F. Hill of Augusta, E. J. Eddy and Frederick O. Conant of Portland, C. Burton Hart, Francis Henderson, and Albert H. The International Agricultural Corporation was incorporated in the State of New York in July, 1909, and owns a number of fertilizer manufacturing plants, all the capital stock of the well known Sollstedt Potash Mines in Germany, large deposits of phosphate rock in Tennessee, and all the capital stock of the Prairie Pebble Phosphate Company in Florida, one of the most extensive and valuable phosphate deposits in the country.

Earnings
For year ended June 30, 1910, as reported:

Net Earnings	$1,017,504
7% Preferred Dividend	*437,271
Surplus	$580,233

*The dividend paid amounted to only $437,271 because the corporation did not acquire several of its properties until the middle of its fiscal year

The Corporation estimates that the net earnings for the year ending June 30, 1911, will exceed $1,500,000, or more than double the 7% dividend on the $10,124,000 preferred stock outstanding on June 30, 1910.

In our opinion this preferred stock constitutes an attractive investment because of the following points:

(1) The stability and certain growth of the fertilizer business.
(2) The moderate capitalization of the Corporation, its excellent credit and experienced management.
(3) Its strategic position through ownership of ample supplies of potash and phosphate rock, the two principal ingredients of commercial fertilizers.

Descriptive circular embodying a letter signed by William N. Shaw, Esq., Vice-President of the Corporation, will be sent on request.

Application will be made to list this issue on the New York Stock Exchange

Interim Receipts of the Bankers Trust Co. of New York will be delivered against payments for this stock and will bear interest at the rate of 7% on par from date of payment to Dec. 31st, inclusive. These receipts will be exchanged after January 3rd, 1911, for the Voting Trust Certificates.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Market Continues Strong and Steady—$900,000 Deal in Midtown Loft Zone—Greenwich Village Property in Trade—Builder Buys Bronx Block Front.

Additional impetus to the activity of the realty market in the midtown loft section was given yesterday in the purchase by Henry W. Bottger, a silk merchant, of the twelve-story commercial building at 31 to 37 West Twenty-seventh Street. The consideration is said to be $900,000, at which it has been held by the owners, Max and Henry Cohen, who erected the structure about two years ago.

It occupies a plot 100 by 100 feet. The sellers have agreed to lease the property from the new owner for fifteen years at a rate said to represent 6 per cent. of the purchase price. Opposite the building the Astor estate is putting up a six-story loft.

Deal in "Penn" Loft Zone.

An important sale in the Seventh Avenue loft zone that foreshadows the erection of a large mercantile building was announced yesterday by the Henry M. Weil Company, which sold for the Clark and Van Buren estates to an investor, 290 and 292 Seventh Avenue, old buildings, on plot 39.7 by 97.1, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh Streets.

Loft and Apartment in Trade.

Mrs. Eliza Guggenheimer, who a short time ago purchased the new twelve-story loft at 243 to 245 West Seventeenth Street extending through to Eighteenth Street, has added to her holdings of commercial property in that locality by acquiring from the Fabian Construction Company the twelve-story loft now nearing completion at 40 to 46 West Twentieth Street, east of Sixth Avenue. Mrs. Guggenheimer gives in part payment for the latter the apartment houses known as Elmore Court, three six-story buildings on a plot 108 by 100.11 feet at 533 to 541 West 124th Street. The entire deal involved close to $1,200,000. The Elmore Court is diagonally opposite the seven-story apartment house at 510 to 514 West 124th Street, which Mrs. Guggenheimer exchanged in part payment for the Seventeenth Street loft.

Big Sale in Greenwich Village.

An important sale in the Greenwich Village section which goes to show the increasing desirability of good investment property in that part of the city which is rapidly becoming a prominent commercial centre was that of the southeast corner of Morton and Greenwich Streets, occupied by a new eight-story loft recently built and leased for a long term by James H. Cruikshank to the General Electric Company, who will take possession March 1 next. The plot is 100.2 by 102.8 feet, and has been sold for Mr. Cruikshank, one of the largest operators in Greenwich Village realty, by Pease & Elliman to a client for investment. In part payment Mr. Cruikshank takes a valuable Newark plot at the northeast corner of Broad and Kinney Streets, 60 by 168 feet, now occupied by an old building, and it is Mr. Cruikshank's intention to improve the plot with a store and apartment house. Mr. Cruikshank acquired the plot just sold at Morton and Greenwich Streets from the Trinity Corporation a few months ago, and the later purchased the entire block from the same corporation, bounded by Morton, Greenwich, Washington, and Barrow Streets, upon which he is preparing to erect four high-class lofts similar to one he has now sold.

Investor Buys 38th Street Flats.

The three four-story flats 309, 311, and 313, in Thirty-eighth Street have been sold by S. Silverstein to an investor. The buildings occupy a plot 75 by 123.

J. Clarence Davies has sold for Jacob Hirsch 58 East 120th Street, a five-story flat on a lot 25 by 100. The buyer is an investor.

Buys Plot to Protect Root House.

Eugene Meyer, Jr., who purchased Senator Elihu Root's residence at the southeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-first Street, has also bought the four four-story buildings 104 to 110 East Seventy-first Street, adjoining, from Robert W. Tailer. The latter property is 82.6 by 96.5, together with a four-foot alley in the rear. The additional purchase is made to protect the corner house.

The Private Dwelling Market.

The private dwelling market continued strong and active yesterday, a number of sales being reported on both the east and west sides.

Charles Raab purchased from Mary Downey 239 and 241 West Sixtieth Street, two four-story and basement dwellings, on plot 50 by 100.5, between West End and Amsterdam Avenues.

Rose Fischel sold 160 East Seventy-first Street, a three-story and basement dwelling, on lot 16 by 100.5, between Lexington and Third Avenues.

Alfred J. Robertson has sold for Mary G. Duffy to James A. Farley 12 West Forty-fifth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 16.8 by 100.5, near Fifth Avenue. Mr. Farley will erect on the site a two-story building, with a roof and façade entirely of glass.

Heights Apartment in Trade.

The George A. Bagge Construction Company passed title yesterday to the Cortes apartment house at 625 West 156th Street. It is an eight-story building, arranged for two families on a floor, each apartment consisting of nine rooms and three baths. The buyer, Joseph Liebertz, has given in exchange his residence at 961 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, a sixteen-room house, on a plot 65 by 190, and the northeast corner of 165th Street and Prospect Avenue, a four-story single flat, on a lot 25 by 81. The amount involved in the transaction is $326,000. The brokers negotiating the deal were H. I. Strunsky & Co., White & Pierce, and A. Selkin.

Interesting Bronx Sale.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company have sold for Jesse W. Ehrich the northeast corner of Stebbins Avenue and Westchester Avenue, a plot involving about 200 feet on Stebbins Avenue and facing 163d Street, and 36.73 feet on Westchester Avenue, at the junction of 163d Street, (formerly Dongan Street,) Stebbins Avenue, and East 162d Street.

They have also sold the adjoining property on Westchester Avenue, consisting of a plot about 36.73 feet front by 178 feet deep and improved with a two-story factory building, for George Spaeth. The purchaser of both plots, which have a frontage of 73.5 on Westchester Avenue and containing nearly five city lots, contemplates the erection of an elevator apartment house.

It is interesting to note that the corner was sold by M. Morgenthau, Jr., to Mr. Ehrich about twelve years ago, when Mr. Morgenthau was associated with the office of J. Clarence Davies. The property was sold to Mr. Ehrich for $4,000, subject to certain rights on the corner proper, and which arose from the fact that the former owners, the Tiffany heirs, had sold the property at auction as fronting on Dongan Street, the line of which was afterward changed by the city on account of the putting through of Westchester Avenue. This practically left Mr. Ehrich's property an inside lot with easements over the corner. The matter was taken to the courts by Mr. Ehrich, and it was decided that Mrs. Trowbridge, one of the Tiffany heirs, merely had a naked fee subject to the easements of light, air, and access on the part of Mr. Ehrich and the adjoining owners who had purchased their properties at the auction sale. After this decision Mrs. Trowbridge sold out her interest to Mr. Ehrich. The latter now resells the corner for nearly five times the original purchase price of $4,000.

Bronx Sales.

The Bronxland, a six-story apartment house at the northeast corner of 158th Street and Morris Avenue, has been sold by the Bronxland Realty Company to a client of J. Clarence Davies. The building stands on a plot 51 by 101.

The estate of Anna Kich has sold to the Bellwood Realty Company the block front on the south side of 170th Street, between Stebbins Avenue and Bristow Street, a plot 200 by 28. The buyer will erect two five-story apartment houses, with stores.

The James L. Wells Company has sold 2,683 Third Avenue, a three-story business building, on lot 25 by 100, near 143d Street. The buyer is a client of William P. Rooney.

A $36,000 Flushing Deal.

Clinton B. Smith has sold to Robert W. Parsons for $36,325 a parcel having a frontage of 163 feet on the north side of Lincoln Street, 800 feet east of Parsons Avenue, with a depth to and along the west side of Perry Street of 270 feet and along the south side of Washington Street, Flushing, L. I.

Also a parcel on the north side of Washington Street, 807 feet east of Parsons Avenue, along the south side of Washington Street to and along the west side of Percy Street, 63 feet with a depth of 188 feet; subject to a mortgage of $12,000.

Recent Buyers.

Michael De Alexander is the buyer of 38 Downing Street, recently sold by Dyross Company for Michael Brosnan and others.

The Lawyers' Realty Company is the buyer of 117 East Seventy-first Street, sold recently by Sonn Brothers.

W. H. McDaniel is the buyer of the two-acre plot in Lawrence Park West, Bronxville, sold recently by Fish & Marvin. Mr. McDaniel is having plans prepared for a residence.

Mme. Francis is the buyer of 154 West Forty-sixth Street, a four-story dwelling, on lot 17 by 100, sold Wednesday by H. Reinheimer.

S. C. Clark Leases Stillman House.

The Thomas E. Stillman Estate has leased, through Pease & Elliman, the dwelling 9 East Seventy-eighth Street to Stephen C. Clark, son of the late Mrs. H. C. Potter, for a term of years. The house is an American basement structure and occupies a plot 35 by 102.2.

$1,000,000 for Queens Buildings.

With the total of permits for buildings for the past two weeks amounting to nearly $1,000,000 the Building Bureau in Queens has had one of its busiest periods. The experts in the Building Bureau declare that all the predictions made about the rapidity with which the borough was to build up have been eclipsed, and the actual operations are for outstripping the most sanguine expectations.

The record for the past two weeks as to permits was as follows: New buildings, 108; applications of a value of $746,382; alterations, 52, of a value of $134,080; plumbing permits, 96, of a value of $45,670, making a total in value of permits, $935,352.

120th Street Tenement.

Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller for a five-story brick tenement house to accommodate thirty-one families, at 325 and 327 East 120th Street. The building will have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 88.11 feet, with a facade of brick and terra cotta. The Friedman Construction Company is the owner. Bernstein & Bernstein are the architects, who estimate the cost at $50,000.

Loans and Leases.

The Duross Company has secured a first mortgage of $21,700 at 5 per cent. on the property 87 Christopher Street for Rocco N. Marasco; $23,000 at 5 per cent. on property 38 Downing Street, $9,000 at 5 per cent. on property 105 West 131st Street, $9,000 at 5½ per cent. on seven lots on Thirteenth Street and Avenue C, College Point, L. I., for Dr. W. Ross Bustard.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company loaned yesterday to J. Frederick Menke $180,000 on the seven-story brick elevator apartment at the corner of Lenox Avenue and 141st Street. The mortgage is for three years at 5 per cent.

J. B. English has leased for A. & C. Levis the two three-story dwellings at 236 and 238 West Forty-eighth Street, and also, for the Eldorado Café Company, the store at 804 Seventh Avenue to Charles F. Lighthouse.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The market continued its upward course yesterday with the principal strength in the December option. This was rather unexpected, inasmuch as it was the first day for delivery, and liberal notices were in circulation in all markets. These, however, were stopped by strong interests, and it was evident that shorts were disappointed at the amount of pressure caused by the issuance of the same. Early news advices were of a mixed character, and, while Liverpool cables were better than expected and Russian crop accounts less favorable, these facts were offset by a revised estimate issued by a prominent English authority raising the exportable surplus of Argentine nearly 10,000,000 bushels. The former estimate called for a surplus of from 92,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels. There was, however, continued dry weather reported in the Winter wheat belt of this country, and this, with a good cash demand at the Northwest and light primary receipts, were other factors toward the early advance. A good deal of irregularity, however, was witnessed, and no doubt the nervous undertone was due to the attitude of the bulls at the West.

Private advices were to the effect that, while they were buying openly, it was almost certain that their sales were easily in excess of their purchases, and naturally this was not without influence upon other longs. Renewed impetus toward the advance was given to the market in the afternoon on the issuance of the Oklahoma State report by a reliable authority of Toledo, Ohio. This document placed the condition of wheat in that State at 88.6, against 93 last year and 91 last July. The acreage sown was given at 96.9. While this report was confirmed, it was so sensational as to cause many traders to regard it rather skeptically. More conservative operators, however, realizing that the drought in that section has been prolonged, were inclined to cover shorts, and, although a prominent commission house stated that their replies from over a thousand correspondents indicated a condition of at least 68 to 75 for that State, and that a good rain would improve prospects considerably, the market closed near the best of the session. Export sales amounted to 200,000 bushels of Manitoba wheat. Cash No. 2 red quoted at 97¾c, elevator, and 97¾c, free on board, afloat, for export; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.18½; No. 2 Northern Spring, $1.16½; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.04¼.

CORN.—Prices during most of the session ruled above the previous night's close. Excepting for the fine weather, there was little bearish news at hand, with country advices even modified to such an extent as to read rather bullish. It was said that farmers were selling less freely, but many operators were at a loss to know whether this assertion was caused by the recent advance in corn values or whether offerings had really fallen off, and corn values were therefore influenced. Argentine exports estimates were liberal, but somewhat lighter than expected, amounting to 2,000,000 bushels, against nearly 3,500,000 bushels last week, and 1,300,000 bushels a year ago. Receipts at primary points so far this week are approximately 400,000 bushels over last week, but shipments for the same period have reached 700,000 bushels, which would account for the firm cash situation noted. The fact that there were no deliveries also had effect. Export sales amounted to 72,000 bushels. Cash No. 2, free on board, corn quoted at 52¾c.

OATS.—Deliveries at the outset were lighter than expected, and but little pressure was caused, with shorts good buyers. Elevator interests continued to undo hedges, which accounts for the relative strength in the near months over the distant. A fair cash demand is reported, and this, with the strength in other grain, prevents active selling. Cash standards quoted 32c. No. 2 white 39½c, and No. 3 white 38½c.

PROVISIONS.—A further advance was recorded in the market, due to a good demand from shorts. Hog advices were more favorable, with the principal offerings in the way of profit taking.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Trading was of small proportion during yesterday's session, and it is evident that decided caution is being displayed in the ranks of operators toward commiting themselves heavily at this time. The range of values was slightly lower, owing to the pressure of hedge sales, but aside from this selling there was little feature of importance. Cotton estimates coming to hand are having but small effect, although it is thought that the Government report will have a large amount of influence on sentiment in the South. How far consuming interests will be affected, however, by this report remains to be seen.

COTTON.

The cotton market was irregular and only moderately active yesterday. Liverpool cables were about as due, and although our market opened 2 to 8 points lower, it soon became steady, working up to a basis of about 10 points over the previous closing prices. Advices from China were somewhat more encouraging, indicating the probability of a resumption of demand from the empire as a result of the excellent crops and a readjustment of the recent financial difficulties at Shanghai. The South remained very firm in regard to offerings, and while receipts at ports and interior points are very much larger than at the same time last year, spot dealers who lowered their bids yesterday were unable to buy at the decline. American mills, however, are buying very sparingly and are holding out very stubbornly against purchases of raw material around the present level. Excepting for certain lines of specialties, American mills are unable to get cost out of raw material on the present basis, and there is talk of further curtailment unless there is a decline in the price of cotton or an advance in the price of goods. On the other hand, advices from Manchester are optimistic and most of the English cotton firms are bullish. Marked weakness again developed in the stock market to-day, almost all the active securities moving down from 1 to 2 points. With this marked weakness, which has now continued over three days and which has carried prices into new low figures for the movement, it is remarkable that the cotton market holds as well as it does, which would seem to indicate that there are no great scattered long interests held in the cotton market by Wall Street speculators. The market is surfeited with crop estimates, those of a very bullish nature predominating, but the trade is now waiting for the Government Census Bureau figures to be issued at the opening on Dec. 8 and for the later estimate of the Department of Agriculture on Dec. 9. On the whole, the market is narrow, and professional and outside business which was noted several days ago seems to have somewhat fallen off. Opinions differ considerably as to what kind of a showing has been discounted, although expectations are for a report by the Government in the neighborhood of 11,500,000 bales. New York spots advanced 10 points, to 15.15, for middling, with deliveries on contract of 109,900 bales. Southern spot markets were unchanged.

COFFEE.

Coffee again sold at new high records for the season. At the opening the market was steady at unchanged to 6 points advance. Trading was not active and offerings were small and the close was firm at a net advance of 10 points with sales of 6,250 bags. Havre was a full franc higher early but lost ¼ and at the close showed a net advance of ¾ franc. Hamburg closed at an advance of ½ to ⅝ pfgs. Rio was steady and unchanged, and Santos showed an advance of 200 reis. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were about 20 points higher. Spot coffee quiet but firmer, 13½c. for Rio No. 7. BUSINESS TROUBLES

HERMAN WITT.—Judge Hough has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to Herman Witt, a private house sale dealer in furniture of 100 East Ninety-fifth Street, whose liabilities were $4,252 and assets $178.

ALOIS STAUDT.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Alois Staudt, carpenter, 162 East Fifty-second Street, by these creditors: Kalt Lumber Company, $280; Balfour & Koch, $226, and Frank C. Buckhout, $126.

H. SOLLENDER & CO.—Schedules in bankruptcy of H. Sollender & Co., wholesale furs and skins, 44 East Tenth Street, show liabilities of 4,867 and assets of $952, of which $802 are accounts and $150 proceeds of sale of stock and fixtures.

CHARLES LYNCH.—Charles Lynch, meat market 229 Ninth Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $11,934 and assets of $692 in accounts. Among the creditors are Thomas Lynch, $7,975 for rents and loan, and Samuel Nagle, $864.

RODMAN & BLUM.—Judge Hough has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed against Rodman & Blum, retail clothing dealers at 117 Canal Street, on consent of creditors. It was said some time ago that they offered a settlement at 25 cents on the dollar.

JOHN KANE.—John Kane residing at 307 West Fourth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $10,130, and assets of $503 in accounts. Among the creditors are the Bouker Contracting Company, $2,420; Goodwin Sand and Gravel Company, $1,500, and the Manhattan Trap Rock Company, $666.

Dr. PHILLIP SUSSMAN.—Dr. Phillip Sussman of 18 St. Mark's Place has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $3,354 and nominal assets of $120 in small outstanding accounts. He claims exemption for $200 worth of surgical instruments. He has only one creditor, Frieda Lazarowitz of 138 Orchard Street, who obtained a judgment against him for $3,354 on Nov. 14 for damages for alleged negligence.

OSCAR COLLER & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Oscar Coller & Co., manufacturers of men's clothing, at 14 Waverly Place, by these creditors. Harry Baum, $800; J. Abrahams, $60, and H. H. Goldstein, $900. Judge Hough appointed Jesse Watson receiver and authorized him to continue business ten days. Business liabilities are $13,000 and assets $10,000. In September, 1909, he said he had real estate in the West which included a residence in Milwaukee, two houses and thirty-two lots in Kansas City, Kan., and 320 acres of land in Russell County, Kan.

STANDARD NITROGEN COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Standard Nitrogen Company, manufacturer of fertilizers, 149 Broadway, show liabilities of $83,871 and nominal assets, consisting of laboratory at Richmond, Va., $2,000; machinery and fixtures there, value unknown; accounts, $5,880, of Y. Mezzia; 2,000 acres of land at Tuckahoe, N. Y., and 100 acres at Norwich, Conn., values unknown. Among the creditors are Heyl Brothers & Co., 149 Broadway, $50,000, money loaned, and $2,650 indorsed notes; Mrs. Heyl of Berlin, $5,000; Chatham National Bank, $6,911, and First National Bank of Bayonne, $6,081.

HENRY HIRSCHBERG.—Judge Hough has denied an application to appoint a receiver for Henry Hirschberg, wholesale lumber dealer of 99 Nassau Street, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Nov. 22. Mr. Hirschberg asserts that he is absolutely solvent, denies that he committed any of the acts of bankruptcy alleged, and demands a jury trial. He stated his assets to be $88,882 and liabilities $46,823. Included in the assets is his collection of paintings, ivories, china, and works of art valued at $79,800. Experts have appraised the collection at from $60,000 to $110,000. Part of the collection is to be sold at auction at the American Art Galleries on Dec. 5 and 6, and if the sale does not realize enough to pay his creditors he will later on sell more of the collection to pay his debts. The Judge allows the auction sale to go on next Monday.

ISRAEL FRANKLIN.—Judge Hand has granted a motion to vacate the dismissal of the petition in bankruptcy filed against Israel Franklin, who did business as the Franklin Manufacturing Company, women's underwear, 32 Greene Street, and to reinstate the proceedings, on the application of Charles H. Broas for the Thread Agency, a creditor for $90, because this creditor never consented to the dismissal of the petition and was not included in the list of creditors submitted to the court by Mr. Franklin. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against Mr. Franklin on Dec. 6, 1900, which was dismissed on March 31, 1910. Mr. Franklin said he was not aware of this claim until after the dismissal. He transferred all his assets to Oscar Otner, who settled with and bought in all the creditors then known, and it took a greater sum, it is said, to settle with the creditors than the amount of the assets of the estate.

BAD CHECK SWINDLER FOOLS NOTED MASONS

Trunks of Man Held in Plainfield Found to Contain Jewels and Furs Supposed to be Stolen.

WIFE AND BABY WITH HIM

Prisoner Wanted in New Haven Was Befriended by Masons Until It Was Learned He Didn't Belong to Order.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Dec. 1.—Several ministers, among them the Rev. Charles A. Eaton of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church of New York, who lives here, as well as many prominent Masons, were shocked to-day to learn that a prisoner in this place on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, who calls himself Charles E. Davis, not only is not a Mason, as he pretended to be, but, according to the police, has confessed to them that he passed a worthless check for $100 in the Duncan House, in New Haven, Conn. Davis, or, as the police call him, MacDonald, has waived extradition, they say, but will be held here a few days before being taken to New Haven, to give the police more time to investigate his case.

Chief of Police Kiely is convinced that Davis, or MacDonald, will be wanted in other cities as soon as a list of articles which were found to-day in seven trunks belonging to him can be published broadcast. These trunks were in the Truell Inn here, where the man was arrested a few days ago. With him were his wife and baby daughter, and it was supposed that the trunks contained wearing apparel of his wife.

They were not examined by the police, therefore, even at the time of Davis's arrest, for he stoutly maintained that his was a case of mistaken identity, and asserted that he was a physician of Montreal, Canada, and a high degree Mason. His declaration that he was a Mason brought to his assistance among others not only Dr. Eaton, but the Rev. G. R. Maguire and the Rev. F. St. John Finch of local churches. Mr. Finch took the prisoner's wife and baby into his own home.

With the alleged confession of Davis to-day, however, the police brought his trunks to Headquarters, and there opened them, disclosing, they say, silver and china stamped with the marks of hotels in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and many other cities, as well as many jewels and several costly sealskin coats.

According to the police, a woman servant in the inn discovered between the mattresses in Davis's room a complete outfit for forging cashier's checks, among the kit being several rubber stamps, imitations of those used by the cashier of the American Bank and Trust Company of Portland, Ore., and a large bundle of blank bank drafts. It was when he was confronted with these, say the police, that Davis confessed.

The Masons who had come to Davis's aid immediately put the man through a rigid examination as to his right to call himself a Mason and at its conclusion announced sorrowfully that the man was evidently an impostor. It developed then, according to the police, that Mrs. Davis had offered to sell several fine sealskin coats to Dr. Finch for almost nothing, and Davis, Chief Kiely says, offered him a coat at less than one-third its price.

Davis, the police say, has told contradictory stories of how he came by the coats and has not explained his possession of the hotel utensils and jewelry. The police are preparing a list of these articles for publication in other cities, and meantime Davis will be held at Headquarters in default of $2,000 bail.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 1.—Requisition on the Governor of New Jersey for the extradition of Charles C. Davis, also known as McDonald, who is being held at Plainfield, N. J., has been issued by Acting Gov. Brooks, and officers from New Haven, where the man is wanted on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, have left this city for New Jersey.

HELD FOR BIG JEWEL THEFTS

Cook and Butler Accused of Taking Many Valuable Pieces.

Accused by the police of jewelry thefts amounting to thousands of dollars from employers extending from Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, through Chicago, to Brooklyn, Idalie De Meulemeester, a cook, and John De Lit, a butler, who gave their address as 1301 Vine Street, Philadelphia, were brought to this city last night from that city on charges of grand larceny.

The complainant against them is Samuel Kuble, President of a rubber company at 31 Front Street, who charges them with stealing diamonds and other jewelry while employed as cook and butler under the name of Ida and James Delette at his Summer home at Far Rockaway, on Nov. 12. A few days before that date, he says, he discharged the woman, De Lit volunteering to take her place. Then the butler disappeared simultaneously with the jewelry. Detectives traced the couple through their trunk. Jewelry worth $4,000 was recovered.

According to the police the couple were employed under the same name of Ida and James Delette by Charles Gillette of 4,000 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, who charges them with the theft of a necklace valued at $10,000. Another complainant against them, the police say, is C. J. Pagliabus of 585 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, from whose Summer home at Shoreham, L. I., a necklace valued at $2,000 was stolen.

De Lit, the detectives heard, was at one time employed as a butler at the palace of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland. Both he and the woman are Belgians. On the way from Philadelphia, according to the detectives, he threatened to commit suicide before he reached New York.

Mrs. Charles Bradley paid $265 for an early Chippendale cabinet. A pair of English oak armchairs of 1650 went to Mrs. Gouverneur Atterbury for $230. J. Raynard of Boston paid $216 for six Hepplewhite armchairs with rush seats and six Chippendale side chairs were bought by W. Richards for $360.

The returns for the day were $9,985. The sale will be continued this afternoon at 2:30.

Gaelic Envoys to Speak Here.

The Rev. Michael O'Flanagan and Flonan MacColum will speak in the Grand Central Palace on Sunday evening on "The Gaelic Culture Movement in Ireland." William McAdoo will also deliver an address. Father O'Flanagan and Mr. MacColum are delegates to this country from the Gaelic League in Ireland, where the linguistic, literary, and artistic revival which has sprung up is one of the most interesting activities. Gaelic language is now being cultivated in the schools, colleges, and universities of Ireland, and several periodicals are devoted to its revival.

Peace for Express Companies.

On behalf of both the express companies and their drivers and helpers, it was stated yesterday that in the belief of both sides peace is now assured between the companies and their employes. The only point unsettled was the question of overtime in the case of the employes of the Adams Express Company.

BIG MEN WITH THE Y. M. C. A.

Many at the Dinner in the Waldorf, Where 600 Were Seated.

Six hundred officials and well-wishers of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian's Association attended the committee's forty-fourth annual dinner at the Waldorf last night.

Miss Helen Gould and Kingdon Gould occupied one of the boxes, and the guests at the head table included Vice President Cornelius N. Bliss, J. C. Stuart of the Erie Railroad, James Stokes, the banker; the Rev. E. B. Sanford, President K. L. Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Acting Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Hays, President F. B. Schenck of the Liberty National Bank, President A. S. Frissell of the Fifth Avenue Bank, President W. H. Porter of the Chemical National Bank, President James G. Cannon of the Fourth National Bank, Vice President Pugh of the Pennsylvania Railroad, President L. E. Johnson of the Norfolk and Western Railroad, and many other men prominent in public and industrial life.

Dr. L. C. Warner, Chairman of the Y. M. C. A.'s International Committee, presided, and the diners applauded heartily the announcements of the last ten years' growth of the organization in wealth and membership, and listened attentively to the different speeches describing the work which the committee, which now directs 2,017 associations and 241,119 members, is doing among young men in all parts of the world.

The speeches were all made by Y. M. C. A. field workers. C. R. Towson said that the Y. M. C. A.'s industrial department alone had twenty-six buildings, worth $1,500,000, solely for the benefit of industrial workers.

"In one Western town alone," said he, "Judge Gary of the Steel Corporation has given us a $200,000 building, and the Guggenheims and Lewisohns are also putting up expensive buildings for us in various parts of Arizona and Tennessee, because they believe in our work. We have Secretaries in ten ports of entry in Europe, and also in all the seaports here to steer the immigrants right."

The Pennsylvania Railroad believes so strongly in the railroad work of the Y. M. C. A. that it has set apart part of the valuable space in its new station at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-second Street for a Y. M. C. A. Railroad Branch for its employes, J. S. Moore told the diners. The New York Central is also about to fit up a branch in or near the new Grand Central Station.

A. E. Roberts said that the Y. M. C. A.'s county work was now organized in twenty-two States and fifty-three counties, and that it had "already regenerated forty communities." E. C. Carter of the Y. M. C. A. Students' Branch, as an example of how the different American student bodies were becoming interested in Y. M. C. A. work, said that "every cadet at West Point except two had contributed to the support of the Y. M. C. A. last year."

Dr. George Fisher of the Y. M. C. A.'s Physical Department, described how six Y. M. C. A. Secretaries in China were "capturing the play life of the Chinese and teaching them to develop their bodies." W. B. Miller of the Army and Navy Branch, said that he believed that, in 1920, the Y. M. C. A.'s Army and Navy Departments would be spending $7,500,000 instead of the present $2,500,000 a year; and that there would be a branch established at every post.

A telegram from George W. Perkins, dated Elkhart, Ind., was read by Chairman Warner.

"In all the realm of human endeavor to-day, no work is more uplifting and important than that being performed by the Y. M. C. A.," Mr. Perkins said.

RARE DICKENS EDITIONS SOLD

Many Other Valuable Works in the Library of Alonzo W. Porter.

A set of the works of Charles Dickens and books relating to him, all first editions and sold as one lot, brought $511 at Anderson's in the opening session of the sale of the library of the late Alonzo W. Porter of this city. A copy of the first edition, in the original pink wrappers, of "The Humorist," London, 1819, with 40 etched and colored plates by George Cruikshank, brought $200. A copy of the rare first edition of the London, 1826, English translation of the Brothers Grimm's Popular Stories, illustrated by George Cruikshank, and in binding by Sangorski and Sutcliffe, sold for $207. John Ruskin says of these Cruikshank plates that they are unrivaled in delicacy of touch and can only be compared to the etchings of Rembrandt.

Other interesting items were: first editions of Lewis Carroll's "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass and What Alice Found There," $66.50; "Le Mouchoir: an Autobiographical Romance," one of the scarcest of James Fenimore Cooper's works, as published in Brother Jonathan, No. XXII, New York, March 22, 1843, its first appearance in print, $56; a complete set of "The Comic Almanac, an Ephemeris in Jest and Earnest," illustrated by George Cruikshank and others, $61; a complete set, five volumes, of Charles Dickens's Christmas Stories, all first editions, $60; first edition, in separate book form, of Robert Burns's "Tam o' Shanter," $102; a set of Henry Alken's colored sporting plates, $282; second edition of "Jorrocker Jaunts and Jollities," by R. S. Surtees, $150; the Bibliophile Society's André's Journal, $53; Liber Scriptorum, the first book of the Authors' Club, New York, 1893, $57; "His Arsenis," by John Barclay, London, 1629, $54, and Daniel Featly's "The Romish Fisher Caught and Held In His Own Net," London, 1627, with arms of James I., $107.

Fisk & Robinson Resume Business.

George H. Robinson of the firm of Fisk & Robinson, which suspended on Feb. 1 last, has been reinstated on the New York Stock Exchange, and the firm will resume business on Dec. 8. The house was one of the best-known dealers in bonds in this city handling large amounts of United States and municipal bonds. Dullness in the bond market and the firm's commitments in several railroad undertakings forced its suspension last Winter.

LACK LUXURY IN PRISON.

Chef of Wealthy Nebraska Convicts Tardy—Fine Furnishings in Cells.

Special to The New York Times.

HASTINGS, Neb., Dec. 1.—Their Japanese chef has not arrived, and so W. G. Comstock, Aquilla Triplett, and Charles Jamison, wealthy Nebraska cattlemen, convicted of illegally fencing range land and brought here Tuesday night to serve a one year's sentence in the Adams County jail, must for a time eat the food given to all the other prisoners. The chef is expected in a week or so.

Arranging fine rugs and other costly furnishings they had bought for their cells occupied the first day in prison for the three men. Telephone extensions and electric lights will be installed at once, making their permanent quarters as comfortable as possible.

With all their luxury the prisoners will have some troubles. Judge Dungan has drawn up a set of rules which they must obey. The jailer must examine all packages for them. They will not be permitted to converse with visitors except in the presence of the jailer. Visitors will be allowed on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 10 A. M. to 12 M. and from 2 to 4 P. M. The prisoners must fall in line before their cells each evening at 8 o'clock. From Oct. 1 to April 1 they must rise at 7 A. M., and from April 1 to Oct. 1 at 6:30 A. M. Intoxicating liquors will not be allowed except on prescription of a physician. Newspapers and reading matter will be permitted and a Bible for each prisoner.

When the Japanese chef arrives he will be quartered in the Oliver residence, which Jamison has leased for the Winter for his family. The meals will be prepared there and conveyed to the jail in an automobile.
